Medford Garden Club Hold Final Meeting

Thursday evening the Medford Garden club held its last formal meeting for the season at the Hotel Medford. There was only a fair attendance, but several new members joined during the past season, bringing the present membership up to 75. Now 75 members helping to beautify Medford can surely help a lot, but if the several thousand others in Medford who love flowers could only realize the help and inspiration that can be derived from associating with garden club enthusiasts and reading the "Better Flowers Magazine," also "Better Homes and Gardens," why there would be a waiting list and the secretary Mrs. Porter, could not sign them up fast enough.

She would have to have an assistant. The president, Mrs. Swigart, advocated discontinuing the regular meetings until autumn, but she does not mean to lose sight of her members by any means. She expects to call informal meetings occasionally that will meet at the homes of members having flowers.

This is a delightful plan and much interest and enthusiasm was manifested, several offering their homes to try it out in. It is hoped to go again to the lovely home of the McCaskies' and Mrs. Swigart. Mrs. E. H. Porter, Mrs. L. E. Williams and Mrs. Louis Ulrich offered hospitality. Mournings were suggested, but late afternoon seemed much better. That remains to be decided.

Her talk was spiced with a wee bit of humor, which told in Med-place to remind every member to properly designate just exactly in what particular she expects to make her garden excel this season and sign on the dotted line and return her contest sheet to Mrs. Bandy soon or sooner. In order that the garden club committee may make their plans and begin laying in their stock of gasolines to enable them to get around to all the gardens competing for prizes this summer. Last year this committee was very faithful in their efforts. The contest proved very interesting and satisfactory. This year we expect it to be "more so" in every way.

Mrs. Swigart gave a report of the Portland Rose Festival which was so wonderful that people from the Atlantic coast were well-repaid for the long trip to see it. Miss Jane Snedler and Mrs. Swigart went from here and regretted that every Garden club member in fact every person in Medford could not have seen and enjoyed it. The chamber of commerce will have a miniature reproduction of the garden flowers arranged by Mrs. Swigart that took first prize in Portland.

Please step in to the chamber of commerce and see this delightful piece of work. The sooner you view it the better as flowers have a habit, like their human contemporaries, of withering as time elapses.

Mrs. Charles Furnas attended the State Federation of Garden Clubs at Corvallis and gave a most interesting report. Her trip was the pattern of economy, said she brought home several interesting books for the members of the club to read.

Her talk was spiced with a wee bit of humor, which told in Med-

Furnas' inimitable way, delighted her hearers, who realized they had made no mistake in sending just her as a delegate from Medford.

There is still time to sign up for a two years' subscription to "Better Homes and Gardens." Don't forget that 10 such subscriptions will bring a lecture note to Medford, who will speak on matters interesting to "flower folks," and it won't cost a cent to hear him—if we get the ten—so send in your dollar to Mrs. E. H. Porter or Mrs. Giddard.

Miss Jane Snedler gave her final report on the Medford flower show and it was worth noting how much the expense was covered to the pleasure derived from the show.

Many business houses in Medford donated prizes without being solicited.

Mrs. Furnas said that of all subjects discussed at the state meeting, "protection of Oregon wild flowers" was most stressed and it needs to be because a large number of people do not think of the future appearance of the state when they see a beautiful flower or shrub but only of their desire for it and pull it up or pluck it with no qualms of conscience whatever.

California protects her wild flowers to such an extent that it's quite evident to an observer when they cross the state line, by the appearance of the flowers and shrubs, compared with those in Oregon.

Sixteen states have Federated Flower and Garden clubs, and 1700 members voted against bill boards.

The Portland Seed Co. sent out 200 packages of tree seeds to Oregon children.

Albany has employed an expert to plan and started upon a 20-year landscaping plan. "Together" is their slogan. Together, they say, is the greatest word in the English language. Much can be accomplished "together."

Some beautiful roses noted by Mrs. Swigart at Portland, where, by the way, she says she was "never treated so well in her life" were the prize winner, Lulu, a flame colored single rose; the Imperial Potentilla, Isobel, Shot Silk, Independence, Day, Golden Emblem, Blenheim, Exquisite, Los Angeles and Hadley.

Sixteen garden clubs competed with Medford, therefore the honor is greater and much credit is due Mrs. Swigart and Miss Snedler.

Mrs. Swigart made a great hit with her tiny French bouquets.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoepfer packed the flowers and they arrived in fine shape. This was done gratis and is appreciated.

Medford must put on its thinking cap and get together on a representative flower and then grow it.

Portland is the "Rose City." McMinnville is renowned for its asters; Grants Pass raises gladioli and is called the "Glad City." Now what shall Medford raise? Shall it be lilies or zinnias or what? If you have a wish on the subject, call or write Mrs. Swigart or Mrs. Porter. The Garden club wants to know your opinion.

Try aspirin or alum to make your cut flowers last longer, a little in the water.

Mrs. Woodcock, Miss Florence Cox and Mrs. Howard Barto drove out to Camp Catharine and spent the day with Mrs. Catharine Law at her ranch up Evans Creek one day during the week. Mrs. Cox is a guest in the city from Des Moines, Iowa, who is visiting here with her mother and brothers.

He is also a member of the Ishmilla drill team and with 146 others is making a tour of the U. S. and Canada with a special train. One of the enjoyments included in his visit here was to see his boyhood chum, "Doc" and Ray Wright. Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Wright of the Cozy Cove ranch were also visited.

OUTSIDE DEMAND FOR LOCAL EGGS EXCEEDS SUPPLY

A startling disclosure of the inability of the local poultry industry to fulfill orders of eggs for out of state points was made yesterday by E. M. Corlies, marketmaster of the city public market. He declared he had received a standing order of 15 cases of eggs every day, but that he has been unable to find a poultryman who is willing to undertake to supply this amount.

He made general search of the city yesterday and learned more eggs were in demand than could be supplied, indicating the time is ripe for a general expansion in the poultry business. He also reported a drought poultry is scarce, especially fryers. A search was made for the latter last week in Medford and throughout the valley, but only a few could be found, far from enough to satisfy the present demand.

Orders for eggs and poultry are common at the market, which also sends out on the average of from four to five truckloads of produce every week to California points.

In addition to this business, the market is always busy filling the needs of local shoppers, who are finding the market an attractive place at which to trade, affording direct contact with the growers of produce, makers of foodstuffs and raisers of meat and poultry.

JULIAETTA, Idaho, June 15—(AP)—Two farmer lads, who admitted that they were "scared stiff" and then ran away, were this village's heroes today—they tracked a gang of desperadoes to their "jungle" after several thousand jumpers, including deputy sheriffs of three states, skilled Indian woodsmen and farmers, were hourly ready to admit that their quarry had eluded them.
