

LAWYERS NAME NEW OFFICERS OF ASSOCIATION

Kelly, Fliegel, Enright of Medford and Allen of Grants Pass Elected at Bar Meeting — Plan for State Convention.

For an organization that meets as frequently as does the Southern Oregon bar association, that group from Medford, Ashland and Grants Pass holds the world's speed record when it comes to disposing of the business at hand.

Within that brief space of time they had elected officers for the ensuing year; started the new officers off in their respective official capacities; outlined a complete program for the state convention to be held here August 27 and 28; selected convention committee; passed a number of resolutions; received and formally accepted an invitation from the Business and Professional Women's club; set the date for their next meeting; and told a number of the season's best stories.

Colonel E. E. Kelly was elected president of the association for the coming year; Joe Fliegel of Medford and Nell Allen of Grants Pass vice-presidents, and T. J. Enright, secretary-treasurer.

Taking the chair, Attorney Kelly named A. E. Reames chairman of the general committee in charge of the convention, the other members being James Chimcock of Grants Pass, George Roberts, Frank Newman, Gus Newbury, O. C. Boggs and Don Newbury.

Other chairman and their committees follow: Entertainment, George Roberts, Herb Hannu, George Godding, Charles Reames, W. A. Looker and Percy Bray; housing, O. C. Boggs, Percy Gray and R. C. Kelly; Crater Lake trip, Frank Newman, Frank DeSaura and W. G. Trill; dinner, Gus Newbury, George Nielsen and Joe Fliegel; banquet, Don Newbury, Charles Reames and Frank Farrell.

Among the tentative entertainment features on the program for the convention are: A dinner dance, a banquet, a trip to Crater Lake and a scenic drive through the valley, sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Resolutions were passed to send letters of congratulations and a box of cigars to Judge William H. Colvig, retired member of the Bar association, who has just passed his 55th birthday, and letters of condolence to the relatives of Elijah H. Hurd and William J. Moore of Ashland, whose deaths have occurred since the last meeting of the association.

Mystery of Missing Handbag Cleared By Discovery In Debris From Deuel Building Blaze; Discarded by Thief

The fire in the Deuel building last Wednesday night, which started on the second floor in a janitor's room containing old papers and rubbish, not only furnished the local populace lots of excitement for a time, but lately cleared up a mystery existing for a year past as to what had become of a hand bag and contents belonging to Mrs. Fletcher Fish.

One afternoon while shopping a year ago Mrs. Fish was in a jewelry store, and after making a purchase departed on an errand at another store, leaving the handbag on the counter. As she was coming right back, she was met by a man who had become of a hand bag and contents belonging to Mrs. Fletcher Fish.

When Mrs. Fish returned to the drug store, the hand bag, containing a new pair of eye glasses costing about $12, a check stub and some other papers, was nowhere to be found. Mrs. Fish especially regretted the loss of the glasses, as she had to order another pair immediately, but the loss was especially deplored, as it enabled her enemy husband to make another run at a check frequently for weeks thereafter about "chance" and "lost" "business," and "two's heading fast for the porch." Advertisements were placed in the local papers in hopes that whoever had taken the handbag, whether purposely or accidentally, would return it when they found it contained no money or other valuables except the expensive glasses, but to no avail. Charlie Strong had searched himself and the drug store repeatedly, even searching home houses, also without effect.

GULLIBLE SAXONS PROVE EASY FOR RIVERIA CULTS

CANNES, France (AP)—The question as to how American and English residents of the Riviera amuse themselves has been settled by a police official who has been stationed in Southern France for many years. "They join cults," he says. "I take a secretary to keep track of the various cults and sects. I must have solved the high cost of living question by eating only bread, eggs and milk. They seem prosperous, physically and financially, though the local vegetarian cult says eggs and milk are deadly poisons." The officer took a deep snuff of post-war abstemiousness and confessed that he ate and drank anything handy. Cults are his specialty. He tries to protect the visitors in his district. But how the Anglo-Saxon hits at the bait. The Simple Life cult leader made a small fortune, later troubled, Joan "The Simple Life."

CURTISS OFFICE IN MEDFORD IS SEEN POSSIBLE

Visiting Airmen Say Local Conditions Ideal Establishment of Distribution Center Aircraft Company Products.

The possibility that Medford will be made the distributing center for Curtiss products in southern Oregon was stressed in a statement made here last night by Captain Harry Claiborne, head of the squadron of Curtiss planes which landed on the local port late yesterday afternoon for an overnight visit. Met by a large delegation consisting of Mayor A. W. Pipes, council members, C. T. Baker and other civic leaders and residents, the visiting officials were taken to the new airport over which they expressed great enthusiasm.

That it is by far the finest layout they have seen on the entire trip, was the opinion expressed by the visitors, who took off from Los Angeles the first of the week, visiting every port along the way. Circling over the new port in their planes, the visitors viewed every detail of the local project and commended Medford citizens upon their air-mindedness and the carelessness with which they considered details. Accompanied by local officials, Captain Claiborne made another trip of inspection to the new port before he lined up his squad for their final take off north this morning.

They plan on stopping at Grants Pass, Roseburg, Eugene, Salem, Corvallis, Portland and points throughout the state of Washington. The purpose of the trip is to ascertain the more logical distributing centers for Curtiss products and to gather data for the department of commerce at Washington, D. C. Preach air-mindedness.

The gospel of air-mindedness was preached eloquently by every member of the squadron, including Alex. Chalmers, who accompanied her husband on many of his trips. The local response to the subject of aviation, together with the concrete exemplification of Medford's attitude as expressed in the new airport made the visit of the officials here one of the most enjoyable along the way, they said.

The personnel of the squadron included Captain and Mrs. Claiborne, Lieutenant E. B. Wilkins, Lieutenant E. H. Robinson, chief test pilot for the Curtiss flying service and technical director of "Wings"; The Legion of the Condor and other spectacular Hollywood productions; W. B. Biren, factory service engineer for the company; and Malachi Hynes, test writer, graduate of Blackhawk college, Dublin, Ireland, who is writing a complete account of the flight for magazines and newspaper syndicates.

The entrance of the squadron into Rogue River valley was a spectacular sight for the large crowd which gathered on the local port to greet them yesterday. Like the well known birds of a feather, alike not identical in coloring, they circled over Medford's airport in a flock of three.

Clearing the Sixtytons one by one, the first, a blue and gold body of humming mechanism, carrying Captain Harry Claiborne, Mr. Claiborne and Lieutenant E. B. Wilkins, took the lead. Then came the second, a gleaming metallic and yellow plane, and third a winnowing study in orange and black—the three forming an aerial merry-go-round against the Medford sky.

Before the revolving sea of eyes below, the first plane swooped and traced a perfect three-point landing. The second, the second and third, following their leader, as the large delegation of local civic leaders moved forward to greet them.

BRITISH TO CUT A SOCIAL KNOT

LONDON (AP)—When Mrs. Sidney Webb refused to be known as Lady Passfield, social difficulties were anticipated in her position as wife of the Secretary for the Dominions in Ramsay MacDonald's new labor government. But the difficulties have been overcome. Mrs. Webb has had her way. An invitation to a government reception stated: "The Secretary of State for the Dominion Affairs and Mrs. Sidney Webb will receive the guests." Mrs. Webb has vouchsafed no formal explanation as to why she acquiesced when her husband assumed a title of nobility in the interests of the Labor Party at the same time rejecting it as a social distinction for herself, but she said to a friend: "I am 79 now, and I desire no other name than Mrs. Sidney Webb."

CHILEANS WILLING BUT FARE BADLY IN CHICAGO RING

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Two Chileans, Luis Vicentini and Stanislaus Loyaza, put up two very different types of boxing exhibitions in fights that topped Paddy Harmon's stadium card last night. Both were willing, but Vicentini had the misfortune to be matched with the world's champion lightweight and his laborer, Sammy Mandell. Consequently he took a decisive whiplash.

Loyaza fought Joey Medill of Chicago and it was 10 vicious rounds to a well earned draw. Loyaza was no more eager than his countryman, but Medill was not the competition Mandell was. Fighting at 138½ pounds, the champion was big old self.

After the first five rounds the fight was all Mandell. He was fast, accurate and willing. Often Vicentini grinned as his own lunges and drives met nothing but atmosphere.

The fight was not a championship affair, both men coming in over the 125-pound limit. The Loyaza-Medill fight was 10 rounds of knockout boxing, with one as ready as the other to trade punches. It was the most active fight on the card, which included a 10 rounder in which My Sullivan, St. Paul welterweight, belted victory for himself over the rugged, but not too clever, Spaulard, Alf Ros. Clyde Chastain, Dallas welter, and Jackie Bradie of Syracuse drew in the other 10-round match.

PORTLAND TRIO CHARGED WITH WIELDING WHIP

PORTLAND, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Charged with having horsewhipped a 29-year-old girl on a north end street corner, Reta Colman, 25, waitress, Marjorie Stubbs, 25, hairdresser, and E. D. Berry, taxi driver, were under arrest today awaiting municipal court hearing. They were located last night after Mrs. Lenora Jack had gone to the Emergency Hospital for treatment of her injuries and had signed a riot complaint against them.

The beating took place Wednesday night, Mrs. Jack told police, after she had been lured down town. The four drove to the north end and near the railroad tracks. Mrs. Jack declared, the three threw her to the ground while one of the women kicked her in the stomach and the other horsewhipped her.

Her story was borne out today, police said, by a reputed confidante of the Stubbs woman who implicated Mrs. Colman as the whip wielder. Both women were held in jail under bond of $1000. Berry was released under $250 bond.

Mrs. Jack was unable to give a clear motive for the attack, other than that the Colman woman was jealous over attentions paid to Mrs. Jack by some man.

Mrs. Jack came here recently from eastern Oregon and is living with her mother.

BURIED ALIVE IN WELL, WILL LIVE

OTTUMWA, Ia., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Buried alive for 42 hours, 53 feet deep in the earth by the cutting in of a well, Wilkins Priest today was rescued by the heroic efforts of hundreds of men. Priest, numb from cold and partly paralyzed by pressure of sand and stone that sealed him at the bottom of the well, was conscious when taken out through a parallel shaft that had been sunk after it was found impossible to remove the tons of debris that had fallen over the imprisoned man.

The first call of the disinterred man was for water, as he had been without food or liquid since the curbing of the well gave way and buried him far below the surface of the earth in damp and perpetual darkness, where he was barely able to move his head and hands at times. A casual examination by the county physician who had been with the rescue workers constantly indicated that priest probably would recover.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Dr. John C. Hill, director of the department of religion and archaeology and anthropology at the University of Southern California, said today upon his return here from a summer's study in the South Seas, he had discovered on the island of Bali near Java "the temple of Hari Booder on which there are three miles of life-sized bas-relief as interesting as any book ever written."

The temple, Dr. Hill said, was hurried 1200 years ago. It covers nine acres of ground, has five levels, or stories, so far uncovered and was the seat of an ancient native religion.

Game of Dice Motive Behind Double Crime

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP)—John Stagg, deputy commissioner of police, delivered himself today of some positive ideas in connection with Chicago game murders—murders which he said were not really gang affairs at all. Stagg said he has learned the motive behind the double execution of Frank (C) Cawley and Edward Westcott, west side hoodlums and gangsters who were slain early yesterday. That motive, he said, had nothing to do with game vengeance or gang warfare. It evolved from a game of dice on a Sabbath afternoon.

LAKE PERCH SUFFER MYSTERIOUS MALADY

ASTORIA, Ore., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Deputy Game Warden C. P. Smith reported here yesterday that he found thousands of dead perch piled upon the shores of Sunset lake, a narrow body of water between here and the Pacific, when he visited there yesterday. Smith said the fish might possibly have been attacked by a parasite worm. The dead fish were badly swollen and discolored and died within their mouths and gills distended as though smothered. Smith declared.

The deputy game warden said he also found a dead fish duck and two dead snipe on the lake shores. They were apparently the victims of the same malady.

PORTLAND TONG MEMBER SHOT BY EMPLOYER

PORTLAND, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Gus Lee, 33, reputed Hip Sing Tongman, was in a hospital here today in a serious condition from a gunshot wound inflicted shortly after midnight.

A patrolman on duty in Central police station heard screams from the street outside and investigated. He found the Chinese stumbling along the street carrying a club. Lee told the officer he had been shot three hours before when he quarreled with his employer over work and had just then been released.

Examination disclosed that the bullet had entered near the hip and came out near the abdomen. When first questioned Lee said gambling had played a part in his differences with his employer and named the man with whom he had fought. The policeman was unable to understand the name and Lee later refused to repeat it, or to say where he had been employed. Detectives were investigating the case today.
