ONE OUGHT TO PAY FOR THIS SMILE and, come to think about it, most of us do. That is, we usually pay plenty to see Anita Page, young movie star, smile and do other things on the silver screen. But she's worth a few peeps.

UNUSUAL IN STRUCTURE is this Minneapolis, Minn., building. It's the new Foshay building, patterned after the Washington Monument, that towers beautifully 32 stories high.

IT'S JUST A PRACTICE WAR, this booming of cannon pictured here. But what a scene it makes, and how it does bring back memories. Regiments from Fort Story, Virginia Beach, Va., are pictured firing the "G. F. P. rifles" which have been installed for future defense of the Virginia coast.

A PRETTY GIRL AND A PRETTY WOLF-HOUND make a very pretty picture, don't you think? The charming brunet above is Miss Maria Hortensia Diaz de Medina, daughter of the minister of Bolivia, very popular in Washington society. And Nicholas is too.

BACK TO INDIA went Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Indian poet and philosopher, after a visit to the United States. His chief observation of this country was that the present generation lives too fast a pace.

FOURTEEN CENTURIES OLD IS THIS WELL in the historic courtyard of the Abbey of Monte Cassino in Italy. It stands out artistically in its beautiful surroundings and is one of the chief points of interest to thousands of tourists each year.

FESTIVAL DAYS IN SPAIN mean gadding about the country in a covered wagon, drawn by oxen, and just gobs of fun at every stop. Above is a group of Spanish señoritas with their tambourines, black sailor hats and fluffy skirts on their way to make whoopee.

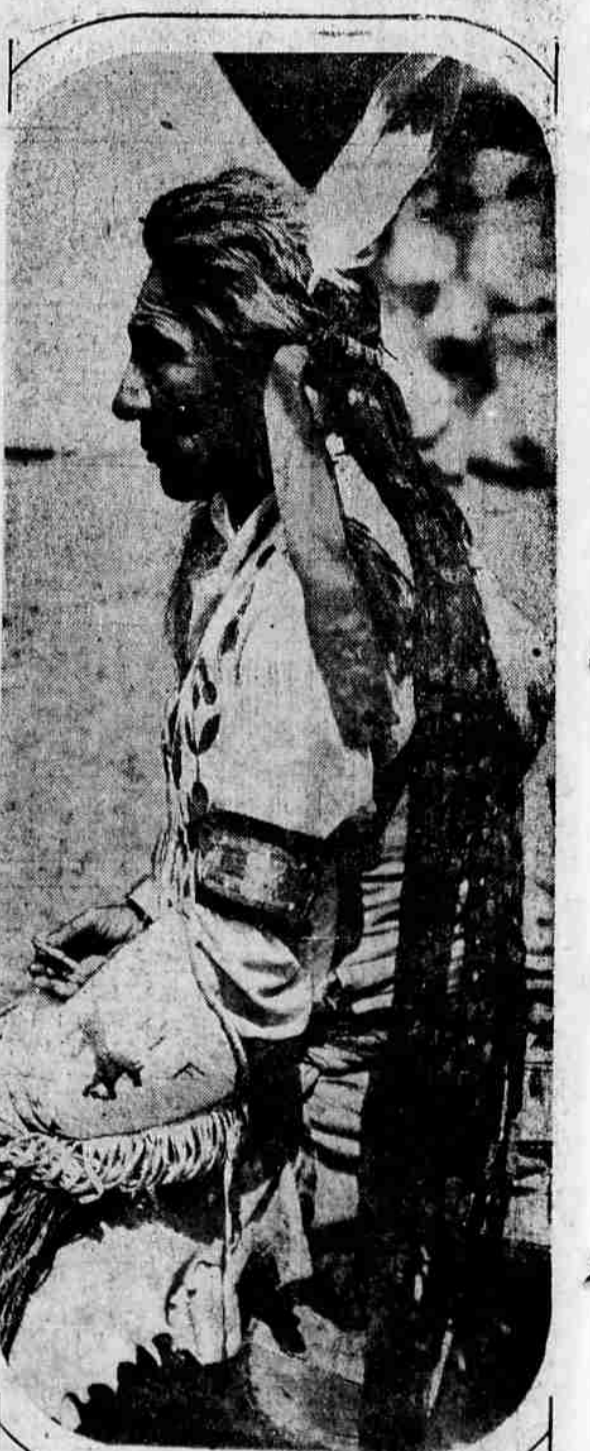

WHEN 1,320,000,000 CANDLEPOWER OF LIGHT was focused on Niagara Falls, this night scene of the thundering water was made possible. Bursting fireworks over the gorge aided in the effect. The mighty cataract was illuminated in this fashion, in celebration of Niagara Falls International Festival of Light, by W. D'Arcy Ryan, General Electric Company illumination wizard.

A STRIKING BRIDE did Miss Esther Christiansen, daughter of the Danish consul at Cleveland, O., make when she married Charles J. Young, son of Owen D. Young, chairman of the reparations commission. She is pictured here in bridal veil.

STYLES CHANGE, even in the number of bracelets worn. Unlike the 1840 girl who wore only one, lovely Doris Hill, of the cinemas, features eight such trinkets here.

IT'S SOME "BACK ORNAMENTAL PIECE" of hair that this aged Indian on the Glacier National Park wears. It is a prized part of the full dress attire he sports for tourists. The back piece was braided from locks of hair given him by dozens of flappers who have visited the park.

ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CATHEDRALS in the world is this one in the ancient city of Taxco in Mexico. It was built in 1720 and stands today as originally finished. Its architecture is recognized as the finest of its kind.
