

BIG CLASS IN NORMAL THIS YEAR

One Hundred Forty to Graduate in June—Many Assured of Positions—Closing Most Successful Year—Has Enjoyed Steady Growth—Entry Requirements Are Told.

When commencement time comes during the third week of June at the Southern Oregon Normal school at Ashland, over 140 students will be graduated, the largest class since the school was established three years ago. Of this number, many have already been assured of positions to teach next fall, according to J. A. Churchill, president of the school. In an interview this week, he said he found places for each of 120 members of the graduating class and he expects to repeat last year's success.

Commencement exercises will be held June 9, with Prof. Edwin T. Reed of the Oregon State College delivering the main address. Prof. Reed is well known for the text books he has written on English and is regarded as one of the foremost educators on the Pacific coast. Baccalaureate services will be held in the normal school auditorium June 9 with Rev. D. J. Ferguson of Astoria as the main speaker.

The normal school, in President Churchill's opinion, is about to close its most successful year. In reviewing the history of the school he recalled that in the first year of its existence there was an enrollment of 60 men and 445 women, followed by 101 men and 575 women the next year and 135 men and 637 women in the present year. Next year is expected to see even a larger growth, as the educational worth of the school becomes better known.

As well as giving two-year courses in teaching instruction, the school is also regarded as a junior college, where any student, after taking two years of study, may then enter any college on the coast in the junior year. The two year course is restricted to liberal arts, but in any other course, the first year can be taken here and then transfer may be made to colleges such as civil engineering, chemistry and other vocational studies.

Balanced Faculty.

The school prides itself upon its well balanced faculty of 30 members, making it possible for students to gain more knowledge through the fact that classes are smaller. In larger schools it is not unusual to find one instructor apportioned to several hundreds of students.

Athletics is also a feature of the school and several good games are scheduled with California football teams next fall, representing a large outlay of money. The school now has 101 baseball teams, which this week is making a tour of the northern part of the state, and has three tennis players in Pacific coast junior college conference at Palo Alto, Calif.

Upon the close of the present term, summer school will be opened and will include a good sized representation of students from all parts of the state. It will continue until next August.

The campus of the normal school occupies 24 acres within a short distance of the business district of Ashland. The first unit of the institution stands in a setting of madrona trees on the gentle elevation overlooking the Pacific highway, beautifully landscaped and covered with an extensive lawn. The architecture is that of the Italian Renaissance and adapts itself particularly to the climate and background of Ashland. In addition to the administration offices, the auditorium, seating 600 people, and other rooms, the building contains 14 class rooms and has a well developed library. Its entrance is especially attractive in deep red mahogany wood.

The library occupies a large room on the first floor of the main building and is comfortably furnished and well lighted, affording adequate space for quiet study. All students have complete access to the large collection of books, documents and periodicals.

Course of Study.

A normal school supplies not only the thorough knowledge of fundamentals which is an essential part of the preparation for teaching any subject, but also the knowledge of pedagogy necessary for the effectively imparting information. The course of study of the Southern Oregon Normal school has, therefore, been designed to secure the discriminating balance between cultural and professional preparation which is essential to real service in teaching.

Six terms of work will be offered in English, embracing the fundamentals of grammar and composition, as well as methods for teaching these subjects, and a survey of literature, with special emphasis on children's literature. Professional courses will include introduction to teaching; primary, intermediate and advanced methods; three terms of work in psychology; history of education; principles of education; and school administration. Three courses in biology and one in physical science will supply the knowledge of scientific principles and natural laws necessary for a well-rounded preparation. A course in school hygiene will supplement the general scientific work by a consideration of such material as will enable the teacher to supply practical health education.

One term of principles of geography and one of economic geography will extend beyond the common interpretation of geography and will treat of its social, political and economic phases. Because the teacher's field is far more comprehensive than the subject-matter which he teaches, two courses will be offered in the organization of society designed to prepare the teacher to function as a useful member of the community of which he is a member, as well as to teach the pupils to assume their proper privileges and responsibilities in society.

Entrance Requirements.

The entrance requirement for the Southern Oregon Normal school is graduation from a standard four-year high school or its equivalent, such equivalency to be determined by a faculty committee on credentials. Registration will be facilitated if students will submit their credentials to the registrar two weeks before the date of their matriculation.

Ninety-six credits are required for graduation. A credit is defined as one hour of prepared class work, or if a laboratory subject, of at least two periods a week taken for not less than 12 weeks.

Full credit is given for all work that is transferable done in any standard institution of higher learning, provided that all students must complete twenty-four weeks of residence work in an Oregon State Normal school for graduation.

A committee on appointments will assist students who make their preparation at the Southern Oregon Normal school to secure placement in the schools of Oregon. Members of the faculty, whose long service in the schools of the state has placed them in close touch with city and district school officials, will serve on this committee.

Field Not Crowded.

Although many young men and women are graduated annually from the normal school, the field is as yet hardly overcrowded. President Churchill explained in his interview. The mortality rate for school teachers is high—so many desert school teaching duties as a result of marriage, failure and sometimes ill health and death. The field is all ways beckoning to newer hands in the thought that teaching standards will be brought to a higher plane.

A number of students from the Southern Oregon Normal, as a result of intensive study there, are now commanding high salaries, especially among the young men, who also have a knowledge of athletics, making them suitable as coaches in addition to regular teaching duties in the smaller schools. Several such men were placed this year and last in eastern Oregon.

The establishment of the school in Ashland is pointed out as a means of great benefit to entire southern Oregon, making it possible for students, unable because of financial reason to attend state colleges and universities, to at least obtain the first two years of regular college work here. Medford students have been taking advantage of the school to a marked degree and the local delegation in Ashland is large.

HEN RELIEF NEEDED SAY MASTER MINDS OF POULTRY INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP) Master minds of the poultry industry have convened here to work out plans for hen relief.

Hen housing conditions are bad, they have found, with chickens living in crowded quarters. Ventilation is terrible and lighting and heating worse. Hens can't do their best work under these conditions and, besides, what will the little chicks grow up to be?

Attending the conference are representatives of the poultry research council, the federal bureau of animal industry, the national poultry council, the United States Egg society, the International Baby Chickens association, the Poultry Science association and the Poultry, Hatcher and Egg association.

EUGENE SENIORS ARE DISCIPLINED

EUGENE, Ore., May 11.—(AP) School officials announced today that 49 members of the senior class at Eugene high school, and several boys and girls from other classes will be suspended for three days, beginning Monday, for defiance Friday of principal Harry Johnson's ruling against the "senior sneak"—a picnic party which the students claim is "traditional."

EUGENE, Ore., May 10.—(AP) Hermiston and Scappoose high school debating teams will meet here for the state championship of Oregon on May 21. Announcement was made yesterday by Dr. Dan E. Clark, secretary of the Oregon High School Debating league, that Hermiston high school was the winner in eastern Oregon, and that Scappoose carried off the honors in the western part of the state.

Better Homes Tour on May 17th Will Be Practical Guidance for Those Planning Future Dwelling

How often have you heard the remark, "If I were to build again I would plan thus and so, but one has to build once to learn how." But why learn at the dear school of experience, when one can profit by the experience of others? Attend the Home Study Tour, and let the home owner tell you and show you the good points that can be included in your home, whether you are building new, remodeling or planning for the future.

One of the aims of Better Homes week is to render aid in making convenient, attractive and wholesome homes accessible to all our families, and to bring to the attention of the community all that modern materials and inventions put at the service of home-makers of moderate means. Plan to bring your family, your neighbors and friends and attend the Home Study Tour, May 17th.

The home of Sheriff and Mrs. Ralph Jennings on the Jacksonville highway, which attracts the attention of the passerby, is just as interesting and attractive inside, too. The interior shows the result of careful planning by Mr. and Mrs. Jennings. Their plans were carefully checked by an architect, which is essential, inasmuch as changes in plans as the house is being built are usually very costly.

This house is a good example of compactness and convenience, without sacrificing attractiveness. Many built-ins are featured, which reduce the amount of furniture necessary, and thereby saves space as well as expense. In the living room there are built-ins on both sides of the fireplace; one side encloses the radio, the other a writing desk. The dining room has a common built-in buffet which occupies all the east wall space and balances the fireplace and built-ins in the living room.

The kitchen features roomy cupboards built to the ceiling and the back porch is roomy, with a built-in fruit cupboard.

The front bedroom has cross ventilation with five Pullman windows on each side.

This house has no wasted space, not even on an attic stairway; a trapdoor with stairs is installed in a large clothes closet. You must see it work to appreciate its convenience.

The Jennings home was featured in an article in a recent issue of the Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

Other homes to be included in the Home Study Tour are as follows:

J. H. Monroe's Monrovia ranch and H. A. Klingler's home, both near Ashland.

The new Pitchett home, and J. H. Tyrell's home on the Jacksonville highway. Emil Dittl's place in Jacksonville and the John Anderson home near Central Point.

At these various homes special features will be emphasized. Watch for a later announcement of the route to be followed.

KANSAS DELUGE SWELLS CREEKS

TOPEKA, Kas., May 11.—(AP) Heavy rains soaked central Kansas last night and sent several streams on rampage. Swollen by an eight-inch downpour, Lime creek went out of its banks at Herington and caused property damage estimated at $250,000.

Three Mexican laborers were reported missing at Herington and the flood waters washed 100 buildings from their foundations. The heavy downpour lasted three hours.

Rains of near cloudburst proportions fell at Salina and nearby vicinity. Gypsum, Kas., southeast of Salina, was flooded by Spring and Gypsum creeks. Water was running waist deep in the main streets of the town today.

SALT LAKE CHAMBER HEARS HILL ARGUMENT DEDICATE LA GRANDE NORMAL JUNE FIFTH

SALT LAKE CITY, May 11.—(AP) Arguments in behalf of the construction of a railroad from Klamath Falls, Ore., to Paxton or Keddie, Cal., to link up the Great Northern and the Western Pacific railroads were presented to the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce yesterday by H. Intruder Mauled by Fred McPherson Taken to Hayloft

How a man's folly will not only find him out but turn upon him when he least expects it, was a moral exposed by W. A. (Bill) Gates this morning at the expense of his friend and business neighbor, Fred McPherson.

According to "Bill," Fred came home from a lodge meeting at an early hour this morning in an absent-minded frame of mind. As he was apparently preparing for bed, he bumped into a man glaring menacingly from the door of his clothes closet. There followed a tussle in which Fred succeeded in accomplishing a complete knockout. It was only after he had triumphantly called Bill over to the house to help him carry the remains to the undertaker, that the local man discovered that the intruder was only the straw man he had built and placed on a down town street intersection to advertise Straw Hat day. The dummy had been placed in his home by some friends, while Mr. McPherson attended lodge.

PLAYERS DELIGHT LITHIA AUDIENCE

An appreciative audience greeted the presentation of "The Dover Road", A. A. Milne comedy, by the Studio Players, local little theatre group, at the Vining theater in Ashland last night.

A number of theater parties from the Southern Oregon Normal school were formed for the evening and congratulations were voiced in person by many of the representative groups of the southern city who attended the show.

The local group of players will begin rehearsals soon on their next offering, "Her Husband's Wife," A. E. Thomas comedy, which will be presented to Medford theater goers within the near future.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES PLANNED BY VETERANS

The committee on arrangements, consisting of representatives of all the local veteran and auxiliary organizations, are now working on plans for the Memorial day exercises to be held in Medford, May 13.

William Lyman, commander of the Grand Army post, is chairman of the committee which takes in heads of eight patriotic groups.

That the exercises will follow closely the precedent established in years past, was a statement made by Colonel Paine, veteran of both the Spanish-American and World wars, who will take an active part in the services.

All patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations are invited to take part in the street parade, which will precede a speaking and musical program in the City park. In case of inclement weather, it is thought that the exercises will be conducted in the Presbyterian church.

Miss Jones was presented a trophy donated by the Lamport Sporting Goods store, representing Helen Willis, world's champion, serving a tennis ball. The runner-up trophy was donated by the Larry Schade Jewelry store. The tournament started a month ago with 12 entrants.

HUSKIES FAVORED TO DEFEAT WEBFOOTERS

SEATTLE, Wash., May 11.—(AP) The University of Washington track team in its first outdoor dual meet of the season was a top heavy favorite to defeat the University of Oregon webfooters in the Washington stadium here today.

A fast track was expected for the cinder artists with ideal weather predicted for this afternoon, but records were not considered as seriously threatened. Sunshine, with a gentle breeze, was the forecast for today.

RETURN OF HAND LIKE OLD TIMES

It will be like old times to see Sallor Jack Wood and Ralph Hand of Yakima, Wash., tangle in a finish match at the armory next Monday night under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge committee. Hand is an old-time favorite of southern Oregon and has wrestled often in this section, winning most of his matches.

Since leaving this section, Hand has not followed the profession as closely, and for a time has been a deputy sheriff. However, he has been keeping in the pink of condition, giving Wood plenty to worry about when they meet each other.

As a special feature, Pat Padelford, local boxing flash, will find a hard match in Jackie McCoy of Seattle, who put up a good fight here a short time ago with Austin Rosander of Ashland. If McCoy is as good as he was that night, Padelford will do good to keep from being knocked out.
