

MIDWAY HIGHWAY ACTION DEFERRED BY COUNTY COURT

The county court in regular session today, after an hour's discussion of the proposed Midway highway, deferred action for two weeks and will further consider the matter at the meeting on Wednesday, April 24.

A number of interested parties in the building of the road were present. The county court is disposed to build the road, but feels that there is too wide a margin between values placed on affected property, by the owners and the estimates of the road viewers.

The county court plans to again visit the route of the proposed road within the week. It was stated at the session this morning that a bridge across Bear creek was a heavy factor in considering the road. The bridge at Central Point is "now practically condemned, and unable to stand the heavy traffic from the tract districts. More than one truck at a time is now prohibited on the bridge. It will be only a question of a very short time until a new bridge will be a necessity.

The county court feels that it should not be compelled to pay prohibitive prices for rights of way, though willing to make concessions and move buildings and fences, and even dig wells, on property through which the road will pass. About twenty property holders will be affected.

The building of the road has been under consideration for two months and the thoroughfare has been endorsed by the Saffa Valley Grange and many of the large orchard properties adjoining that section.

CARLE CLAIMS TRIO ABANDONED AIRPLANE FOR TRIP ON SHASTA

How the Southern Pacific company triumphed over aeronautics was the story gleefully told yesterday by Jack Carle, local freight and passenger agent, ex-president of the Rotary club and one of Medford's handsomest young bachelors.

According to Jack's story, Harold Gray, advertising man for the Hoising Aviation company, Harry W. Bertie, public relations representative of the Riehfeld Oil company of Los Angeles, and Frank Whitebeck, advertising manager for the Fox Film company, of Hollywood, arrived in Medford yesterday morning at the local airport by plane.

Their intentions from the start were to leave immediately for Portland, Seattle and points north. But, according to Jack, by the time they reached Medford, they decided that the plane was too slow a means of travel for three such progressive business men, so they hopped on the Shasta and continued their journey with the hope that they would make up the time they had lost from Los Angeles to Medford.

U. S. AIR OFFICIAL HAS PRAISE FOR BOND VOTE

It is an honor, "I have your night letter of April 3, informing me of the passage of a bond issue for the establishment of a new airport for Medford, and wish to tender my hearty congratulations. We wish you every success in the development of your airport and shall be glad to assist in every way possible."

GASOLINE WAR IS NEAR SETTLEMENT

As the result of a meeting held by Medford service station operators last night, gasoline was being sold here today at 124 and 24 1/2 cents per gallon, and indications are that price will not be changed for some time. The new price will be met by the Weaver station, which will continue to sell at the 24-cent price, on grounds that the management has no plans of wavering from the announcement it made last Sunday.

At present there is a place for one more good team in the league. Any that wish to join may get in touch with Mr. King of the California Oregon Power company. It has been suggested that some of the following might be able to join the league, in which case the above schedule will be revised to include the new team: High school, Owen Oregon Lumber Co., the banks, and the DeMolays.
