C. LAKE OPENING TO EXCEED ALL FORMER YEARS

The tourist agencies, the railroads, the reservations already made at the lodge and all other indications point out that the coming Crater Lake season, which opens as usual on July 1st, will be greatest in the history of the national park and very much exceed the record-breaking attendance of last year, in the opinion of R. W. Price, general manager and vice-president of the Crater National Park company, who has been in Medford since last Monday getting preliminary affairs in shape for the season's opening.

Reports reaching the city from the national park are that the snow has been melting so fast the past week, or so, that unless there are further heavy falls of snow, the snow will have been gone from the entrance roads to the lodge thru the park on or before July 1st, by the natural process of nature.

The major personnel of employees of the lodge, etc., will as usual be University of Oregon students, and will be for the most part old or experienced employees. The popularity of spending a vacation from July 1 until September 29 earning good pay by working at the various concessions, and under good environment, is a fine thing for the Crater National Park company, as it makes the labor problem of that company an easy one. The fact that the various employees are anxious to come back year after year is also an excellent testimonial of the good treatment accorded to the employees.

In fact, over a month ahead of the season the company has all the preliminary matters ready for the season opening, July 1st.

Mr. Price will leave the city tomorrow morning for home, stopping off enroute at Eugene to sign up a few more U. of O. students, which will make the company's force of lodge, boat and other concessions employees practically complete for the season.

E. C. Solinsky, the park superintendent and Mr. Price are working hand in hand in preparing for the season's opening, regarding which they have had a number of conferences this week.
