ning company has started prep-arations for the coming season, strations for the coming season, which is expected to start, owing to the lateness of the growing, about June 15. They are building an addition to the plant, to increase storage and working room, and are considering the installation of a pear-peeling machine to increase production.

The pear-peeling machine, ac-cording to Seth Bullis, an official of the company, is a new inven-tion, and will skin a pear in some-thing less than a liffy. The pear is a slow and slippery proposition in the throes of peeling, and the machine cradicates all this while speeding up the production, which has been limited heretofore by not being able to get enough pears peeled. The machine, if installed, will be augmented by a corps of women pear peelers.

Mr. Bullis said that the first product of the cannery this year would prebably be Royal Anne cherries, and from what he could be cand hear there would be a good crop of this variety. He did not think the Royal Annes had suffered much from the weather, re-ports to the contrary notwith-standing:
