OREGON EXPORTS LESS LAST YEAR THAN DURING '27

Exports of merchandise from Oregon were valued at $69,271,988 in 1928, compared with $84,213,262 in the preceding year, according to figures made public today by the department of commerce.

Wheat ranked first in order of value among the commodities sent from the state to foreign markets during the year, being valued at $27,736,796 compared with $48,443,344 for 1927. Other leading exports with comparative value for 1927 were boards, planks and scantlings, $6,701,432 and $7,103,647; wheat flour, $6,488,482 and $5,197,069; sawed timber (soft-woods), $3,901,968 and $3,677,245; apples in boxes, $3,195,959 and $2,413,736; non-metallic mineral products, $2,992,359 and $2,16,979; logs and hewn timber, $2,943,970 and $1,682,233; wood manufactures, $2,531,235 and $1,749,566; canned and prepared fruits, $2,086,693 and $1,570,400; milk and cream, $2,072,700 and $1,686,875; hops, $1,944,967 and $1,821,674; and machinery, vehicles and parts, $810,432 and $615,605.

Metallic manufactures of metal, chemicals and related products, wool bating suits, coconut oil, prunes, canned salmon, pickled salmon, and other edible animal products were included among the diversified commodities exported from Oregon during 1928.

New Records by Columbia Stars

The most interesting items in the week's new Columbia records are by all odds Ruth Etting and Ethel Waters. Miss Etting sings "The One in the World" and "I'm Walkin' Around in a Dream." Ethel Waters' record presents a consecutive story of a deserted "Birmingham Bertha." The selections, "On With the Show," "Am I Blue?" and "Birmingham Bertha."

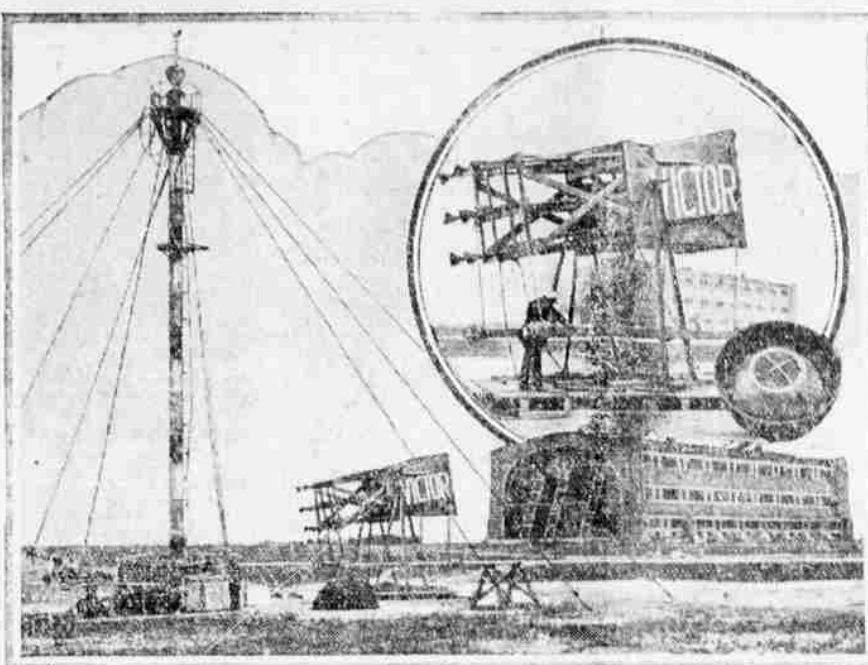

These songs of exceptional merit dominate the new dance records. Paul Specht's two from "Broadway," they're "Singing a Little Love Song" and "Hittin' the Ceiling." Fred Rich and "Nobody But You." Harry Reser renders "Here Comes the Show Boat."

"Do Somethin'" is presented vocally by the Sunshine Boys (Joe and Dan Mooney), also "I'm Croonin' a Tune About June."

New Harbor for Palestine. HAYMA, Palestine.—(AP)—An effort on the part of the harbor, designed to accommodate vessels of 20-foot draft and give 200 acres of anchorage, has been started under British engineers. The project, which will be completed in 1933, will employ 2000 workers. It calls for a breakwater 800 feet long.

GIANT VICTOR SOUND BEACON WILL HELP NAVY AID ZEP

Super-Directional Horn to Facilitate Landing in Possible Fog

As the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin nears the great government pier at Lakehurst, N. J., U. S. Naval officers in charge of the field will give landing instructions to Dr. Hugo Eckener and his crew by means of a giant super-directional horn erected and loaned to the Navy by the Victor Talking Machine Company at a cost of approximately $50,000. In the event that field boundaries are obscured by fog or darkness the Zeppelin can be guided to a safe landing by means of this new Victor sonic system engineers believe. The sound beacon will likewise be used in handling the large crowds expected at the field and an elaborate musical program of Victor records will be heard over a distance of approximately two miles.

In the Navy Communications Department of the Lakehurst hangar, a Western Electric microphone has been installed for the transmission end of the Victor sonic system. This will be under the supervision of Captain E. W. S. Jackson, Commandant of the field, Commander C. E. Rosenthal, Lieutenant G. F. Watson, Communications Officer, Lieutenant R. G. Mayer, and Chief Radio Electrician, Raymond Cole.
