PORTABLE MILL WILL BE USED IN BLUE LEDGE

Cut Timber for Flotation Plant With Own Outfit—Road Crew On Job—Road to Blue Ledge Camp Requires Burros.

A portable sawmill to cut timbers for the $200,000 flotation mill, to be built at Joe Bar by the syndicate of Los Angeles oil and mining capitalists holding an option for development on the Blue Ledge mine will be erected at an early date and is expected to be in operation within a month. The flotation mill will have a 200-ton capacity. The process method is the latest mode in copper mining. It removes all the base material and brings out the copper ready for the smelter. The sawmill will also be used in cutting timber for the repairs to the mine, building cabins and for bridge timbers. A forest service road crew is now working on the road from Copper to the Blue Ledge camp, and Erick Anderson has a force of men fixing up the cabins and draining the mine tunnels of water. The supervisors of Siskiyou county are expected to take some action at an early date regarding repairing the road, and the Jackson county court has under advisement a request for $1500 to put the road in shape for heavy hauling. The county court says it will journey over the road as "soon as the weather clears, which it has done. Frank Minkus and John Ellich of Jacksonville, pioneer miners, journeyed to Joe Bar Wednesday and reported the road "was like a payment" to Seattle Bar, a level spot bought originally by the Towne interests for a smelter that was never built. The road to the Blue Ledge camp is in bad shape and food is being packed in by burros, which have a hard time making it.

DISTRICT MEETING FEDERATED CLUBS OPEN IN ASHLAND

More than 70 delegates from the five different counties represented in the first district federation of Women's clubs of Oregon, had arrived in Ashland at 10 o'clock today, to attend the annual convention which opened officially with a luncheon at the Lithia Hotel at noon. The entire morning was given over at the Civic club house, to the registration of delegates, who will continue to arrive throughout the day, bringing tomorrow's registration up to over 100 members. It is thought. Eighteen different women's organizations will be represented at the two-day convention from Jackson, Josephine, Lake, Curry and Klamath counties. The Greater Medford club of Medford, the only organization as yet affiliated with the state federation, was represented by more than 20 members. Mrs. A. J. Hanby, third vice-president of the first district federation and Mrs. Rose Scheffelin, parliamentarian, were the two local officers, elected last year, who assisted Miss Grace Chamberlain of Ashland, president of the federation in receiving the visiting delegates and guests throughout the morning. Mrs. G. J. Frankel of Portland, state federation president, pleasantly surprised many of the members by arriving in Ashland on the noon stage today, in response to an invitation sent her by the Ashland club. She was the honored guest at the luncheon, and gave an impressive response to the enthusiastic greetings extended her by Miss Chamberlain and the local federation delegates. Following the luncheon, the members proceeded to the Civic club house, and the afternoon session was called to order by Miss Chamberlain as presiding officer, assisted by Mrs. Alex Grant Jackson of Grants Pass and Mrs. A. J. Hanby of Medford, at two o'clock. "A Collect for Club Women," written by Mary Stewart, was recited in unison by the large number of delegates, after which they sang "Oregon My Oregon," and saluted the flag. Greetings from the Ashland Club Improvement club as hostesses at the convention, were extended by Mrs. Henry Enders, president of that organization. A response for the delegates was given by Mrs. Alex Grant Jackson, district vice-president of Grants Pass. A report of the program committee and a recital of convention rules, were given by Mrs. A. J. Hanby, district vice-president of Medford. "What I personally have gained through my leadership as club president," was the topic developed by the council of presidents, led by Mrs. G. R. Landley of Klamath Falls. An interesting feature at tomorrow's afternoon session will be the display of valuable rugs by Atiyeh brothers of Portland, who are sending their exhibit to Ashland, just for the federation, with Henry McCullough as speaker. The display is presented as an educational feature on the program.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE DIVIDED ON MELLON

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—A division of opinion has developed in the senate judiciary committee on the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office in the face of an old statute forbidding the secretary of the treasury to be interested in trade or commerce and a special session of the committee has been called for tomorrow for a vote on the question.

THOMSONS LEAVE MONDAY FOR NEW YOSEMITE HOME

Colonel C. G. Thomson, Mrs. Thomson and their young sons, "Pete" and "Jeff", already have begun to bid their many friends and acquaintances good-bye, as they leave Monday for their permanent home at Yosemite national park incidental to the former's recent promotion to the superintendency of that park, after having served for the past six years as superintendent of Crater National park with their home in this city. As the time comes to bid farewell to Medford, Colonel and Mrs. Thomson are feeling much sadness and regret, as this city has been the best home that either had ever enjoyed beyond the homes of their youth, and they have accumulated so many friends during their years of residence here, both socially and in general. This feeling of regret at leaving is reciprocal on the part of the Medford public in general. Colonel Thomson has always taken an active part in the civic and other activities of Medford except in the summer time, during the Crater Lake season, when all his time was required on duty in the park. He was also active in American Legion post and Elks lodge affairs. Both Colonel and Mrs. Thomson will be sadly missed by the Medford public, and their sons will also be missed from the high school student body. The Thomsons are leaving early Monday morning for their future home at Yosemite national park in California, to which point they will travel by auto via the Redwood highway. Their furniture is going to Yosemite by the Buds Transfer Co. auto van, which on the return trip will bring the household goods of Superintendent E. G. Solinsky, the new Crater park superintendent, and family. The Solinsky family expect to arrive the middle of next week to make their permanent residence at the government home on Queen Anne avenue. She came home with her hat on one side and her clothes all torn up looking. "Looks as though she's been knocked down by a motorist," said one neighbor, sympathetically. "Or picked up," said another, thoughtfully. Clean rags wanted at the Mail Tribune office.
