

SARAZEN AND ESPINOZA GRAB TOURNEY LEAD

WINGED FOOT CLUB, MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 28.—(AP)—Playing most of his round in a torrential rain, Hobby Jones lost the lead as well as a dramatic battle with the elements today. He took a 75, three over par for his second round in the national open golf championship and dropped back into a tie for third place with 144, two strokes behind the leaders, Gene Sarazen and Al Espinoza.

DEAL, N. J., June 28.—(AP)—Tom Aycock, Yale star from Jacksonville, Fla., won the national intercollegiate golf championship on the Hollywood course today, defeating the EII captain, Marshall Forrest, in the 36-hole final, 5 up and 4 to play.

WINGED FOOT COUNTRY CLUB, MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 28.—(AP)—The national open golf championship will be played at the Interlachen club, Minneapolis, next year, the United States Golf association announced today.

WINGED FOOT CLUB, MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 28.—(AP)—Blowing the way through a gusty wind for the big field, two sturdy Italian professionals, Gene Sarazen of New York, and Al Espinoza of Chicago, went into an early tie for the lead today with 142, two under par, for the 36-hole or half way mark of the national open golf championship. Sarazen duplicated his brilliant 71 of yesterday, chiefly because he needed only 31 putts on the last nine holes, while close behind him Espinoza came home with a par 72 to add to his fine 70 on the first round. Three putts and a bad five on the short 13th cost Espinoza a golden chance to take the lead.

These two performances left the issue over the leadership up to Bobby Jones, whose sensational 53 led the opening day's battle. The Atlanta amateur knew what he had to do as he prepared for his second round after lunch.

Walter Hagen went to pieces with an 81 for a two-day total of 157. The British open champion joined the defending American open title holder, Johnny Farrell, among the favorites to fall by the wayside.

About New York

By Richard G. Massock.

NEW YORK. — Back in the 1850's a pair of theatrical impresarios named Jarrett and Palmer brought to New York a "marvelous" European ballet corps, one of the first to whirl in skirts on the American stage.

From the glamorous and neighborly stages of the old world they came, from London, Paris, Berlin and Milan, where the ballet was having its golden days, or nights. The night of these sumptuous evenings, therefore, was a rare treat indeed when they first appeared in "The Black Crook," that scandalous extravaganza written especially for them.

Shows that premiere performance the toe-trippers have had their ups and downs in America while their art went, through the various phases that brought it to the present state of speed and upness. Today, thanks to "The Black Crook's" revival in Hoboken and the devotion of S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel to the ballet, students of that form of dancing may review its progress down the past century.

Movie Spectacle

Roxy might be called the present patron of the ballet in the United States. The gyrations of the Hoboken troupe were created and directed by Miss Agnes DeMille, who used to dance in his theater. The original aggregation of luxuriant beauties in "The Black Crook" was foreign trained, the master being one Signor David Costa. But, while the members of the present corps wear the billowing skirts of white tulle long associated with the ballet, and follow the traditional dance forms, their mentor is American, being none other than the daughter of William DeMille, the movie director.

Miss DeMille, who is in her early twenties, came from California three years ago with her mother. And where else but in a movie theater should she have gone for experience?

Despite the American influence, however, Europe still supplies the United States with ballet masters. Roxy just recently imported Leo Maslone, "internationally known choreographer," to take charge of his corps of steppers. Maslone is a Russian and first visited this country in 1915 as principal dancer with the Diaghileff ballet.

Roxy's avowed purpose is to Americanize the ballet, and to that end he is having Maslone study the native dance forms. The art's themselves need no further modernization, nor do their costumes. Both are exceedingly slender and abbreviated in comparison with those of the old days. (Incidentally, the Amazon costumes in "The Black Crook" have been padded, to create, if possible, an illusion.)

The modern ballet has risen from the past, just as ballerinas, like Roxy's 19-year-old Patricia Bowman, rise from the ranks.

Into Oblivion

And speaking, as we were, of continuing the stage apparel of Nora Bayes has been dropped at public attention, attended by only a few of her Broadway friends. The garments, mostly outmoded and her jewelry brought approximately $21,000, which will be used in the education of her three adopted children in a private school on West End avenue.

Screen Life in Hollywood

By Robin Coons.

HOLLYWOOD. — The furious clicking of madly pounded typewriter keys, the incessant staccato of automatic telegraph typewriters bringing in the news of the world, and all the other hectic sounds common to the busy newspaper office of today are vying with sounds and dances of Broadway nights for the attention of talkie microphones.

Not so numerous as the studios of New York's theatrical and cabaret life, which give directors opportunity to promote musical numbers in their talkies, tales of newspaper folk are yet sufficiently plentiful among present and forthcoming productions to indicate that things journalistic will be thoroughly revealed to eyes and ears of picture-goers.

Newsy

"Telling the World" and "What a Night" are immediate forerunners of the present apparent run on journalistic plots. "The Office Scandal," with Phyllis Haver in the role of a sob sister, now has been released by Pathé. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is contributing "Copy" and at Paramount's Long Island studios, "Gentlemen of the Press" is being filmed and recorded.

"Headlines," to be offered by Warners, was written by a Los Angeles newspaper man and will have Grant Withers, a newschaser before he became an actor, in a leading role.

Then there is "The Front Page" — which may start something.

Language and All

For Howard Hughes, the "box" producer-director of Hollywood, still in his early twenties and so immensely wealthy that the making of pictures might seem only a hobby were he not so serious about it, owns the screen rights to the explosive stage melodrama in which the characters frequently speak their minds expressively.

And Hughes, he it is known, is a champion of the "freedom of the screen." What is not censored on the stage, he believes, should not be subject to censorship on the screen. When "The Front Page" goes into production as a talkie, therefore, the highly volatile dialogue that features the stage version will not be gilded in tamer rhetoric.

The play will be "adapted" for talking screen purposes, he says, but alterations made will be only those demanded by the differing techniques of the stage and screen.

Unless Hughes changes his mind — and there is plenty of time for that to occur, as production will not begin until the completion of the play's stage run — the numerous censorship battles of the past may fade into insignificance by comparison.

DEMAND FOR SARGON RAPIDLY SMASHING ALL WORLD'S RECORDS

Big Dayton Laboratories Forced to Increase Capacity To Keep Pace With Ever-Growing Demand — Although Working At Top Speed Often More Than Two Weeks Behind With Orders.

BRANCH PLANT TO BE ESTABLISHED IN CANADA WITHIN SIXTY DAYS

Plans Now Being Made and Perfected To Place Sargon On Sale In Many Foreign Countries—Sales Phenomenal and Unprecedented—California Druggists Alone Order Ten Carloads in Only Sixty Days.

NEVER before, perhaps, in all history has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the marvelous records now being made by Sargon. The amazing success achieved by this new scientific formula in only one year's time simply staggers the imagination.

As a matter of fact, if it were not for the actual facts and figures given out by some of the greatest wholesale and retail drug firms of the country, the story of the success of Sargon would be hard to believe.

The first bottle of Sargon reached the public just a little more than twelve months ago, or to be exact, on April 17th of last year. Its success was immediate and people everywhere it has been introduced have been quick to recognize it as a new and epoch-making product.

In the State of California alone where it was introduced on April 16th of this year, it has required the astonishing total of nine solid carloads, approximately 200,000 bottles of Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, to supply the tremendous demands during the first 60 days after it was placed on the market. On May 31st, or in only seven weeks' time, dealers were reporting that stocks were exhausted and an order was received for the tenth carload, making a grand total of 243,000 bottles ordered for this one state in 60 days' time. The demand in many other states has been correspondingly large, population considered.

As an illustration, approximately 200,000 bottles have been sold and distributed by Kansas City wholesale and retail firms in only eleven months, or an average of almost one bottle for every family in the whole state of Kansas.

Texas dealers required nine carloads within four months after its introduction to supply the demands in the Lone Star State. In the Northwest the demand has been so overwhelming that the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, are selling Sargon at the rate of 150,000 per year at retail, to say nothing of the immense wholesale distribution.

These are only a few of the new sales records established in widely separated sections of the country in the twenty states where Sargon has been introduced and the business is being expanded as rapidly as possible to make the distribution of Sargon nation-wide in its scope.

The fame of Sargon, however, has already gone far beyond the limits of international boudry lines and many foreign countries are clamoring for it. So insistent has become this demand that plans have already been made to establish a branch plant in Canada within the next sixty days. Plans are also being perfected and trade marks have been copyrighted in all leading countries so that it is easily within the realm of possibility that Sargon will become a household word throughout the entire civilized world, with an annual sales volume of from 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 bottles. This requires no vivid stretch of the imagination, for the reason that this new scientific formula is now generally conceded to be unquestionably the one great outstanding health-giving remedy of the age, with an unsurpassed scientific background, bridging the gap between old-fashioned, moss-grown beliefs and modern scientific truths.

Why this phenomenal success? Why has Sargon become the sensation of the drug trade and a household word in every state and section wherever it is known?

The answer is simple. Sargon is a new kind of medicine. It is unlike any other medicine ever placed on the American market, representing, as it does, the very latest knowledge of medical science—on modern therapy.

Back of Sargon's triumph in the drug stores is Sargon's triumph in the homes—for it is restoring health to untold thousands by methods undreamed of only a few years ago.

Not only has it restored countless thousands to renewed health, strength and vigor, but it has lifted other thousands of depressed, discouraged, half-sick men and women out of the throes of despondency and has given them a new lease on life and a renewed zest for living.

Sargon may be obtained in Medford from the Magill Drug Co. Paid adv.
