

LOST CREEK CLUB JULY MEETING AT C. SEEFIELD HOME

LARK CREEK, Ore., July 25.—(Special)—The Lost Creek Community club will meet this month at the home of Mrs. Charles Seefield.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pech were calling on Mrs. George Brown Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Young transacted business in Medford Friday. Their little grandson, 13 months old, returned home with them to stay a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Arden Tyrrell were Sunday guests at the Frank Furrow home.

Miss Beth Farlow is staying at the Miss Nichols home during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, who are in Portland.

Mrs. Ted Hoffert and children spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Jennie Steehan, near Medford, returning home Saturday.

Wm. Almy, M. D. Bowles and Charles Edler motored to Fish Lake and the Charles Lindsey ranch Sunday. They went up by the McAllister soda springs, returning home by the Dead Indian road and Ashland.

BEAGLE HARVESTS GOOD GRAIN CROP

BEAGLE, July 25.—(Special)—Grain harvesting is well under way in this community. Several farmers have their grain in stacks and every one that's threshing this year reports a good crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis of Bogus River were Sunday visitors at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellis and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Geville Bendure and small son of Ashland were weekend guests at the home of Mrs. Bendure's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zuck and daughter, Fay Ora.

Miss Laura Blackman is spending a few days visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Bigham, near Eagle Point.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gray and family were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nahos and family, Mrs. Knisley and daughter Annette, Mrs. Hilma Nahos, Jack Conger, Lafette Sunderland and Herbert Mayfield.

Prayer meeting was held by Miss Ella Smith Sunday evening and for her subject she used the 19th Psalm. Young people meeting was held by Marie Segwiler, the subject being "Everyday Citizenship."

Mrs. Effie Dollar is spending a few days here visiting with her sister, Mrs. Ruby Mayfield.

For the Love of a Lady

SYNOPSIS: Sir Richard Greyford, striving desperately to clear his name so that he may see Helen D'Arcy, has disappeared from the circle of his few, staunch friends. At the D'Arcy home a brilliant detective is in progress when Titus Oldcraft, the London constable, brings news of an amazing discovery. The cat-sage ring—seen to follow on his steps—has been found at the Highland Arms Inn—in the baggage of Captain Despard. It is hunted, the constable seeks to see the ring and then must cautiously proceed to the constable's quarters to give his message of the ring—this ring is much too small to fit even his smallest finger.

Chapter 28 PRYING EYES

SIR RICHARD, seated at the secret chamber, glanced at the sturdy landlord's troubled face.

"I'm back again, John, though not for long," said he softly. "Captain Despard is hurt, eh, John?"

"Broke 'is arm, sir, and all shook up, so Doctor Samson tells me. 'Bout a hour ago, the pore gen'leman trips and falls downstairs—and him nowise drunk, sir—which be strange."

But Sir Richard held up arresting finger and crossed softly to the judge in the corner and saw:

... Master Oldcraft bowed and obedient to the Viscount's gesture,

The pistol-barrel yielded a rolled paper—Julian's last message.

sat down at the table and helped himself to a glass of wine:

"And now, my lord, of 't matter, the business you spoke of this afternoon?"

"Don't shout, man, don't shout!" said the Viscount. He leaned across the table and spoke in rapid, hissing undertone awhile, then Oldcraft questioned him, whispering also:

"... plans all laid—eh, my lord? ... trustworthily fellows? ... ye 't must ... being officer of the law?"

"Shure," cried the Viscount peevishly, "tis why I'm willing to ... to reason. I'll pay ... the Viscount whispered more softly than ever, "have her safely aboard!"

Master Oldcraft rose and crossing softly to an oak press in adjacent corner, came back bearing pen, ink, and paper. The Viscount hesitated, and finally, snatching the pen, wrote what was required, whereupon Master Oldcraft read it through, and folded it into a large pocket-book.

"Merely, my lord, as a matter of ... he checked suddenly as Doctor Samson entered. The Viscount nodded, muttered and went out, clapping the door behind him.

"Hum!" quoth the doctor. "Pray, sir, what is your business with me?"

"Well, doctor," answered Oldcraft, "you attended Mr. Julian Greyford in his illness, I understand."

"I did, sir."

"And you were with him on the day of the murder, doctor, how was he then?"

"Strange, sir very odd—remarkably so!"

"Pray how, doctor?"

"Well, he was highly feverish—his speech was rapid, his looks wild—as though he expected to die!"

"Ah!" murmured Oldcraft. "Expected to die—you left him at the stile leading into Fallowdene Wood. Now did he say aught of importance, give you any message—ha?"

"Well, he left with me his pistol. 'Give this,' says he, 'to cousin Richard and bid him know there's more in it than meets the eye'—or some such nonsense."

"I must charge you to deliver this pistol to Mr. Oldcraft ordered."

"Why, but I pledged myself to give it to Sir Richard—"

"'Tis no matter, Doctor. Sir Richard being the suspected party, 'tis now your very duty to deliver this pistol up to an officer of the law."

"Then so I will, sir."

"I'll call at your house for it, sir—say 10 o'clock tonight, sharp."

"John," said Sir Richard, "what time do you expect Black Nick, tonight?"

"Nick were 'ere an hour or more—in the cellar, sir."

"I must have word with him."

"Then, sir 'a' care as nobody spies ye."

"What matter, John? You forget."

"Ay, I do be gettin' that used to 'ee," nodded John.

So down the narrow stair they crept and along dim passages they sped stealthily, until, rounding sudden corner, they beheld a faint glow, a soft radiance; and now landlord John whistled and thereafter spoke in soft whisper:

"'Tis only me, lad—Sir Richard and me."

Then Black Nick appeared and smiled in joyous greeting.

"'Eed, sir," he exclaimed, starting at Sir Richard. "You look like any—"

"'Hut!" quoth John in sudden warning. "There goes the bell," and nodding, he vanished.

Sir Richard seating himself on convenient keg, clasped Nick on the shoulder, "this night I 'a' business, and you can aid me if you will."

"Why, I'm your man, sir, now as ever."

Then, leaning near, Sir Richard whispered him in such sort that

COVER SPRAY FOR CODLING MOTH IS URGED BY AGENTS

Apples.

The first cover spray for the second brood codling moth worms should be on by August 3rd. Use three pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to the 100 gallons of water. A second cover spray should follow to be on about two weeks later.

Pears.

Those who are planning on only one more cover spray on pears should apply the spray during the week of August 5th to 10th. Otherwise, follow the program as for apples. Two pounds of arsenate of lead to the 100 gallons of water is sufficient for these applications.

Those who have not as yet sprayed with oil for spider mite control, should look at their trees carefully and in case of finding mites in fairly large numbers, a combination spray should be used. One and one-half gallons of summer oil, plus one-half pound of arsenate of lead solution. Do not wait until brown leaves become numerous for injury takes place previous to this stage.

MASTER FORGER JAILED SPOKANE

SPOKANE, Wash., July 25.—(AP) Frank Andrews, described by police as a "master forger," who had kept in the van of federal and state officials for three years, and had scattered bogus checks from one end of the Pacific coast to the other was in jail here today while a widespread search was being gotten under way for a woman of many aliases, who he said had led him into crime.

Once behind the bars Andrews, police said, confessed to an extraordinary system of forgery that had yielded him possibly thousands of dollars and had kept United States department of justice agents, private detectives and city police mystified. He said he posed as a U. S. secret service operative, and many times had cashed checks, ostensibly expense vouchers, signed by W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service bureau at Washington, D. C.

COOS BAY TEACHERS VISIT JACKSONVILLE

JACKSONVILLE, Ore., July 25.—(Special) Mrs. Minnie Herman, Mrs. Wanda Wilcox, Miss Genevieve Crowley and Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett and little daughter enjoyed a very pleasant visit with W. H. Bunch and family over the week end. All except the last mentioned are teachers in the public schools in Coos county who are attending Normal at Ashland. Mr. Bunch served as county superintendent of Coos county.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crites and two daughters from Salem arrived Sunday evening and spent a few days at the home of Mrs. Susanne Carter. Mr. Crites visited the Normal school at Ashland while here.

Mrs. Gertrude Blessing from Homer, Neb., and Mrs. Fred Metz and two children from Portland, were dinner guests Thursday evening at the G. C. Sanden home. Mrs. Blessing and Mrs. Metz were neighbors of Mrs. Sanden a few years back when they all lived in Medford.

Mrs. E. C. Stanwood and grandson Carl left Sunday morning for Crescent City where they intend to spend the rest of the school vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Saltmarsh from south of Medford were callers in our city Monday evening.

Several of the Boy Scouts of troop 35 of Jacksonville, and their scoutmaster, V. T. Wilson, motored to Cannonville swimming hole Monday evening.

Stomach Troubles Headache and Dizziness

If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food, you lose strength, get nervous and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

For 10 years Tanlac has restored to health and activity many thousands who suffered just as you do.

Mrs. Verda Stamps, of 545 Yamhill St., Portland, Ore., says: "After an operation the least thing tired me out and what I ate caused me untold misery. But since the first few doses of Tanlac I haven't had a headache nor gas."

Let Tanlac do for you what it did for this sufferer. It corrects the most obstinate digestive troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels. It restores appetite, vigor and sound sleep.

Tanlac is made of roots, barks and herbs. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

DEATH COMES AS RESCUE NEAR FOR YOUTH IN DESERT

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 25.—(AP) Rescuers reached William Lundberg just too late. Exhausted by three days of unbearable desert temperatures, weakened by a head injury which had rendered him temporarily irrational, and tortured by thirst, he died as aid approached.

The body of the 20-year-old San Diego youth, who came to southern Nevada this summer to build for a rigorous winter of study and play at the United States naval academy in Annapolis, was found late yesterday, 12 miles northwest of Green Monster mine. Lundberg apparently had walked about 75 miles since, crazed with pain and fever, he rushed out of the Potosi mining camp 29 miles southwest of here late Saturday.

OAKLAND AIRPORT HOTEL IS OPENED

OAKLAND, Cal., July 25.—(Special) The Oakland Airport Inn is now in operation, under the management of Harry E. Brown of the Interstate company.

Erected at a cost of approximately $55,000, this 37-room hotel is the first exclusive hotel building to be erected at any American airport. The hotel was built by the board of port commissioners and is leased from the city by the Interstate company. The building is connected to the airport restaurant by a passageway. The restaurant can accommodate 145 diners simultaneously. In addition to the pilots and mechanics who make the hotel their regular living quarters, a sufficient number of rooms is kept in reserve for transient guests. Last week 21 P. A. T. air mail planes landed and took off from this field carrying 71 passengers.

SHAKEUP OF DRY AIDES EXPECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—(AP) The Examiner today said it had learned from "authoritative sources" that sweeping changes would be made in the personnel of federal offices in San Francisco shortly.

The newspaper said that Harry

Smith, special agent of the prohibition department, was slated to head the federal narcotics bureau, succeeding Harry Williamson, who allegedly is slated for transfer to another department of federal service.

An Ottawa, assistant to Prohibition Commissioner James M. Moran, was mentioned to succeed John P. McLaughlin as collector of customs here.

The appointment of a prohibition administrator for northern California was declared to be a matter of question. William G. Walker, Fresno police chief, was declared to be the man in line for the job.
