PEACH CANNING TO REACH PEAK NEXT MONDAY IS VIEW

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The peach canning season is expected to be at its peak Monday and Tuesday of next week and housewives are advised to take advantage of offerings at that time, or run the chance of buying on an advancing market.

This advice was given out today by the Pacific Fruit and Produce company, whose position as a leader in the fruit and produce field, gives their opinion high standing.

Yakima is sending delicious Elberta peaches to the market. They will be still more abundant Monday and Tuesday. Saturday the wholesale price was 75 to 85 cents a crate.

Lemons have declined $1 a box from $15 to $14.

Tomatoes and corn are still plentiful and cheaper.

Egg, butter, poultry and fresh meat prices were unchanged.

Quotations at the east side market were the same as those of yesterday.
