DICK DOES BEST FOR WEATHER IN FINAL DAYS HERE

Because of the near approach of his leaving Medford for Duluth, Iowa, to assume his new duties in the U. S. weather bureau service in charge of the Mississippi river work there, and also to set an example for his successor, I. Walter Dick, head of the local weather station, has been putting up a new brand of weather for days past.

William J. Hutchinson, who succeeds Mr. Dick here, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon with his wife and year old son, having returned from San Francisco, where he had been attached to the station at that city for some time past.

CHINESE GIRLS TRAVEL AS AERIAL PASSENGERS

The first Chinese passengers ever carried by the Pacific Air Transport, stopped over in the Medford port this morning from 7:15 to 8 o'clock, en route from their home in San Francisco to Seattle.

While the other passengers on the plane read the San Francisco and Oregon papers, the pretty little Oriental misses devoured their Chinese bulletins and conversed in the tongue of their ancestors.
