

Redskins Revel In Spotlight of Klamath Congress Ceremonies As Palefaces Watch From Sidelines

(By Mary Greiner)

White folks from all over Southern Oregon gathered at Klamath Falls for the fourth, to see the Indians on parade. It was the second day of the second annual Indian congress of the west. The white folks showed by their applause that they enjoyed the spectacle. The red men showed by their reactions that they enjoyed the applause and admiration, delightfully more.

There was a time when the white man would go out of his way to avoid meeting the Indians. Yesterday he traveled miles and stood for hours on the hot streets to see the tribes in review. And it was worth seeing.

Leading the parade down the streets of Klamath Falls, was that venerable old gentleman, Captain O. C. Applegate, and other white veterans of the Modoc war. Back of them, in an automobile, rode a group of aged Modoc Indians, who fought in the same war.

Striking young Indian bucks in their feathered head-dresses, fringed buckskin suits and colorful kerchiefs rode through the city astride their decorated horses. Beautiful beaded collars and trappings.

There were delegates of the Modoc tribe, the Klamaths, the Warm Springs, the Yaki, the Nez Perce, the Umatilla and the Klamath, all in their different districts.

There were beautiful young Indian girls, also riding horseback, and young Indian mothers with babies on their backs. There were fat squaws, whose rolls of magnificent aprons spread generously over the entire back of the ponies and mad up for any further lack of decoration.

ASHLAND HOST HUGE THRONG FOURTH OF JULY

Parade Feature of Program — Girls Float Wins First Prize — Legion Second — Elks Third — Historical Flags Displayed.

ASHLAND, Ore., July 5.—(Special.)—Southern Oregon responded to the invitation sent but by Ashland for the Fourth of July, and hundreds of people from over the valley spent the day or some portion of it at the celebration. Easy access by automobile brought many who came with lunch baskets to spend the entire day in beautiful Lathrop park. Cars began arriving early for the street sports and the patriotic parade.

Rotarians had charge of the parade, which was headed by C. D. Jeffrey, who as marshal of the day, rode at the head of the procession, mounted on a fine black horse. The equipment of the city fire department made a fine display, and the city ambulance followed immediately after, fully equipped.

Uncle Sam, in the person of Wirt W. Wright, looked as if he had added inches to his height in his inimitable impersonation. Upon the heels of Uncle Sam came the Dunsuir band, natty attired in red and white. The organization added much to the enjoyment of the day with their splendid work.

The American Legion was well represented by men in uniform, and following them was a fine representation of Lithians. The Rotarians, who had charge of the parade feature, were headed by a jazz band.

The first of the floats was the one representing the American Legion. White crosses in a field of green brought back the thoughts of the recent losses to so many thousands of homes throughout the land. The second float was one planned and executed by the Camp Fire Girls, who won the first award on their work. In turn came the Kiwanis float, and floats prepared by the Enders company, Epworth League, Ashland Lumber company, Automobile shop, the Baptist Sunday school, Talent Grange, Yoeman, Elhart's, Enders Wholesale company, J. C. Penney company, Royal Neighbors, Helman's bath house, George Carey's plumbing shop, Ashland mills, Bell Telephone & Telegraph company, Isaac's store, First National bank, Bellview district, Elks, Daily Tidings, Ashland band, Gas company, American Legion Auxiliary, Whittle transfer, Shell Oil company, Moon lumber trucks loaded with uncut logs and finished material. While there were fewer decorated floats than usual, there were many fine commercial displays that were attractively arranged.

The first prize on the floats went to the Camp Fire Girls, second place was won by the American Legion and third prize was won by the Elks lodge.

Among the interesting window displays was one at the J. P. Dodge & Sons furniture store, which showed the evolution of the American flag. There were copies of the colonial flags and the official flags of the United States grouped about the American eagle with spread wings. There were also several very interesting flags that saw service in the early history of the state. One, the property of James Spencer, was presented to the first guard that was organized in Oregon. Ivan Applegate was the first commander of the company, and was followed by his brother, O. C. Applegate, and he in turn was followed by A. Helman. The flag was presented to Aden Spencer at the death of Mr. Helman, as he was the only living member of the original company.

A second flag of unusual interest was one that was entirely hand made by early pioneer women, Mrs. George Lane and Mrs. Jaquet, and was raised in Ashland on the Fourth of July, 1863. The flag is now the property of Clarence Lane.

Miss Katherine Vincent was a Medford visitor on Friday.

Miss Lu Myers, her father, J. J. Myers, Miss Fleet Myers and Mr. Duncan left on Wednesday morning on an automobile trip to the coast, where they plan to spend two or three days. They drove first to Crescent City and planned to go north to Randon and Redding, Calif., have arrived in Ashland and are guests at the home of Mrs. Josephine Polcy on Vista street. Mr. and Mrs. Kimmel plan to spend the summer here, and will make various trips to interesting nearby points.

Miss Caroline Tilton, daughter of Dr. C. E. Tilton of Ashland, has been engaged to teach in the Jefferson high school in Portland during the coming year.

Mrs. Georgia Young and daughter, Beverly, and Mrs. Young's house guests, Mrs. Josephson and Miss Inga Wynne, of San Francisco, spent the Fourth of July at Crater lake.

Misses Isabelle Silver and Eva Coy, in company with Miss Coy's brother and sister, spent the Fourth at Diamond lake.

Miss Marian Ady, with her uncle, Will Ponder, of Eugene, were overnight visitors in Ashland late this week en route to Crescent City. They plan to drive north along the coast and will return to Eugene by a more northerly route. Miss Ady returns to Ashland in about three weeks to resume her work at the Southern Oregon Normal school, where she is head of the art department. Miss Ady has had a leave of absence for the past year, while she attended Columbia college for advanced work in her line.

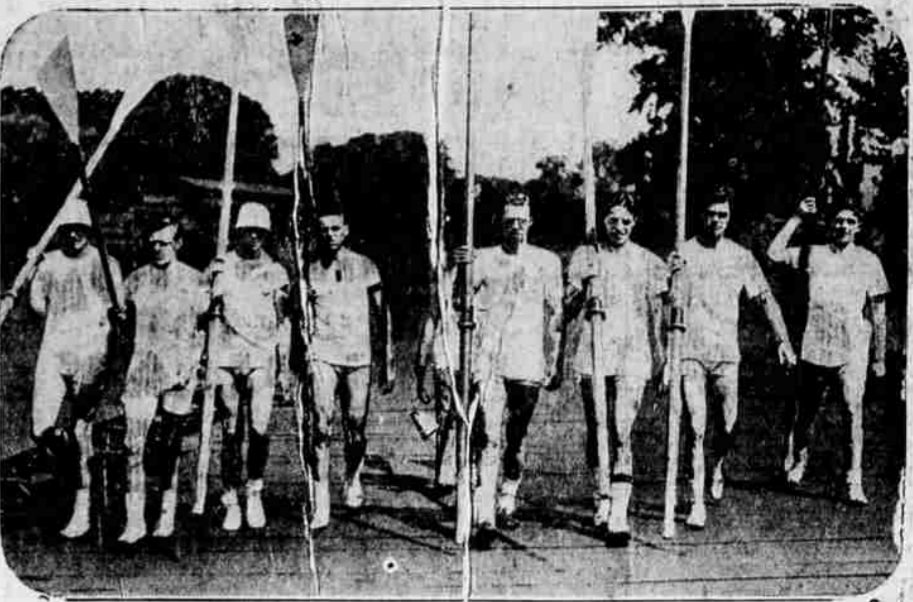

HILLAH SHRINERS PLANNING ANNUAL PICNIC JULY 21ST

Word was received from Roseburg yesterday that final arrangements have been completed for the Shrine picnic which will be held on Sunday, July 21st, at Oak Grove park near Roseburg. This annual event is always largely attended by Shriners from throughout Southern Oregon and Northern California.

In making up the program this year greater attention has been paid to the various entertainment features. A greater range of athletic events in addition to the traditional baseball clash have been arranged and some well known local Shriners have already gone into secret training for the various running, jumping and hurdle events. The prizes and honors awarded in past picnics have always aroused considerable competition and this year's program promises to be even more keenly contested. The men's race, which last year developed a number of dark horses and which required two special heats to decide the winner, is already arousing speculation as to the merits of the various entrants.

As the picnic is each year one of the largest gatherings of its kind attendance is limited to Shriners and their families. Members of other temples visiting in Southern Oregon or Northern California are also eligible to attend this feature event of the summer season. Shriners attending are asked to bring their own lunches but coffee, cold drinks and ice cream will be furnished by Hillah temple. The location of Oak Grove park a few miles south of Roseburg is ideally situated for a picnic of this size and will also enable Hillah temple members residing in the Coos Bay and Eugene districts to attend without a two day trip.

DEFINITE LOCATION OF STAGE DIVISION REMAINS IN DOUBT

The Pickwick stages are still making their headquarters in Medford, although it is not definitely decided whether Medford or Grants Pass will ultimately be the divisional point. It was rumored today that Medford would remain the divisional point for the stage system, as local officials received orders to remain in Medford until further notice.

Orders had been given out that local stage men were to be in Grants Pass by Monday, July 1, but on the evening previous, when there was only one more truckload of supplies to be taken to the new headquarters, a telegram was received saying they were to remain in Medford.

If Grants Pass were chosen as divisional point, the stages would still operate through Medford and also on the Redwood highway from Grants Pass.

"It means much locally to have Pickwick headquarters in Medford," said W. M. Clemenson, of the Jackson hotel this morning "as approximately 2500 stages a year would be lost, an average of eight a day."

Miss Barrigar is supervisor of physical education for the Medford schools and recently inaugurated a celebration which is to become an annual event here. She is popular among both students and residents of this district.

Mr. Jones, local architect and builder, has been in Medford a year, having come here from the east. He is associated with the Southern Oregon Construction company in planning and constructing the number of fine homes going up in the Glen Oak court division.

Following a brief honeymoon to Devil's Lake and other coast points, the couple will return to Medford. They will move into a bungalow now under construction in the Glen Oak Court division as soon as it is completed. Miss Barrigar will continue her work in the local schools.

GRIFFIN RANCHER HELD FOR LIQUOR

A. R. Rowley of Griffin Creek, who with his mother some time ago, filed a $25,000 suit against the city for alleged water rights, was arrested last night in Ashland while, according to local officers he was making a delivery of two pints of liquor near the open air dance being held in the park. The arrest was made at nine o'clock by Federal Officer Terry Talent and Deputy Sheriff Paul Jennings.

The officers, according to their report, took the man with them back to his cache where they found five more pints of liquor. Taking this with them, they placed Rowley in jail last night. He was scheduled to come up for a hearing before Judge Roberts at Ashland this afternoon. That Mr. Rowley has been under surveillance for some time, was a statement made by Officer Talent today.
