GIVE $1250 CASH TO BEST WOMAN CANNER IN U. S.

Just how good and girlish are Medford women at canning?

This question suggested itself to-day from an announcement of a national canning contest to find the best jar of canned fruit, vegetables or meat in the country. Twelve hundred and fifty dollars in cold cash awaits the woman or girl in the United States whose entry is selected as the best jar of canned food entered in the contest.

The contest, which is sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck agricultural foundation, seeks to acquaint more housewives with the economy and healthfulness of home canned foods. For years the United States department of agriculture and home demonstration agents throughout the country have worked for increased production of native canned foods. It is to further this excellent idea, and at the same time to help absorb the threatened surplus of farm products in many sections, that this canning project was conceived.

Two hundred and twenty-two cash prizes, totaling $525, will be disbursed to winners in the contest, which has three major divisions. Fruit, vegetables and meat.

A number of lesser merchandise prizes will be awarded $250 and one of these will also receive the $1000 sweepstakes prize, thus bringing the total cash prize for the best jar of canned goods in the contest to $1250.

Second prize in each of the three divisions will be $200, third prize $100, and fourth prize $50.

There will also be five prizes of $25 each, 10 prizes of $10 each and 50 prizes of $5 each.

In addition, $100 in cash will be awarded to the home demonstration agent whose county sends in the greatest number of entries, $500 to the agent whose county has the next largest number and $100 to the agent whose county sends in the third largest number of entries.

A number of lesser merchandise prizes are also offered.
