MRS. HUBBARD IS NAMED PRESIDENT NEW LADY LIONS

With the ladies officially joining the ranks of Lionism for the first time here, installation of officers for the newly organized "Keepers of the Den," the women's auxiliary of the club followed the regular installation of club officers at a social evening held last night at Dreamland hall.

The ladies night affair started off with a banquet served in Dreamland hall under the direction of Lion Harold McCredie. This was followed by the double installations after which the "Keepers of the Den" presented a clever burlesque on a Lions club meeting.

Officers of the Lions club installed for the coming year by Deputy District Governor Ernest L. Scott were: H. T. Hubbard, president; Mark Jarmin, first vice-president; Charles Reames, second vice-president; J. Verne Shankle, secretary-treasurer; R. H. Mulholland, lion tamer; Earl Davis, tail twister; J. O. Grey, Allen Smith, E. W. Hoffman and Dr. L. D. Inskeep, directors.

Officers for the Keepers of the den were: Mrs. H. T. Hubbard, president; Mrs. R. W. Kiester, vice-president; Mrs. E. L. Scott, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. O. O. Nichols sergeant at arms.

Stunts and dancing were enjoyed for the remainder of the evening with the Burton Sisters furnishing the music.

EAT VARIED, BALANCED FOODS

Use a Dash of Sugar to Make Many Foods Delightful

Modern science emphasizes that a limited diet is monotonous and that it is bad for us. For enjoyment and for health, eat varied, balanced foods.

The greatest ally of the balanced diet is flavor. Good cooking is the foundation of healthful eating. The woman in the home is the guardian of our diet, and thus of our health.

Learn the secret of a dash of sugar in making cereals, fruits and milk desserts delicious. Try also the old secret of delicious cookery just rediscovered by four women cooking experts working in a New York skyscraper. Add a tablespoon of sugar to vegetables while they are cooking in a small amount of water. Note how the vegetables improve in color, in freshness and in flavor. The dash of sugar does not make the vegetables taste sweet. It makes them more delightfully their own natural vegetable selves than ever.

Slimness has gone out of date. The angular figure is no longer fashionable. Don't gorge and don't limit your family's diet to a few foods. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

for the Love of a Lady

by Jeffery Farnol

SYNOPSIS: Sir John Gayford appropriates the name of his cousin, Richard, to carry on a battle of falsehood against women. Sir Richard discovers it through an accusation by Helen D'Arcy, a beautiful heiress. He makes his simple guise a Lorelei-like and promptly receives a challenge to duel. Captain Despard and Viscount Brotherhurst plot with Julian to win the D'Arcy fortune by forcing Helen into marriage. Julian loses treachery and passes a mysterious note to a plant-bored Richard. Intrigue, a little gypsy girl—and a lot of it results in uncommon reward.

Chapter 5

A SMILE FROM DIANA

MR. BATTLEBY hesitated, made as if to speak, thought better of it, gulped and went; whereupon the little gypsy hooted in shrill derision until Sir Richard closed her rosy mouth with finger and thumb.

"Not so, madam!" said he, "safer the fellow to go; Shuri, if you must poach, why not keep to Guyford's?"

"'Cause there be's no precious fillie to poach there!"

"Ay, true enough, child," he answered and glancing up saw Helen approaching across the green; but, marvel of marvels, she was smiling while in her grey eyes was such a look as woke in him a growing wonderment.

"So you are not drunk, Sir Richard!" said she, at last.

"The day is still young," he answered, but Helen shook her head.

"I begin to find you out," she retorted, "And pray who is this?"

"An elfin, ma'm; a sprite dared to trespass on Sir John Parret's sacred precincts."

"And the reason why you knocked down Sir John Paret's loud-voiced bailiff. And what is your elfin's name?"

"Shuri Camio—or Love. Stand up, child," he commanded, "make your reverence to the lady."

So the child made a bobbing curtsey.

"A pretty child!" said my lady. "Will come to me, Shuri?"

"No!" answered Shuri.

"And why not, child?"

"Bekos I likes him best."

"Now tell me, Shuri, why do you like him best?"

"Bekos he be's a man for sure. "I likes you too when you laughs!" said she and then she sniffed suddenly.

"Oh—bacon! And I do be famished, brother!"

"So am I!" said my lady.

Sir Richard forthwith called: "House, Jonas, house!"

And forth rolled a cheery man who beamed and cocked a jovial eye; but beholding my lady he halted, somewhat taken aback.

"Jonas, we want breakfast at once—in the garden among your flowers."

And thus, with the gypsy child between them, they came into the garden behind the tavern.

In a shady corner of the garden, deep-bowered in honeysuckle, was an arbour, beholding which Shuri laughed and capered in elfin joy and drew my lady and Sir Richard thither; and here presently came Jonas, the landlord, bearing a well-laden tray.

Sir Richard, forgetful of the savoury viands before him, sat viewing my lady with thoughtful eyes, until Shuri finally spoke:

"Oh, brother, be's us never going to eat?"

Sir Richard started and took up knife and fork, my lady laughed and commenced to pour the coffee.

So they breakfasted together right merrily, by reason of little Shuri's trilling laughter, impish looks and odd questions; a truly memorable meal, more especially for Sir Richard, who beheld the transformation of stately goddess into unaffected girl; indeed my lady was a revelation, wherefore he watched her and forgot all else.

Richard, fascinated by Helen's gracious smile, stared at her intently.

"Well, ma'm?"

"Despite this youthful bravado, I sense some small promise of better things—should you ever grow up."

Thus they talked, viewing each other with dispassionate yet growing interest until little Shuri, having finished her meal, looked about for something to amuse her, and thus espied Sir Richard's ring, a signet-ring he wore upon his left hand; therefore she began to touch and caress this hand very gently, finally contrived to slip off the ring altogether and sat staring at the shining thing in gleeful ecstasy, until it slipped, fell to the floor and rolled out of the arbour.

Thus Sir Richard was presently aware of a startled cry, "Eh!" he exclaimed. "Why, where's the child?"

"Oh, brother, here I be's—come quick! A big man goes for to take your ring!"

Up rose Sir Richard, wondering, stepped out of the arbour and came face to face with Captain Despard, a resplendent figure from top to toe, who stood with the ring on his palm. The captain tendered the ring with a profound obeisance.

"Ah, Sir Richard," said he, "'tis a quaint piece." Sir Richard took the ring, slipped it upon his finger and bowed in turn.

"Shuri!" cried a voice and they beheld an old woman watching them. Tall and gaunt she was, and bore herself with a strange pride, at sight of whom the child uttered a joyous greeting and next moment was folded in the woman's long arms; for a moment they talked together, then, clasping Shuri's hand, the old woman approached Sir Richard.

"For my dearie Dubbleskey," said she with solemn gesture, "Truffeni Camio calls blessing on ye Guyford o' Weare. . . . But old Truffeni, as has 'the sight,' warns ye. Look ye now, and mark! . . . One!" and she stabbed finger at Despard, "Two!" and pointed at my lady. "Three!" at Sir Richard. "And three shall, one day, be two—but I hear Death creep in the green—a dead man—and one as runs for hiding to the poor folk. See—look yonder!" And she pointed to a strange, small black cloud. "Death!" she whispered. "I see fetters—a prison cell— Ah, but true love shall find a way! And—see there, Guyford o' Weare—above ye! 'Tis the Hand o' Glory!"

Sir Richard saw the small cloud, sailing directly above him, now glowed with a great and wonderful radiance.

"My! you look lovely to-night"

SHE knew the compliment to be true—for the last pimple had vanished.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you must realize that the logical cause may come from the blood.

A clear, smooth, velvety skin bespeaks loveliness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. Hope, joy, happiness, and even love, may depend on the possession of a clear, unblemished skin.

On the other hand—skin eruptions are outward evidences of the condition within. Authorities state it is an indication that the body's power of resistance to disease and infection is low. Meaning, that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

S.S.S.

When you get your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to diseases.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for improving the appetite, building strength, and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, by increasing the red-cells of the blood.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

JULY 4—

A Day Worth Celebrating

Every nation has in its history certain events of which it is justly proud. But among all the patriotic episodes in the life of all the nations, where is any which, judged by the vastness and significance of its results, is comparable with the signing of America's Declaration of Independence?

May the future of our nation be fashioned with a vision as magnificent and ideals as worthy as those which, in 1776, made possible the amazing advancement that has taken place since that time!

This bank, joining in observing Independence Day, will transact no business on Thursday, July 4.
