

News of Society Clubs

Irene DeLosh, 325 South Holly St.—Phone 390-L or 75

THOUGH there are still many persons at the beaches and mountains, also Crater and Diamond Lakes, a large number of those who have been away all season have returned to Medford. Especially is this true of those families whose daughters or sons will soon leave for school and college. Farewell parties for the young folk are much in order.

A number of interesting affairs have been given this past week for Mrs. Ted Leonard (Miss Dorothy Nyswander), whose marriage was an event of Saturday. Also for Mrs. Charles Witter who leaves the first of September for California, where with Mr. Witter they will make their home.

A number of parties have been planned for Mrs. Witter's pleasure this coming week.

Miss Ruth Newman, whose wedding will be an event of October was honored guest at a shower for which Mrs. Frank Perl was hostess.

Mrs. Lloyd Williamson was hostess for a bridge breakfast on Wednesday followed by a picnic supper on the Applegate. Twenty-six guests attended this affair.

David L. Ruth, of Denver, Colo., who is a house guest of her sister, Mrs. D. G. Tyree, has been feted at a number of parties during her visit here.

Leonard-Nyswander

The marriage of Miss Dorothy L. Nyswander, daughter of Riley Nyswander of Chalmers, formerly of Talent, to Ted R. Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam L. Leonard was solemnized at 1 o'clock at the parsonage of the South Methodist church, Rev. James Conder officiating. Only a few immediate friends and relatives were present.

Miss Lela Carlton was maid-of-honor and William Granger acted as best man.

The bride wore an ensemble of black felt crepe trimmed with eggshell colored trimming with shoes and accessories matched in the light color. She carried asher bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of the groom's parents on Cottage street immediately following the ceremony. Later Mr. and Mrs. Leonard left for a two-week trip to California. They will be at home to their friends after September 10th on South Grape street.

Both the bride and groom are well known in this city. The bride graduated from St. Mary's Academy and has been employed at the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the past five years. The groom graduated from Medford high school and is employed at the Daily News.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Welcker of Oklahoma City, out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

For Mrs. Witter

Mrs. A. L. Hill was hostess for a bridge breakfast at Blue Flower Lodge on Thursday at 1 o'clock, honoring her daughter, Mrs. Charles P. Witter who leaves the first of September to make her home in California.

The twenty-four guests were seated at a table covered with a green crystal bowl filled with mixed summer flowers with candle holders to match. Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Witter will leave the first of September for California to make their home.

Mason and Eastern Star Picnic

The Masons will give a picnic at the Elks Picnic grounds for Eastern Star and their families on Friday of this week, August 30.

Doll Buggy Parade

The doll buggy parade and home made doll contest which will take place on Tuesday afternoon of this week at 2:30 promises to be one of the leading events of the week for the youngsters.

The parade will leave the Chamber of Commerce promptly at 2:30 and march to the American Legion playgrounds where the entries will be judged. The judges for the different entries which will consist of home made dolls, doll buggies, home made autos, bicycles and tricycles will be Ted Baker, secretary of the chamber of commerce; Mrs. Lee Garlock of the American Legion Auxiliary; and Mrs. D. A. R. of the D. A. R.

Miss Melba Williams, American Legion playground supervisor has charge of the parade. Children under 14 years of age may enter the contest. Prizes will be awarded for sooties, tricycles, home-made autos, doll-buggies and home-made dolls.

For the most unique and most cleverly finished home-made doll, Mrs. Mann of Mann's Department store has offered a real doll as a prize. For the best home-made auto, Lampert's Hardware has donated a football for a prize, and for the best doll buggy in the parade, Mr. Russell will give $5 in merchandise. $100 worth of home-made dolls are on display in national costume, peanut dolls, vegetable dolls and dolls made from cloths, silk, hosiery, corsets of most anything else.

The home-made dolls will be displayed at the Boy Scout headquarters and the buggies and autos will be lined up at the playground for judging after the parade.

Business Trip

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Russell left today for a brief business trip to California where they will purchase new fall merchandise.

Visitors Leave

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Schneider of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Griffin of Amery, Wis. were guests for several days of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Fowler of Kings Highway. This was a happy reunion as all three families formerly resided at Amery, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler and their guests motored to Crater Lake on Wednesday. This was Mr. and Mrs. Griffin's first visit to the Pacific coast and they are very much in love with it, especially the Rogue River valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. Griffin left for California via Redwoods highway on Thursday.

Entertain House Guests

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Pipes have as house guests Mrs. Pipes' sister, Mr. M. E. Humphries and son Philip of Galt, Mo., and sister-in-law, Mrs. W. A. Reger and daughter of Reger, Mo.

The guests will visit Crater and Diamond Lakes and other places of interest, including the Oregon Caves, Crescent City and other resorts.

Will Tour Old Country

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McDonald left Wednesday for an extended trip East and abroad. They will first stop in Los Angeles and San Francisco before leaving for Washington, D. C. and New York. They will sail on September 18th for Azores Islands, Algeria, Athens, Saloniki, Constantinople, the Holy Land, Egypt, Russia and other places of interest.

Return From Crescent City

Mrs. George Coddling and children, Mrs. F. M. Corlies, Mrs. Everett McArthur of Portland and Mrs. Ray Moran and children returned today from Crescent City. Mrs. Coddling and Mrs. Corlies have been at the coast for a month while Mrs. Moran and children and Mrs. McArthur have spent the past week there. They occupied a cottage at Enderb's Beach.

Ray Moran of this city and E. C. McArthur of Portland, who joined their families on Thursday also returned today.

Mr. and Mrs. McArthur will be guests for a few days at the home of Mrs. McArthur's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Corlies on South Laurel street.

At Crescent City

Mr. and Mrs. William Warner and family are spending a two-weeks vacation at Crescent City and other points of interest on the coast.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. DeVore have returned from The Dalles, Hood River and Portland, where they spent a week.

From British Columbia

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Kelly, whose wedding was a popular event of the month, have returned from a two-weeks motor trip spent in British Columbia, at Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo and Qualicum Beach.

They are now located in their new home which is being completed on Siskiyou Heights, at the corner of Oregon Terrace and Crown avenue.

Sister Honored

Mrs. Warren D. Butler entertained with a "surprise shower" at her home on Queen Anne avenue for her sister, Aileen Crawford.

Miss Crawford leaves September 1st for Chicago to study music at the Bush conservatory.

At bridge Miss Jane McQuat won high score and Miss Marjorie Daily low.

Those present were Mrs. G. B. Alden, Mrs. J. H. Butler, Mrs. Maude Champin of Medford and Mrs. L. F. Pickett, Mrs. Paul M. Ouat of Riverside and Miss Florence Allen of Ashland.

Celebrates Birthday

John Eads, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Eads, entertained eight of his young friends at a theater party last Saturday afternoon celebrating his eighth birthday. The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing games, after which refreshments of cake, lemon-cream and watermelon were served.

The guests included: Jimmy Bergan, John Bishop, Gordon Elwood, LaVerne Johnston, Lester Stinson, Billy Downing, Kenneth Coleman and Wayne Boyd.

Will Attend College

Homer Platt of Medford left last night for Sacramento, Cal., where he will enter Junior college. He graduated from Medford high school with the class of '29.

Aberdeen Guests Here

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Fuller of Aberdeen, Wash., after visiting Crater Lake and other scenic points of the Rogue River valley, left by motor Saturday for their home. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Nugent at 222 West Jackson street.

Visit Crater Lake

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Platt and children, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Marshall and family and Miss Eva Inlow motored to Crater Lake on Sunday.

Chrysanthemum Circle Meet

There will be a meeting of Chrysanthemum Circle, Neighbors of Woodcraft, on Monday evening, August 26, at 8 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. hall. This is the first meeting after the summer vacation and there are several important matters to be discussed. A good attendance is desired.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Crutchfield of Tacoma, Wash., who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Gaddis for a week, left Tuesday for their home. During their visit here they spent several days at Camp "Peter Pan," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Gaddis, on the Rogue river. They also motored to Crater Lake and were very much impressed with the scenic beauty of the lake.

Party for Bride-Elect

Complimenting Miss Dorothy Nyswander, whose wedding will be an event of this week, the employees of the traffic department of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company gave a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Nell Newland.

A mock wedding furnished entertainment for the guests after

Legion Labor Day Ball Sept. 2

One of the leading events of the season will be the annual Labor Day Ball to be staged by Medford post of the American Legion, Sept. 2nd. The affair will take place at the Oriental Gardens which has been engaged to take care of the large crowd anticipated. Don Provoost and his popular dance band will provide the music and all indications point to a most enjoyable party. This is the first of a series of holiday dances to be sponsored by the Legion during the year. Present plans call for Legion parties on Labor Day, Halloween, Thanksgiving, Armistice Day and Christmas night.

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Boys and girls send in pictures of themselves and pets to the Jackson County Humane society and compete for a prize to be given for the best picture. These pictures will be on exhibit at the Humane Society, Jackson County Fair, Sept. 11-14th.

August Apple Pudding

For this the sweet yellow apples which come in August and have such a wonderful flavor. Any other kind of apple may be used, but these are the best. Peel, core and chop fine sufficient to make a pint. Make a rich dough of one quart flour, sifted with 4 teaspoon salt, three teaspoon baking powder, one in two tablespoon butter or shortening, and add sufficient milk to make a dough that can be rolled. Roll into an oblong, spread with the chopped apples, sprinkle with sugar and a little cinnamon or nutmeg. Roll up and pinch the ends together after wetting with cold water. Put in a buttered baking dish, put in with it a cup of hot water, a cup of sugar and two tablespoon butter. Bake until well browned, basting with the pan drippings.

Refreshments of ice cream and

Missionary Meeting

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the First Baptist church will hold a missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. E. E. Wilson, 422 Beatty street, Tuesday afternoon, August 27th.

Women's Class Meets

The Loyol Women's class of the Christian church met on Tuesday, August 20th. Mrs. M. J. Fry presided and had charge of the meeting which was opened with song "Sweet Hour of Prayer" followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Roll call of sixteen members with one visitor. Reading of the minutes followed by song, "Wonderful Works of Life". Refreshments of ice cream and

Legion Labor Day Ball Sept. 2

One of the leading events of the season will be the annual Labor Day Ball to be staged by Medford post of the American Legion, Sept. 2nd. The affair will take place at the Oriental Gardens which has been engaged to take care of the large crowd anticipated. Don Provoost and his popular dance band will provide the music and all indications point to a most enjoyable party. This is the first of a series of holiday dances to be sponsored by the Legion during the year. Present plans call for Legion parties on Labor Day, Halloween, Thanksgiving, Armistice Day and Christmas night.

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

FILM COUPLE ANNOUNCE TROTH

Sue Carol and Nick Stuart, film players of Hollywood, have revealed their intention to wed but have set no date for the ceremony.

The next and last of these pleasant summer meetings will be held on Friday, August 29, at Miss Anne Livingston's garden on the Old Stage Road, just out of Jacksonville. Members planning on going may call Mrs. E. H. Porter or Mrs. C. A. Swinart for further directions.

Out-of-Town Guest Honored

Mrs. David Ruth of Denver, Colorado is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. G. Tyree. A number of social affairs have been given in her honor including a luncheon given by Mrs. Louis Ulrich at her cabin on the Rogue, and a luncheon given by Mrs. C. C. Lemmon and Mrs. R. W. Steier at the home of Mrs. Steier.

WEDDINGS

Kennedy-West

Miss Abine West of Red Bluff, California, and Henry Kennedy of Los Pinos, California, were united in marriage at the South Methodist parsonage at two o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. James E. Conder. Witnesses were Elda and Clarence Allen, both of Medford. The couple left immediately following the ceremony for the home of the groom.

Cole-Randall

Miss Dorothy Randall of Roseburg and Keith Cole, son of Mrs. Ida Cole of this city, were married at the Valley Radio church parsonage by Rev. Bill Ray on Wednesday evening, August 21, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. They left on a brief wedding trip to coast points. They will make their home in Medford.

Social Events of Church Societies

Ladies' Aid Meeting

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet in regular home coming at the church, Tuesday afternoon. The Priscilla circle will have charge of the entertainment. Visitors are always welcome.

Circle Meets

The First Side circle met with Mrs. Ella Peters Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Peters presiding. Mrs. W. T. Berry led the devotion. Mrs. E. L. Leonard had charge of the program. During the social hour, Mrs. Peters assisted by Mrs. C. L. Brown served sandwiches, cake and tea.

August Apple Pudding

For this the sweet yellow apples which come in August and have such a wonderful flavor. Any other kind of apple may be used, but these are the best. Peel, core and chop fine sufficient to make a pint. Make a rich dough of one quart flour, sifted with 4 teaspoon salt, three teaspoon baking powder, one in two tablespoon butter or shortening, and add sufficient milk to make a dough that can be rolled. Roll into an oblong, spread with the chopped apples, sprinkle with sugar and a little cinnamon or nutmeg. Roll up and pinch the ends together after wetting with cold water. Put in a buttered baking dish, put in with it a cup of hot water, a cup of sugar and two tablespoon butter. Bake until well browned, basting with the pan drippings.

Refreshments of ice cream and

Radio Program KMED

Mail Tribune-Virgin Station

A special musical program will be given on the M. M. Department store's radio half hour next Wednesday at 11:00 o'clock. Radio listeners are invited to listen in to hear the great artist of the morning, Mrs. C. H. Paske, recently from Minneapolis and popular in Medford's musical circles.

Her program will consist of the following sacred numbers:

Ave Maria Liszt
Our Divine Redeemer Gounod
Puer Ye-Nol O Israel Duk
Spirit of God Neidinger
Jesu Joy For Today Satter
The Voice of the Wilderness J. P. Scott

Some noteworthy radio programs have been arranged by the California Oregon Power company for presentation over station KMED in the near future.

For "Coco's hour" Aug. 27, an enjoyable musical program featuring Vernon Hopper, mezzo-soprano of KFI and Evelyn Wold, pianist has been prepared.

On Tuesday, Sept. 3, Wm. Lee Greenleaf, noted Shakespearean reader will give "Hamlet," one of the best efforts and the following Tuesday the "Coco Players" will be on the air with another new radio drama by Miss Helen Norris.

The Coco people are making a special effort to provide worthwhile radio entertainment for their many customers and friends thru-out this territory and announce that any suggestions or criticisms will be welcome.

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

IN NEW YORK THEATERS

By Deming Seymour

NEW YORK—A comedy that often becomes almost sheer farce in the course of its dramatic season. Its title is "A Wife Child" by A. J. Johnson. Its author is David Belasco and its plot is well substantiated.

Not dissimilar to the comedy of the new dramatic season, it is in the vein of comic humor. It taps to that extent the comedy of the new dramatic season.

Mildred McCoy hit "The Bachelor Father." The story this time is about Joyce Stanton, the comely youngest daughter of a village village who confesses to have married to a middle-aged and moneyed but unattractive bachelor, that she is presently to become a mother.

The Stanton family is currently oversteering all its strategy to conceal from the neighbors the fact that the family cook is in a similar plight, and Joyce's blushing admission sends the family into a moment of astonished despair and, more importantly to the widow's daughter, puts her staid teacher-sister to flight.

It is the personable young family lawyer, called in to help solve the problem and to think of a way out, who hits upon a solution by proposing to marry Joyce and will reveal to her a letter to her father that he does wed her, and that her alarming story of errancy is then admitted to have been a hoax.

It is this opening play of the new season does not bear out the forecast of some commentators that the 1928-29 dramatic year would be marked by a return to the sort of plots that wouldn't offend your maiden aunt, it at least is the sort of play which Mr. Belasco knows is not apt to fail when the humor is broad and Rabelaisian, and when a gallery of small town characters are caricatured with gay and not too subtle strokes.

In the cast are a pair of leading players associated with Belasco for the first time—Mildred McCoy as Joyce Stanton and Minor Watson, a stock company favorite who played last season in "This Thing Called Love," as the family lawyer. The others include Helen Lowell, Humphrey Bogart and the amusing Sidney Toler as an unsmooth barman.

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not properly cared for. The family must feel, in some degree at least, the same responsibility for its animals that it should for its children. With this as a background attitude, there is much pleasure, much information and a great deal of character training to be gained from close association with all sorts of animals, from dogs to Shetland ponies.

Dr. Stolz quotes Luther Burbank to the effect that, "Every child should have had pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, silverfish, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, brooks to wade in, water lilies, woodchucks, bats, bees, butterflies, various animals to pet, hayfields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, snakes, huckleberries and horehairs; and any child who has been deprived of the best part of his education."

Humane Society

Dr. Stolz, U. of California Institute of Child Welfare says in summing up the opinions of scientists, animal lovers, and educators, "thru pets children may learn to know and to do many things which are very important to them as individuals and as members of society. Thus in caring for and training animal pets, children must combine responsibility, mastery, sympathy and the protecting impulse. What better training could there be for let us say, parents, hood? Just as for many adults the laws of personal hygiene, public health, or social adjustment become vivid and real for the first time when the adult has to care for a child, so for children the first grasp of fundamental biological principles often comes from their relation to animal pets.

"But, like everything interesting and useful, the value to be derived from pets depends upon how they are used and cared for. A sickly animal is a burden to itself and to everyone else involved. Children do contract certain infections from dogs and cats, usually when the latter are not