BENJAMIN F. JOY HAD INTERESTING AND USEFUL LIFE

(By A. P. Starnett.) The writer, who yesterday morning performed the sad duty of attending the funeral services of the late Benjamin Franklin Joy, who died Monday, July 8, at the Pythian home at Vancouver, Wash., believes that the deceased, who was an honorable and lovable old gentleman, favorably known to a multitude of Jackson county citizens, is deserving of a more extended sketch of his career and demise, than the brief obituary announcement in the Tuesday press. Mr. Joy, who was affectionately known by his legion of friends as "Dad," was born in the state of Maine about 48 years ago and attained manhood while the Civil war was in progress. He enlisted in the 10th Maine Infantry but how long he served is a matter the writer is unable to state. For many years after the close of the war he was a soldier of fortune, sailed most of the ocean and visited many foreign countries. Remaining tired of wandering in foreign lands he returned to the United States and took up the profession of botany, later becoming an expert florist and horticulturist, and followed this line of work for many years. In middle life he came to the Pacific coast where he surrendered to the lure of mining for gold, and for many years he prospected the mountains and gulches of northern California and southern Oregon with varied success. About 16 years ago Mr. Joy came up mining and came to Jackson county where he resumed his work in horticulture, specializing in a variety of fruit trees, following this line of work until reaching the age of 81, when he became too feeble to perform the manual labor attendant to the occupation, and entered the Pythian home at Vancouver where he remained a resident until his death. In following his vocation through the orchard districts of Jackson county, Mr. Joy formed an extensive and favorable acquaintance, and as the years rolled by this acquaintanceship expanded until almost every resident of the orchard belt came to know Mr. Joy, whose happy nature, strict honesty and integrity, willing disposition to render assistance to the needy and distressed, won him the enduring love and respect of a united multitude. Mr. Joy had married three times, and through the angel of death had suffered the loss of each wife, as well as five children who passed away in infancy. His only surviving relative is an aged sister, Mrs. Henry H. Howe of New Haven, Conn.

The deceased was a devout member of the local Knights of Pythias, the D. O. K. C. and Pythian societies, and up to a short time before his passing he never failed to avail himself of every opportunity to attend sessions of those societies in both Vancouver and Portland. It was his expressed wish that when he passed from this life his remains should be interred in the valley he adored and the burial service of the Knights of Pythias be used at the grave, as in accordance with this desire the body was shipped to Medford Wednesday and Thursday morning services were held at Conger's funeral parlors, attended by a large concourse of Knights of Pythias and many friends. Rev. Wm. B. Hamilton read the Episcopal burial service, W. H. Garland sang two beautiful hymns and E. W. Jacobs gave a brief sketch of the deceased's life. The interment was in the Jacksonville cemetery where the Knights of Pythias burial service was conducted at the grave. In conclusion it might be proper to state that Mr. Joy's five-year residence at the Pythian home culminated in the present beautiful landscape and floral attractiveness of the grounds surrounding the institution. It was under his personal direction that this work was accomplished. No resident of the home was more honored and loved than "Dad" Joy. Peace to his ashes.

The Neaforth's crew was saved.

MEDFORD FOURTH OREGON BUILDING FOR MONTH JUNE

A tabulation of building permits issued by 105 Pacific coast cities during the first six months of 1929, and compiled by S. W. Strauss & Co., shows a total of 64,441 permits, aggregating $215,807,718. The first six months of 1928 shows an increase of approximately $100,000. The increase for the month of June this year is about $5,000,000 over that of 1928. British Columbia shows the greatest gain during the first six months with a 70 per cent gain over last year. Arizona reported a 27 per cent gain and Oregon a 24 per cent loss. An increase of 19 per cent was made in Utah. Portland is sixth on the list of the 10 highest cities on the coast, with a decrease of 25 per cent below the 1928 report, and 50 per cent under June last year.

Los Angeles is listed first, with a 30 per cent increase over last year in the six months' rating, but 12 per cent below the figures recorded for last June. The total for Los Angeles represents 37 per cent of the total for the 65 California cities. Seattle comes third with a 12 per cent reduction. In Oregon, Portland issued 644 permits during June. Klamath Falls is listed second with 68, Salem third with 35, and Medford fourth with 22. The six months' period for 1929 shows the same rating. During the first six months of 1928, Salem was second and Klamath Falls third. Of the 105 cities which were included in the survey, 45 showed an increase for the six months and 47 showed gains for June.

VANCOUVERITES LAUD LAKE BUT MISS BEER

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McPhatter and son Frederick and Mr. McPhatter's mother of Vancouver, B. C., who are registered at Merrick's auto camp, have just returned from Crater Lake and say it is the most wonderful sight they have ever seen. This is the first time they have been in California or Oregon—they have just returned from California—and although they liked California they say that Oregon has it beaten for natural scenery as California is so barren. In Portland Mrs. M. McPhatter visited her cousin, Mrs. Louise Broadbent, whom she had not seen for 35 years. The party is leaving for British Columbia today.

SNAKE SPOILS DAY FOR FAY BRAGGS

Fay M. Bragg and his wife, Fay also while enjoying an outing in the Squaw Lake region last Sunday had a bad scare which annoyed both for some time afterwards and is the first authentic story of the rattlesnake season hereabouts.

They were sauntering down a steep trail about a mile and a half distant from the lake, at the foot of which was a small spring, and Mr. Fay had just remarked, "This is always a nice, cool shady spot," when Mrs. Bragg, who was ahead of him, sat down with a sigh of relief on a big knot at the side of the spring. A fraction of a second later she was horrified to see about a foot from her a rattlesnake, which had a button and five rattles, and let out a shriek simultaneous with her jump half way up a nearby tree, which so electrified Mr. Fay, who only recently returned from the state National Guard encampment at Camp Clabog with its booming of big cannons, and who has faced grizzly bears with a calm, that he jumped clear over another tall tree before he came to.

"Whattit!" then excitedly exclaimed Mr. Fay. "It's a little c-c-c-er-crocodile, answered the still shivering with terror Mrs. Fay. "Where?"

WAS FORCED TO QUIT AFTER 38 YEARS SERVICE

William W. Patterson, of 4282 15th St., San Diego, served the Bell Telephone Co. for 38 years, retiring on a pension in 1923. His father before him served the same concern when it was known as the Bell Telegraph Co. before they started the use of phones. Mr.

Patterson's record is a long and enviable one. He is a Mason and a member of the Baptist church. To the San Diego representative he recently made the following remarkable statement: "I was in such poor health six years ago that physicians advised me to quit work entirely. I resigned my position with the Bell Telephone Co. in Chicago, and came West. "I had suffered for 15 years with stomach trouble. I have been in five hospitals for examination and twice for x-ray of the stomach. About the only thing I could retain were milk and the very lightest of foods. And even then I suffered terrible stomach distress after eating. My skin was yellowish and I was always constipated and bilious. At times I was so weak I could hardly stand. I had neuritic pains from head to foot. Headaches, indigestion, and nights were miserable, and continual constipation added to my troubles. Then, when all treatments and medicines failed, I started the Sargol treatment without much hope of its helping me, and I got the surprise of my life. In a few weeks—I am a well man. Only last night I ate a big steak and I honestly believe if I had done this a few weeks ago I would have killed me. I never have the slightest trace of stomach trouble now. I sleep fine and get up rested and refreshed. And every pain of neuritis is gone. I have gained fifteen pounds and am as strong and well and full of pep as I have ever been in my life. I just feel like a new man all over. Sargol Soft Mass Pills ended every bit of my constipation and indigestion. My headaches are gone, my color is good, and I can never say enough for this wonderful treatment." Sargol may be obtained in Medford from the Maxwell Drug Co. (Paid adv.)

"Why there, there and there, the they say in 'The Lions Bear' comedy at the Craterian theater, was the answer as she pointed to the snake, which still lay stretched out by the spring. It seems that Mrs. Bragg's sudden terror had got the jump on the rattler and her shriek had so stupefied it that it was rendered unconscious and had no time to coil and strike. So Mr. Fay sneaked up on the reptile and dispatched it with a club. Then Mrs. Fay came down out of her tree and they went home.

Whether or not Medford will be selected as the location for the proposed five million dollar naval discipline base now under consideration will be practically decided July 18, when the national naval commission, consisting of Rear Admiral Moffatt, and Commanders Rosendahl, Fulton and Marshall of the U. S. Naval department, will visit this city. The names of the commission and the date of their arrival were included in a telegram received at the local chamber of commerce from Senator Fred Steiwer. The party of officials left Washington, D. C., yesterday on their tour of investigation. They will arrive in Medford Monday, July 15, in Seattle and arrive in Medford the following Thursday, July 18. It is thought that they will also spend part of the following day here.

PARIS.—(AP)—City toxicologists have found no warrant for claims that automobiles poison street air with deadly carbon monoxide gas. Samples of atmosphere showed little more of the tasteless, odorless poison than were recorded in 1877.
