Ye Smudge Pot

Wise men, with a $25,000 prize dangling before them, have been pounding typewriters and burning electric lights far into the night for months, to find a way to remove Prohibition from its present status—a final furore.

Owing to the severity of the smudge, everybody feels like they had been in a minstrel show, and washed up in cold water.

The public ought to begin to weary of the carrying-on of Aimee Semple McPherson, and her Ma. The amiable Aimee leaped in the Pacific ocean and came to the surface in an Arizona desert, 27 miles south of Phoenix, still retaining spots.

Due to the severity of the smudge, everybody feels like they had been in a minstrel show, and washed up in cold water.

The Baker Democrat-Herald opines that the first 100 years of the Aimee-Ma phenomenon is the worst. This is probably true, but there are 90 years to suffer.

Brad Heath continues his pugilistic efforts and yesterday launched a hard right off his Paw's jaw. Brad is about ripe to cut a tooth and be a vocalist.

The Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce is asked to remain neutral in the rail development of southern Oregon. If they do, the Finnish Fishermen's Union of Astoria should blow them. Then it will not make a difference how the Prune Growers Association of Douglas county feels about it.

A pioneer tale tells of how a customer bought a steak, and then said to the butcher: "Give me a knife, till I cut off your hand. I paid for it."

EUGENE'S FLAMING YOUTH GOING TO BLAZES

The facts adduced by Julian Strait, a deputy investigating for the sheriff's office, bear out completely the theory advanced in this column regarding responsibility for the long-continued epidemic of automobile thievery which afflicts this community. Those guilty are not professional automobile thieves from outside places but a limited group of local youths acting from motives of joy-riding, vandalism, and sometimes malicious mischief, combined with petty thievery of accessories and parts. It ought to be comparatively easy to break up this gang and bring punishment upon its members, some of whose names have become known to the authorities through Deputy Strait's activities. Mere publicity concerning the investigation under way has so covered the thieves that they have ceased to steal cars during the past few days and nights. This condition can only be made permanent by carrying the investigation to its conclusion and halting the thieves into court.

QUILL POINTS

The love of money is also the root of all diplomacy.

All a layman knows about war strategy is that it requires a lot of fast leg work.

If the man says "Hello," and his voice then becomes mot-timid or more discourteous, he is talking to his wife.

A "bum" book is one written for people more stupid than you or more intelligent than you.

Oratory still is enjoyed by some people. They are the kind that clap vigorously when the orator remarks how intelligent the audience is.

When a rich man tells reporters he doesn't know how he got that way, it may be either modesty or discretion.

Floods in the South are drowning muskrats, and the ladies must expect to pay more for sealskin coats.

Four men in the West were buried by a landslide, and they weren't Democrats, either.

Americanism: Clever, idle wives yearning for their own spending money; professional writers competing with two million female amateurs.

Tumble-Down Socks and Bad Manners in Minority Among College Students, Say Questionnaire Replies of Deans

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(AP)—The modern American collegian is not "collegiate" but has higher ideals and purposes, does better work and more serious scholastic work and lives by a higher standard of moral conduct than the student of any preceding generation.

That is the conclusion Henry Gratian Doyle, dean of men of George Washington University, has drawn from his own observations and from statements by the presidents or deans of men of about 300 colleges in reply to a questionnaire.

He undertook the inquiry, he explained in an announcement of the results today, with a desire "to contribute something toward the correction of what I believe to be erroneous public opinion concerning the college man and woman today."

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—George L. Lester, wartime aviator, never had such trouble in the air. His motor car would not run. He sold it for $5. Then he was called to court for overparking while he had been hunting a customer. A sympathetic magistrate suspended sentence.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady in care of this newspaper.

THE LOW DOWN ON THE INFRA-RED

Probably there is nothing lower than a red in the estimation of a fellow who has got his but in the apertures nevertheless we have the infra-red rays, and from the end-less stream of inquiries I receive from readers, it would seem that these impressive, almost imposing, rays are raising ructions in the imagination of the half informed layman.

Many a morning have I lain late in the hope of hatching some plan to make this ray mystery clear to him who reads. I haven't hit on a feasible plan as yet, but no matter, it will come in due time. You can't drive the subconscious; you can only give it free reign. Lying about in the morning, when old-fashioned folk are up, whether they're doing anything worth doing or not, in my habit of thinking, the best way to commune with the subconscious. There is a twilight zone there somewhere just between sleep and full consciousness, where ideas are conceived. Of course, most of them remain forever in the unknown. The trick is to capture the germ of the idea and fetch it out into the consciousness when you do wake up.

Listen to an authority of the highest standing, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, the sage of Battle Creek, who says, in the American Journal of Surgery:

"I think it worth while to call attention to the fact that special apparatus for the application of infra-red rays is not needed for the reason that those rays are always present in abundant quantity available in any quantity desired through such commonly employed means of making heat applications as the fomentation, the hot poultice, hot water bag, hot sand bags, heated stones or bricks, and the shorter and more penetrating infra-red and luminous heat rays are always present in the radiation from any and every radiant heat source of every sort. Even the glowing coals of an open fireplace are a most effective source of heat rays of the very highest therapeutic value."

As a point of interest I venture to add to the list of homely sources of infra-red rays popular radiators and electric heating devices. These modern heating units utilize the physical principle of an incandescent surface, which gives off a large quantity of infra-red rays and is what is technically known as radiant heat.

Radiant heat, from any open fire, flame, glowing coals or incandescent surface, warms surfaces or objects in the room, including the bodies of occupants, rather than the air of the room. This explains why an open fireplace is so comfortable, even though a thermometer indicates a temperature several degrees below that which is generally maintained in rooms heated by air heaters or radiators.

Only those who have studied physics—and physics should be one of the three or four main subjects of the first year of any high school course—can understand what infra-red means. Almost anyone may get an inkling of its meaning from observation of the arrangement of the colors of the rainbow. Shorter order is red, orange, yellow, green, blue, violet. Beyond the range of the violet is the ultra-violet, invisible. Below or under the red is the infra-red, also invisible. Beyond the violet rays are cold. Blue is a cold color. Red is a warm color. Below the red the rays are heat rays. But this will scarcely mean anything to the unfortunate who has been denied a fair education in school. I merely seek to tell you that infra-red ray treatment requires no special gadget.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What Is the Cui? Nearly every winter I have from five to ten attacks of cui. Mrs. E. G.

Answer:—Evidently you think cui is a definite ailment. It isn't. It may be measles, meningitis, influenza, tonsillitis, or any of a dozen other respiratory infections. So when you say "cui" had "cui" is hard to tell the depth of the well from the length of the handle on the pump.

THE ROACHES ALL BAD. May I have a formula for bad roaches?—Mrs. E. V. G.

Answer:—It is bad for even the good roaches. I dare not publish it, but will gladly mail you the directions if you will send with your request a stamped envelope bearing your address.

PRIMROSE POISONING. Please state the nature of primrose poisoning. A few days after I brought a resting primrose from the basement up to our apartment my daughter broke out with a rash with much itching. Her face, hands and neck had fine red pimples. It lasted only two days. Was this probably primrose poisoning?—Mrs. S. L. L.

Answer:—Probably not, though the distribution of the rash was characteristic of primrose dermatitis. But that usually continues until the victim no longer comes in contact with primrose. If you remove the primrose, try bringing it into the apartment again and see whether the rash and itching recur.

BEER AND WINE. Is homemade beer and wine harmful? I mean the kind of beer made from malt and hops that are sold in so many stores for the purpose, and wine made from grapes.—E. M.

Answer:—I should say it is usually harmful.

DENTIST DIVINES DIAGNOSIS. My dentist tells me I have pyorrhea caused by an ailed system.—D. E. D.

Answer:—In other words, you have some infection or inflammation of the gums about tooth sockets (like a large minority of adults) and the dentist is indulging in a little quaint speculation about acids. If you give the anticipated response to the acid system suggestion, perhaps the dentist will offer some half-baked suggestion about your diet. Dentists are funny that way. Yours may be a very good dentist, at that—but don't let him tell you how acid you are. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

FILE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST TED CAPTAIN

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., April 10.—(AP)—A charge of second-degree murder was filed late yesterday against Ted Captain, Indian, slayer of Morris Lotches, fellow tribesman. Lotches was shot to death on the Captain ranch near Medoc Point last Friday. Captain contends the bullet was meant for another Indian who had been molesting Captain's mother and sister, and that Lotches, Captain's friend, stepped into the path of the bullet.

Preliminary hearing before the United States commissioner has been set for April 25.

We don't show those gentlemen the politeness that we show the Britisher who brought his "Im Alone" rum smuggler to defy the laws of the United States about the Louisiana coast.

Senator Hiram Johnson, using that "Im Alone" incident as a text, asks his fellow citizens to imagine what would happen in such a case if this country were in the World Court, outvoted 10 to 1, or worse yet, in the League of Nations.

Washington is receiving haughty notes from our little northern friend, Canada, on the subject of the "Im Alone" and another ship, the League of Nations Canada would have one vote, the same as the United States. Britain would have a separate vote. Other fragments of the British empire would have votes. This country would have a fine chance. SELF-IMPOSED FAST GIVEN UP FOR DRINK

BALEIGH, N. C., April 10.—(AP)—A six-day search for Mrs. A. L. Burroughs, 34, who left home with the avowed purpose of starving herself to death, ended last night when she crawled from beneath the home of a next door neighbor and called for water.

Organized searching parties had combed Baleigh and its suburbs earlier had dynamited a pool in an effort to find her body.

Physicians said the woman was in a weakened condition from lack of food and water.

Internal Health by Nature's Own Methods

If you are sick inside you are sick all over. When the stomach fails to digest its food, you are standing at the threshold of a series of ailments that may end in a complete physical wreck.

Internal health means health throughout the body. Keep your stomach and other digestive organs clean and vigorous by giving them the natural stimulation of the roots, barks and herbs contained in Tanlac.

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation—gas, pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, and gain strength and weight.

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, herbs and barks, nature's own medicines for the sick. For over 20 years it has been recommended by druggists who have watched its marvelous results. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle of Tanlac from your druggist and give it a thorough trial. Your money back if it doesn't help you.
