Junior High P. T. A. Honors Incoming Class.

The weather man tried his best to dampen the spirits and test the courage of the P. T. A. benefit Friday night, but the loyal cooperation and undaunted efforts of its workers were redoubted and an enthusiastic audience was present.

A substantial sum was realized from the door receipts. Ice cream and punch, and many newmembers were enrolled.

The graduation classes from Washington Lincoln, Jackson and Roosevelt were given formal recognition and bouquets, and a cordial welcome by the reception committee, who wore jaunty yellow caps of school colors, and escorted them over the building with engaging enthusiasm.

The program was bright and entertaining, consisting of some very beautiful and artistic fancy dance numbers, for which Mrs. Eve Benson, one of our mothers, is deserving of much credit and appreciation.

Miss Betty Brown, the much beloved Medford musician, very generously donated many of the musical accompaniments, assisted by Mrs. Anderson.

Mrs. P. . Crawford gave a talk explaining the work in the radio club for boys, which she organized, and which is proving to be such a fine thing for our boys. The firemen have generously agreed to give two rooms to the boys for their club room, and it is principally for the purpose of furthering this worthy activity that the Junior High P. T. A. put on this benefit Friday night.

ur other reason is Mrs. McNair states, to create a spirit of friendliness among the students, parents, and teachers in this new environment.

Following is the program, which opened with a colorful gypsy scene and dance ensemble.

The Holland Kiddies, Barbara Holt and Gordon Benson, were adorable in their jolly little dance.

The acrobatic act amused and astonished all with its agility and precision.

Pierette, an exquisite ballet ensemble, on toe, in which Marjorie McNair carried the solo theme, supplemented by Baby Gretchen McAllister, was very beautiful with the colors of the rainbow dancing over the white flitting figures in a unique lighting effect.

A vocal solo by Mrs. Richard Mulholland, "A May Morning," was enthusiastically received, and she graciously responded with a second number.

"The Moth and the Flame" by La Murle Beck, was a dance interpretation of wistful beauty.

The Crawford trio were much appreciated. All wondered "What shall we do without them?"

The Golden Girl and Valentine, in the Argentine tongue were 12-year old Marjorie McNair and 13-year-old Noel Benson, Junior High students. This graceful number was executed with unusual skill, and artistic finesse, proving the versatility of the youthful dancers. But, my! How quickly they do grow up these days.

"Columbia Qui Flirt," a dainty little triangle dance was lovely.

"The Raccoon Jazz" by La Vonne Anderson, was snappy and clever and received a good clap.

"The Reapers," a dance interpretation of the beautiful painting, was given by Margaret Mary Mann and Helen Wood.

"Troika," a rollicking little jockey dance by Arlene Ames, La Murle Beck, Marjorie McNair, Noel Benson, delighted the children present and concluded this part of the program.

The grammar school graduates were now called to the platform by the little page, Dorris Ames, who summoned them with a lusty bugle call, after which the little flower girls, so delectable in their tiny ballet costumes, Gretchen McAllister and Shirley Lou Angle, tripped merrily about presenting bouquets, words of welcome, concluded the exercises, and a happy social time followed.

Eve Benson's Pupils Presents Recital In shland.

On Friday evening, May 31st, pupils of the Eve Benson Dancing cademy presented another recital to an overflowing house at the Vining theater, Ashland, and, judging from the hearty applause in response to each number, it was more than evident that the efforts of the dancers appeared to be highly appreciated by the audience. The children were all in excellent form and rendered the dances, both difficult and simple, with easy grace and assurance. The Argentine Tango seemed to draw forth the longest applause, as though a repetition was desired.

"The Night Wind," by Helen Wood, (accompanied by Betty Brown, on the organ) with special lighting, and in all its wierd beauty in dance and music, was greatly appreciated.

The program was practically the same as at the Craterian on May 13 and 14, with two additions—"The Reapers," by Margaret Mann and Helen Wood, a beautiful interpretive dance, including the Angelus at the finish and the Reapers reverent pose. This number, accompanied by Miss Brown, on the organ, and the clear, beautiful chimes, was certainly pretty and impressive from start to finish.

Another new and most effective number, "The Sprite of the Rose," was cleverly rendered by Marjorie McNair. The setting for this dance was indeed beautiful, as the spotlight focused on a huge five-foot rosebud, which slowly opened while the song "Roses of Yesterday" was beautifully sung by Miss Wright and Miss Hager, and the Silver Sprite of the Rose, impersonated by Marjorie McNair, danced out. This was a piquante toe number, to the popular music Pillylicati, with difficult steps very well rendered indeed.

"The Moth," by LaMurle Beck, was exceptionally well rendered, the peculiar attraction to the flame, the fear of being burned, and the singing of both the wings and final collapse, coupled with good toe work, made this number a success.

The Gypsies executed their lively number to perfection.

The Holland Kiddies were perfectly at home with the dance in their wooden shoes.

The Japanese Maids, (with still two substitutes) executed their quaint little dance with lighted lanterns and fans with much grace and rhythm.

The Acrobats did more stunts than ever, with ease and good balance and received a very good hand.

The Jazzy Solo was very well rendered and appeared to meet with good favor.

Pierrette was indeed attractive with the colored wheel lighting and the dainty steps, en pointe, of the dancers. Unfortunately, through illness, one little tot, Barbara Bevan, was absent, making another arrangement necessary, but little Gretchen McAllister, a future ballerina, managed the situation alone and with perfect assurance.

The soft shoe and tap numbers were both accurately and interestingly rendered.

"Columbine Qui Flirt" will always, as has been proved, make an entertaining number if rendered by La Murle Beck, as the Flirt, with Lavon Anderson and Doreen Leverette as suitors. They are all very much at ease in their characters.

"Grolka" was well rendered by Marjorie McNair, La Murle Beck, and Arlene Ames, with their driver, Noel Benson, and was the closing number for one of the most enjoyable programs. Mrs W. H. Anderson played the piano accompaniment for the several numbers; and Miss Betty Brown delighted the audience and the dancers with her exquisite renditions.

The worship period was in charge of Mrs. Louisa Davis, who read Romans 8:31-39 and commented briefly on the passage read. Prayer was offered in gratitude for the work done and for guidance in a new and larger work.

The Goldie Wells group, with Mrs. Clarence Boyd as leader had charge of the program and social hour. The following brief but interesting program was given: A poem, "The Test," was read by Mrs. Al Childers. A paper, "The One Increasing Purpose," by Mrs. R. L. Ray. Monologue, "I Am the New Year," Mrs. Hemstreet. "A new acquaintance, of India," by Mrs. Wilmot, who also gave a summary of the year's work, which showed several pieces of devotional work done outside of the regular offerings taken and sent through the regular channels. The missionary benediction was repeated in closing and the group in charge served delicious refreshments.

Over 30 members were present to enjoy the afternoon, and all agreed it was one of the best meetings of the year.

Based upon the tremendous vogue of linen as a dress material at the southern resorts this year, the finger of fashion points to it as the accepted fabric for spring and summer wear.

The predicted styles in sports wear run to sleeveless and long sleeved separate dresses and ensembles. The colors will probably be varied, ranging from monotones to prints, with a sprinkling of pastels. The prophecy continues to include the linen ensemble with the tucked-in blouse of handkerchief linen in a harmonizing color. Linen dresses for morning or house wear are appearing in rose, tan, pink, blue, green, lavender and yellow.

Linens in prints and embroidered effects will undoubtedly find great popularity as accessories such as shoes, handbags and millinery. The popular linen handbag of the moment is a flat pouch-like affair with rather elaborate embroidery done in wool.
