

ASHLAND HIGH-Y OPENS ACTIVITY WINTER SEASON

ASHLAND, Ore., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Junior H-Y held the first meeting of the season in the Y. M. C. A. hall on Thursday night. Only a small group was left over from last year as a large proportion have passed into the senior high school; however, those who were present committed themselves to the high principles of the organization. A group of new members will be chosen from the present enrollment of the junior high school to fill the membership.

Officers of the club are: Paul Hess, president; Glenn Myers, vice-president; Robert Smith, secretary; Maurice Woodson, treasurer; and Don M. Spencer, advisor.

To introduce the new girls of the Ashland high school and make them feel at home, the girls' league of the school held a "get acquainted party" on Thursday afternoon in the high school gymnasium. Each of the upper class girls drew the name of one of the lower class girls, for whom she is to act as "big sister" throughout the year. This is the first time the "big sister" plan has been used in the local school. A pep program was held in which the songs were led by Ellen Franco and talks were given by Miss Wilma Nutter led the girls in the school yell. After the program, games were played and the girls enjoyed cookies and punch.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Carter and Miss Clara Trotter are spending several days in Portland. They will arrive home late this week. Joe Iverson drove the car for Mr. Carter.

Miss Mary Galey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Galey on Sherman street, who has been employed at Crater Lake, returned throughout the season, arrived home on Thursday afternoon. Miss Galey plans to leave tonight for Eugene, where she will be a student at the state university during the coming year.

Mrs. Clyde Malone, wife of Major C. A. Malone, who for some time was city electrician of Ashland, left on Wednesday with her special, Duane and Junior, for Honolulu to join Mr. Malone, who is employed there on construction work.

Mrs. Jennie Enders left on Wednesday for an extended visit to eastern points, where she will spend the winter visiting with relatives and friends. Her first stop will be at Fort Madison, Iowa, and Mrs. Harold Roberts returned on Tuesday from Sacramento, California, where they have been on a wedding trip. Mrs. Roberts is Miss Esther Spencer of Ashland.

Mrs. Laura Matten left on Thursday for Reno, Nevada, where she makes her home. Mrs. Matten was a former Ashland girl.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Patterson have returned from Tacoma, where they have been making a visit to Mrs. Patterson's people.

Mrs. Don Whitney was hostess on Wednesday at a charming bridge party. Mrs. B. B. Balls was the fortunate holder of high score for the afternoon. Guests included Mrs. B. B. Balls, Mrs. Frank Dean, Mrs. Louis Brown, Mrs. J. H. Hays, Mrs. P. J. Prescott, Mrs. Hoiser, and Mrs. P. Dickey.

E. D. Briggs, William Briggs and J. J. Deakin were visitors at Sams Valley on Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl Holstrom of Pasadena, Calif., who own property near Central Point is in the valley on business. They were callers at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Woods.

Ellen and Austin Bush of Portland are visiting with friends in Ashland.

WELCOME NEW PASTOR PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY

After the absence of regular church services for over two months, the congregation of the First Presbyterian church here will welcome their new pastor, Rev. C. B. Porter, recently of Portland tomorrow morning. Mr. Porter, who was called to the local church at a meeting of the congregation on August 25, is said to be an eloquent speaker and a zealous minister of the gospel.

Formerly of the Unity Presbyterian church in Portland, Mr. Porter was active in the city wide work of the Portland council of churches and other civic organizations. He was in the U. S. Naamies both prior to and during the World War. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Porter and their daughter, Gene.

Chapter 25 THE SEVEN COUPS

It was not easy to find another line of approach in Brussels with so little to work upon, and we returned to the hotel. There we found a letter from Laxton, written at Ostend late the night before:

"I have had a busy evening—fruitful too! I'm half inclined to say about it. I want to make sure of nothing, and I'm going back by the morning boat."

"You will not discover much at Brussels. Anyway I want you to take on the inquiry I'm dropping here."

TABLE ROCK, Ore., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Mr. Tolofson of the Central Point Bank called at our school Tuesday to renew the banking system for this term.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. L. J. Rohrer, on October 16th.

COPCO DISPLAY HONORS EAST ORANGE WIZARD

The local window display which is depicting hundreds of passers-by as the Copco exhibit in honor of Thomas A. Edison in the home office building of the California Oregon Power company on West Main street. The display features the largest and smallest electric lamps in the world, as well as a replica of Edison's first lamp, which he gave to the world in 1879.

The Copco exhibit also shows several modern types of electric lamps for the home and store and two examples of airport lights. The display is being used to attract interest in "Light's Golden Jubilee," a nation-wide celebration in honor of Edison, which will take place next month.

To pursue our quest that night was impossible. In that paradise of stone the thing to do is to visit the Casino, Somerset and I passed into its glassy halls at 10 o'clock and found it check-ablock.

A concert was going on in one large hall carpeted, a dance in another, and a ball in another.

We wandered through till we found ourselves in a quiet, almost deserted room—a sort of reading and writing room. We were about to wander out again when Somerset said:

"Half a minute! I've got an idea." He walked up to the official and spoke. I heard the man say: "Mais parfaitement, monsieur. Par ici."

Somerset beckoned to me, and the man led me into an adjoining room. He unlocked a cupboard. "What year?" he asked. "Second half of 1925," said Somerset.

And presently the man had dragged out a large volume, the file of the Carillon for July to December, 1925.

The man dusted the file, placed it on a table and left us. Somerset turned over the leaves till he reached the issue of July 23rd. It contained nothing that interested us.

The issue of the 24th of July had a similar appearance. It looked as if we were to draw blank. Then a line caught my eye— "... an Englishman, tall, with the appearance of a monk . . . tansure . . ."

I glanced to the head of the column. It consisted of paragraphs of news, comments and impressions. I traced the topic back to its beginning, and afterwards I made this rough translation: "A dramatic episode took place last evening at the Kursaal. The hero of the occasion was a tall Englishman, who took his place at the table in the large cafe towards midnight. He played with small counters at first and won a petty sum in half an hour. Then it was began the drama. "Standing behind him, like a Nemesis at his elbow, was another Englishman, slim, gray-eyed and cool, who seemed to be his friend. Nemesis touched him on the shoulder and signed to him to leave the table with his gains. "The player muttered a curse, shook off the touch, and staked the whole fortune, with an impetuous gesture. The gray eyes of his opponent gleamed like steel. The player won."

"Again that monitory touch upon the shoulder. Again the impetuous curse. Again the impulsive gesture. The mass of counters remained on the table. The whole winning had been staked once more. "All eyes were centered on the tall man who sat with head in hand staring at the table as though he might hypnotize the ball by some mighty effort of his personal magnetism. "Hundreds eyed him curiously and whispered to one another—the spectators crowding around, an American doubtless wondering why so much excitement about so little, a white-haired gentleman with the air of a preacher of Geneva, slightly scandalized, beside him another Englishman, tall and gaunt, looking like a tansured monk, ascetic and disapproving, a number of Frenchmen intrigued, our own compatriots injured in their sense of their

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Pell's past the key to his murder's treasure and Somerset, now allied with Laxton, now solving the Pell mystery. Pell's treasure was a certain amount of money which he had hidden away in a safe in Brussels. Before they could make their visit, Miss Vandeweyer arrives at the house, plays a short time and leaves again—obviously a morning against their visit. They bring little from the hidden treasure of the house but Laxton takes the safe. They hear that the safe contains a million francs. But a man whose description coincidentally fits Pell's, and who is a companion of Pell's, is seen times some years ago. Pell's friend was to love with Miss Vandeweyer, but after a certain time, Commander Seshole or a red eye Pell's friend from the house. A few days later, but no connection with the murder mystery of Black-veils.

LAKE OF WOODS ROAD FAVORED BY COMMITTEE

Cooperation in Ashland Project Pledged By Medford Chamber of Commerce—Past Benefits Indicated in Resolution.

The roads and highways committee of the Medford chamber of commerce met yesterday noon with the same committee of the Ashland chamber of commerce at the Ashland chamber of commerce on the Dead Indian road project, being sponsored by Ashland. The Ashland chamber will hold a meeting Monday night to consider support of the Medford-Williams Creek road project. A similar meeting will be held Tuesday at Klamath Falls.

The following resolution was presented Ashland by the local delegation:

Whereas at the organization meeting of this committee, it placed itself on record by resolution "as favoring a broad policy of road and highway construction for all southern Oregon to the end that modern transportation and travel service may be brought to every section of our great undeveloped territory";

Whereas the incomplete Dead Indian road is the shortest and most direct route from Ashland to Lake of the Woods;

Whereas we appreciate the aspirations of the citizens of Ashland to have this road completed, and as indicating that we are not indifferent or unimpaired of our interests in road affairs, we need only to recall the fact that with our full approval and sanction the county court has appropriated and expended in round numbers eighty-two thousand dollars on the Dead Indian road; it has expended on the Pacific highway south of Ashland, two hundred twenty-five thousand dollars, and on the Green Springs Mountain road better than two hundred sixty-six thousand dollars, and as these amounts are all appropriated from county funds it was Medford's privilege and pleasure to contribute her proportionate share.

Therefore be it resolved, that the roads and highways committee of the Medford chamber of commerce does hereby offer unreservedly our cooperation in securing funds for the improvement and maintenance of the Dead Indian road, and we hereby instruct our secretary to present a copy of this resolution to the Ashland chamber of commerce for their records.
