

COPCO TENDERS CLERICAL WORK 102 LISTED FOR FAREWELL FOR IS MAGNET FOR GRADUATION IN P. O. CRAWFORD HIGH STUDENTS CLASS OF 1929

It was not an ordinary farewell banquet and the executive in whose honor it was held was not the ordinary executive, attendance, tributes and responses revealed at the farewell banquet and party held last night by the California Oregon Power company in honor of its departing president, Perry O. Crawford, who is soon to take new executive duties in Chicago. Accompanying him last evening were Mrs. Crawford and their three children.

Following a sumptuous repast, in which over 300 members of the organization, parook, T. G. Bradley as toastmaster offered a glowing tribute in honor of Mr. Crawford, telling of the high position he has held and holds in the estimation of every member of the company, including its divisions in Siskiyou, Klamath, Jackson, Josephine and Douglas counties.

"Mr. Crawford is the fifth general manager under whom I have labored," said Mr. Bradley in part, with his voice showing a bit of emotion, "and he is the most loved. Each and every one of us have looked upon him as a personal friend, and because of the interest we feel he has taken in us, we have often come to him in time of need and trouble, and he has given us sympathy. When we needed it, he has given us wise counsel. He has been our friend and I know he will always be the same."

"I first met him," continued Mr. Bradley, "way back in 1916 and he walked, he swam and rode horseback to come to the scene of his labors—the first with this company. He worked hard with his efforts and his work has been crowned with success."

It was with mixed emotions, Mr. Crawford responded and the occasion seemed to have overwhelmed him in the display of good will from his fellow workers, many of whom journeyed miles to wish him well. Every department of the organization was represented in doing honor to a beloved leader, and in his best apparel was even John Kado, who for years has been carrying out the duties of his mental task as office janitor.

"I have been to your parties before, said Mr. Crawford, "but never before had I seen so many gathered together. I regret to leave this organization, the people I feel I actually know and their pleasant associations. The California Oregon Power company has a wonderful reputation and I deem it can be compared favorably with any in the country. It has not been the result of any one person, but of the combined spirit you have so well manifested here tonight. The success of a company can not entirely be relied on the capacity of mentality, but also on emotional development. Without the latter, an organization is cold and dead, but neither quality can exist without the other in bringing about success."

"This gathering stirs me," he continued, "and recalls the days I have spent so happily here, but I am also thrilled in the opportunity that awaits me. It will be a difficult task, and it will be like starting at the bottom, as yet the organization of work I am going to must be made, and I have the chance to make good or fail."

"I know this spirit you have shown tonight will continue, surmount troubles and meet changes, and chances will always come, for without them success can not be realized to its fullest extent. They may be unwelcome changes and they may not be liked, but make the most of them—things that come too easy can hardly be appreciated."

As another token of the high esteem in which Mr. Crawford is held by the members of the organization, he was presented a memory book by Harlan Bosworth. The book contained in its specially decorated pages, the signature of every employee of the company, numbering a half a thousand and perhaps more. Following its presentation, on behalf of the employees, Mr. Crawford was presented with a moving picture camera and Mrs. Crawford and children were presented with the projector and screen. The equipment was of the latest type procurable.

These presentations brought forth well-wish responses from each, and a presentation speech by Lloyd Williamson appeared to especially touch Mr. Crawford, whose voice in responding appeared to break in realizing the full extent of the good will of his hundreds of co-workers.

Dancing followed the early part of the program and was interspersed by novelty numbers, including an one-act drama, "A Night in Chicago," including H. P. Bosworth as Scarface, Lloyd Williamson as Jimmy, D. G. Tyree as P. O. Crawford, and Maude Lantis as "Texas." The skit was well received and was followed by a feature dance by Frances Weisner and Oren Schroeder, a comedy skit by Hazel Hines and Harry Moore, "The Debauch of the Nymphs" was presented by the Fortunette sextette. Music was furnished by Burton Sisters orchestra.

During the course of the meal telegrams to the guest of honor, supposedly from Al Capone, Clero Chamber of Commerce, Amir of Afghanistan and other notables, were read by Frances Bromley in the amusement of the assembled diners. The dinner and entertainment was arranged by Lloyd Williamson.

From a summary of vocational tabulations taken from registration slips of high school students, and those who will enter from junior high in the fall, office work seems to hold the greatest lure for the pupils, as 113 have signified their desire to follow this line of work after the completion of their education. More juniors intend to follow this occupation, as there are now 38 registered in that division. Under the classification of office, bookkeeping, stenography, auditing and typing are included.

Next to office work in popularity is teaching school. Sixty-four are listed here, with 24 juniors and 12 freshmen. Forty-three of those who intend to teach school are majoring in history, that is, taking three years, or six semesters of subjects pertaining to history (or whatever the major is).

Musical students next in line, with 46 students. The chief major in this class is also history, and it is quite surprising to note that from this large group of music. Fifteen juniors are registered in this column, with 13 entering freshmen.

There are 33 students whose interests lean toward engineering, and the same number in business administration. Civil and electrical engineers are included under the heading of engineers.

Agriculture has attracted 25 boys, nine of the juniors, and six of them sophomores. The chief majors of the ariminded group are mathematics and history.

Forestry is rapidly becoming an interesting vocation, and records show that 17 have intentions of taking up the work.

Twenty-three are listed as being interested in nursing, most of them being juniors and freshmen. There are no seniors in the branch. Science and medicine come next in preference with 15 in each. Only five of the "scientists" are majoring in scientific subjects. Juniors and seniors head the list of science, and six seniors in the group of doctors.

Agriculture, electricity, home economics and journalism each have 13, with many of the seniors in the group of electricians. Journalism seems to be one of the favorites of the seniors, as seven are from this class.

The vocations with only one person listed in each were quite numerous, and were of the nature that held little charm for the majority. Among these were beauty specialist, occupational contractor, dairyman, dentist, insurance agent, milliner, navigator, orchardist, outdoor work, public speaking, radio, telegraphy, travel and steel construction.

Two juniors are majoring in science and math, and have hopes of some day attending the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Although approximately 500 stated their interests, there were over 200 that had not decided what line of work they intended to follow. This group was centered in the freshman class. Seventy-six of the 82 students who will enter high school next fall from the junior high school named their choice of vocations.

The commencement exercises of the senior class of the Medford high school will be held Thursday evening, June 6, at 8 o'clock, at the Craterian theater. The main speaker will be Prof. U. G. Duncan, dean of men at Oregon State college.

One hundred and two students are listed to receive their diplomas—the largest graduating class in history of Medford schools. There are 50 girls and 52 boys.

The baccalaureate services will be held at the Presbyterian church Sunday, June 2.

The list of girl graduates is: Maude Abbott, Mary Adamson, Grace Bowman, Frederica Bremer, Virginia Cameron, Vera Childers, Janet Clement, Dorothy Conner, Louise Conner, Rosie Currier, Frances Darr, Viola Dietrich, Allegra Douglas, Ethel Enyeart, Mary Joe Estes, Betty Evanson, Virginia Fick, Jessie Gibbons, Beulah Gore, Georgina Gulovsen, Ruby Hamlin, Fern Harbaugh, Opal Harvey, Ver Dean Harvey, Anna Hawk, Ethel Heglar, Esther Hubler, Elinora Hunder, Leah Inch, Helen Jones, Mildred Lawrence, Helen Mathison, Edith McLaughlin, Gladys Miesner, Margaret O'Neill, Aileen Pierson, Marguerite Porter, Lois Porter, Waneta Reich, Edith Rogers, Helen Rogers, Mabel Scheel, Dorothy Schnebele, Ruth Schow, Musie Mae Shelton, Josephine Waldron, Edith Waltermire, Irene Walker, Ellow Mae Wilson, Vivian Wilson.

EXPECT BEND BOY TO HUSTLE 'PAT'

Interest is high in tomorrow night's boxing card at the armory, and especially in the bout scheduled between Pat Padelford of this city and Ed Edlemann of Bend for six fast rounds. Padelford declares he is in the pink of condition and has serious plans of knocking Edlemann out. But the Bend fighter is well known for knockout punches of his own, and Padelford may be surprised.

Interest is equally as high in the bout between Jackie McCoy of this city and Billie Church of Portland, and these boys are expected to display a good amount of leather. Red Sorenson of Central Point and Frankie Monroe of Portland are also scheduled to put on a fast bout, as well as Joe Corbett of Roseburg and Steamboat Jackson of Klamath Falls.

lanatic flight tomorrow. Armento Lott, sponsor of the flight, announced tonight after all indications were that the plane would hop-off in the morning. Unfavorable weather held up the hop.
