

MEMBERSHIP FEE IN TRAFFIC ASSN. IS FIXED AT $25

The Rogue River Traffic association at its regular meeting this noon, approved the recommendations of a committee that a membership fee of $25 be charged; with a fee of 50 cents per car for parking, the latter clause subject to adjustment between packers and selling agents.

Last year the fee was 75 cents per car, with no membership fee. The fee would provide about $2500 to take care of a $2100 deficit.

Ray Conner, chairman of the chemistry committee, was instructed to confer with inspectors at once relative to an adjustment on the number of fruit tests and charges. It was held that with the fruit well within the spray tolerance, there should be a decrease in the number of tests.

All shippers were urged to put on their bills of lading so that at the end of the season, an accurate check could be secured on the number of cars, by varieties, shipped out of the valley.

The session then went into executive session to discuss revamping of the by-laws.

SATIN FEATURE FABRIC IN ADRIENNE STEWARD DISPLAY OF FASHIONS

Satin, that shimmering fabric that has had a several years' vacation even as a popular wedding material has again come into its own and was shown in all its glory at the Adrienne Steward fashion preview which opened at Hunt's Theater last night. The showing will be repeated each night this week.

In sport wear, in afternoon, evening and even in the robe de nuit, satin gleamed through the cleverly presented exhibition and gained considerable applause from the audience.

One of the most striking outfits presented was a black and white satin sport suit for fall wear. A royal purple satin afternoon frock, with a purple hat to match, was another clever combination that won approval.

Brown, always a congenial color for the season of autumn leaves, is more popular than ever this season, and was prominently displayed in the models in all its richest shades. Many of the new fall and winter coats were effective in combination of fur and fabric that blended the autumnal tones to advantage.

The short coat and cocktail jacket are still in the limelight and add a smart touch to the evening and afternoon ensemble. The ultra-even hemline is featured in the majority of evening gowns and gives that trailing softness to the drape frocks, which last night were shown in chiffon, tulle, satin and chiffon velvet.

The sun-tanned back is not to be forgotten through the winter months, and the Adrienne Steward show presented a number of formal dresses that eloquently combined the winter sophistication with those reminiscent features of the summer bathing beach.

COAST OIL COMPANY HANDLED REFUELING OF THE ZEPPELIN

MINES FIELD, Los Angeles, Aug. 29.—Coursing underground through a two-inch galvanized pipe 1000 feet long and then lifted 100 feet up the special mooring mast through 1 1/2-inch hose, a stream of life-giving Associated Gasoline was pumped through the nose and into the capacious storage tanks of the Graf Zeppelin as she rested here mechanically.

Associated Oil company engineers, working closely with Earl Hoff, special engineer in full charge of refueling the gigantic monster of the air, designed and installed the special equipment necessary to accomplish this task, one of the greatest and most spectacular deliveries of motor fuel to an air vehicle in the history of the west coast.

Extreme care was necessary both in the installation and construction of the equipment, absolute cleanliness being a positive requirement in acceptance of the gasoline. Each joint of pipe was thoroughly swabbed out with gasoline soaked rags and screwed together with shellac used at the joints. Three 100-mesh strainers were installed in the system.

A control valve was located in the line at the foot of the mast so that the supply could be entirely shut off against the pump pressure without breakage and the hope at the top of the mast carried a special fitting that could be immediately connected or disconnected from the nose of the ship.

H. W. Wickstrom and P. C. Nyby, Associated engineers in charge of the company's activities at the field, were particularly concerned with protection against fire hazard. All the connections were carefully grounded to eliminate any chance of fire by the generation of static electricity. The main pipe line was bonded to a water main and a copper wire run from the pipe line along the hose to the ship's.

Three thousand gallons of Associated gasoline were on hand at the field ready for immediate refueling of the monster Zeppelin upon request of its officers. The special fueling crew, each man thoroughly drilled in his duties, was waiting when the world-encircling cigar-shaped traveler first appeared in the heavens above Los Angeles.

SHOPPERS THROG TO OPENING OF BAND BOX

The opening of the Band Box and Shoe Box, unique combination millinery and shoe store operated by Emma Lou and U. G. Carpenter, respectively, was greeted by a large and enthusiastic number of shoppers throughout this morning and afternoon.

The windows of this clever business combination were artistic in arrangement and drew admiring comment. On the left-hand show window, one exquisite model in autumnal tones of brown and gold was poised on a standard. On the floor were tiny golden mats, a new idea in window decoration.

On the right-hand side was a window featuring a few of the smartest ladies' shoes from the shoe box stock arranged invitingly on their pedestals. The same color combination was carried out for both departments of the little shop.
