

FOG BLINDS PLANE PATH TO AZORES

Pathfinder Crew Unable to See Ocean—Saw Ships Tuesday Morning—Dropped Low to Attract Attention—Minor Storms Experienced—Kept to Great Height.

By Capt. Lewis A. Yancey (As told to the Associated Press correspondent) SANTANDEI, Spain, July 10.—(P)—Until we were very near the Azores we were not able to see the sea. During the night I took the controls from Williams, who had been slightly ill and went to sleep. At about 2 or 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, when we were about 250 miles from the Azores the fog cleared somewhat and I saw a ship beneath us. I was unable to distinguish its nationality, but I dropped down almost vertically until I was just over its prop, letting its crew know by my maneuvers that I wanted them to broadcast our position for those who would be waiting to hear from us. The brisk descent awoke Williams, who told me not to do that any more, since it might cost us dear. We experienced two storms of little importance during the trip, one of these at 6 a. m. Tuesday and the other at 8 a. m. Both drove us somewhat off our course, and upon the occasion of the latter we escaped its full force by climbing to an altitude which at times was 12,000 feet. This extreme height continued until we passed Poroto and Cape Ortega, when we flew lower, the field of vision becoming much clearer.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—Take it from the wives of the crew of the monoplane Pathfinder, a woman can get used to anything—even to being the wife of an aviator. Not once during the long hours that the Maine-to-Rome plane remained unscathed over the Atlantic did Mrs. Roger Q. Williams and Mrs. Lewis Yancey display any signs of nerves. Mrs. Williams explained: "You can get used to everything, even being married to an aviator, particularly if you have the supreme confidence that I have always had in Roger." Mrs. Yancey echoed these views and added: "You have to be calm being married to a man like mine. He's trained me to keep my head. I'll admit I felt a little shaky when I kissed him goodbye, but I didn't let Lewis see it. I didn't dare."

The postponement was at the request of Walker, who said that he had been unable to get into training as soon as he had planned.

SPORTS CHAMPIONS CUT ATHLETIC LEAD BY TWO GAMES

Mack's Distress Heightened by Chicago Debauché—Ruth Provides Eighteenth Homer—Jim Bottomley Snares Pair for Circuit.

By William J. Chipman Associated Press Sports Writer. Just when it seemed that Connie Mack was headed for open country where even his rear-guard would be safe from any Yankee thrust, the Athletics began absorbing tips on the chin from the humble White Sox. The champion Yankees perversely chose the exact moment of Mr. Mack's greatest distress to launch a series of raids upon the Browns. The Huguenots won three out of four in St. Louis as the Macks dropped three out of four in Chicago, and by this assured sharecropper full games from the Athletics in one brief series. The Macks were out front this morning with a margin of seven and one-half games. The Philadelphia host still has little to worry about, but soon may have plenty unless the brakes can be applied. The Tanks had to call on three of their first-string pitchers to shade the Browns by 8 to 7 in the get-away game at St. Louis yesterday, but Herb Pennock had enough stuff to register a troublesome third out in the ninth and the champions were saved. Babe Ruth provided the Yankee mascot yesterday with his eighteenth home run and a triple. The Athletic reverse at Chicago was brought about by a double failure—the Mackmen at bat and Jack Quinn in the box. Urban Faber held the Philadelphians to eight hits to win by 6 to 4. Washington shaded Detroit by 2 to 1, but the Boston-Cleveland game was rained out. The Pirates gained a bit of breathing space for themselves by dropping the Robins, 3 to 1, at Ebbets field as the Braves draped the Cubs on the ropes, 6 to 2, for the second time in three games. These two results increased the lead of the Pirates to one and one-half games, but the Giants gave the one-two teams further cause to worry by cleaning up their fourth straight against the Reds, 8 to 5. Long George Kelly celebrated at the Polo grounds with two home runs, which accounted for all the Cincinnati scoring. Fred Lindstrom and Andy Cohen collaborated in driving in seven of the eight Giants runs on three hits between them. Cohen got only one of these but it was a home run with one on base. Jack Hendricks and six baserunners were removed from the premises for thinking out loud on the bench. Two circuit drives by Jim Bottomley enabled the Cardinals to defeat Philadelphia. The score was 7 to 4 in ten innings. Bottomley contributing his second homer in the final round with two on base after Frankie O'Doul had tied the score for the Phils with a drive over the right field wall in the eighth.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—Mrs. Yancey echoed these views and added: "You have to be calm being married to a man like mine. He's trained me to keep my head. I'll admit I felt a little shaky when I kissed him goodbye, but I didn't let Lewis see it. I didn't dare."

Gus Sonnenberg

BOSTON, July 10.—(P)—Gus Sonnenberg took in another notch today in the diamond champion's belt, after turning back the challenge of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, from whom he wrested the championship six months ago. Twenty-five thousand customers crowded Fenway park and paid $50,000 to see the second encounter last night. The former Dartmouth football player suffered the first fall of his 18 month's mat career last night, but came back with the famous flying tackle he borrowed from the gridiron to flatten Lewis twice in 22 minutes. Lewis successfully avoided Sonnenberg's butting charges at the start. With 17 minutes gone, he jumped aside from one of the champion's charges so neatly that Sonnenberg nose-dived to the mat. The "strangler" jumped on him and obtained a breast lock for the first fall. Sonnenberg came back fighting mad, but almost lost the match several times when Lewis clamped a headlock on him. Finally, however, he butted successfully to take the second fall in 13 minutes. The deciding fall came three minutes later after Lewis had knocked Sonnenberg out of the ring. After the match two Chicago promoters, Joe Coffey and "Doc" Krone, announced that Sonnenberg would defend his title at Chicago in September against an opponent to be selected by the Illinois athletic commission.
