Central Point is continuing to prosper; there is hardly an empty house in the city and that municipality's chamber of commerce is active, according to Guy Tex, postmaster of that city, when he was in Medford this forenoon. Mr. Tex reported the postoffice has lengthened its two rural free delivery routes by three miles, adding two and one-half miles to one and a half mile to the other. The largest addition includes the Pitt View Acres subdivision on the Pacific highway, three or four miles north of Medford.

TOWNSEND FINDS SATISFACTION IN RANCH PURCHASE

F. W. Townsend of Halifax, N. S., who purchased the Mrs. R. J. Conroy place of 11 acres on Millionaire row, formerly the Prof. Rebec place, last February, arrived yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Townsend. After having looked over the place, which is one of the sightly locations of the valley, and practically all commercial pear orchards, and after having a drive over Medford and part of the valley, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend expressed themselves as more than pleased with their bargain and their choice for a future home.

Mr. Townsend said: "The place is leased for this year to S. W. Richardson. We will return to Halifax in about 10 days, but will come back in the spring or early fall, erect a nice home on the place and settle down to enjoy ourselves.

"When we commenced to look around for a place to live where the climate is good, where we could hunt, fish, play golf and be contented, we heard of Medford, investigated and made up our minds to locate here. I got in communication with C. S. Butterfield, found through him what we believed was just what we wanted and purchased the Conroy place by wire without seeing it, and we are perfectly satisfied with everything.

"When it was known in Halifax we were coming to Medford we heard very favorable reports of the city and valley and they continued all along the line. At Spokane when I handed a telegraph operator a message for Medford, he said: 'That's sure a live city. What they haven't there they don't need.'"

Mr. Townsend was employed by the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad from 1906 o 1914 in engineering work, was with the Saskatchewan government for the next few years, when he entered the employ of the Imperial Oil Refineries, Ltd., as construction engineer at the Regina refinery. He was later sent to Peru to do engineering work for the refineries and then transferred to Halifax, N. S., as chief engineer, where he has been since.

PARK LOOP ROAD OPEN FOR AUTOS

The loop road between Medford and Klamath Falls, through Anna Spring camp in Crater National park, has been opened, according to news contained in a phone message from James E. Grieve at the Prospect hotel resort, to L. C. Garlock, local manager of the state automobile association, that two tourists, the Misses Stewell and Howard of Berkeley, Calif., arrived at the Prospect hotel late this forenoon from Klamath Falls via the loop road. From this it appears that theirs was the first car to come through the loop road this year.

The news that the loop road is open will be welcomed by Medford, Klamath Falls and other motorists throughout the state, who have been looking anxiously forward to making use of this popular route between the two cities.

It is expected that hundreds of Medford and valley motorists will now make trips up to the latter point to enjoy the snow conditions in the park.
