

QUALITY OF EGGS IS LOWERED THRU HANDLING METHOD

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP) Lemons have gone sky high because the demand in the sweltering eastern states is taking all surplus supplies from the Pacific coast markets.

Eggs, butter, poultry and fresh meats were unchanged. Complaint continues that the hot weather and lack of care in handling were injuring the quality of eggs.

The East Side market had another brisk day. Few of the gardeners irrigate, and as the warm, dry spell is sapping much of the produce, those who have goods of quality to sell were finding no trouble in disposing of them.

Beans, corn on the cob, celery, peaches and green peppers, however, were somewhat cheaper. Tomatoes were becoming more plentiful and the price was turning downward. Apples sold without effort at 30 cents. Loganberry and raspberry stragglers were bringing $1.50 and $2.25, respectively. The first offering of blackberries found buyers at $2. Corn brought $2 to $2.50 for sack of six dozen, beans 5 and 6 cents, celery 80 cents, peaches $1, peppers $1.25, tomatoes $1 to $1.50, cucumbers 75 cents.
