BEAUTIES, and "queens," too, are Miss Charlotte Hanze Fritz, above, and Miss Ernestine Pearson, below. Miss Fritz reigned as queen of the annual Asbury Park, N. J., festival and parade, and Miss Pearson was named "Miss Washington" in a recent contest at the capital in competition with 500 other beauties.

ALL SAILS UNFURLED—and what a treat for seafaring eyes! The Elsie, owned by F. C. Pearce, proved one of the fastest schooners in the annual fishermen's races at Gloucester, Mass. Note the sailors high among the rigging.

STRAIGHT UP AND DOWN the camera was tilted to snap this unusual view of the huge Los Angeles as it passed over New York. It is a spectacular glance of the lighter-than-air craft as it soared above the tall buildings.

THE SINK-OR-SWIM SHORT SEVENTH HOLE WHERE BOBBY JONES lost his national amateur title during the recent championship tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif. A beautiful hole, with the green overlooking Monterey Bay, it is one that demands utmost accuracy—or else your ball goes into the water and is lost.

JUST ENJOYING LIFE! Norma Talmadge seems to find lolling around after a swim a great pleasure and she spends most of her time in and around the water when not busy at the studio.

"OUR BIG CHIEF" was a first prize winner in a baby parade held at Asbury Park, N. J. The "chief," perched on his charger (aboard a float), is Edward Wynne.

SHE'S THE FAVORITE OF MANY THEATERGOERS. Of course, it is needless to say the charming young lady above is Jean Arthur, one of the younger and most gifted cinema stars—especially if she's one of your favorites.

A FLOCK OF SHEEP, SOFT CLOUDS, AND A WINDMILL—and there's a scene that beauty lovers find entrancing. This charming photograph showing a windmill and a flock of Southdowns is a typical feature of the Sussex countryside in England.

EVERY KICKING LEG UP HIGH, EVERY HEEL OFF THE GROUND—yeah, football season is here again! Members of the C. C. N. Y. squad are shown as they limbered up gracefully at an early kicking practice.

PIONEER MOTHERS were honored when this statue was unveiled recently at Esther Short Park, Vancouver. Aard Fairbanks, who teaches at the University of Washington, is the sculptor.

THIS INSIDE PEEK into the all-metal cabin of the ZMC-2, U. S. navy all-metal craft, shows the gas tanks and passenger seats. It was taken while the craft, which recently made a successful flight, was under construction at Detroit.

THEY LIVED BETWEEN 35,000,000 AND 50,000,000 YEARS AGO—Zeuglodon, or prehistoric whales, these are—and how lucky it is they don't exist today! This is a copy of a painting by Charles R. Knight which was presented to the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago by Ernest R. Graham. These huge sea animals are said to have been quite common off the Carolina coast.

A WORRIED LOOK? If you were Mrs. Chamberlain and your famous flying husband were doing hair-raising stunts in the air, as Chamberlain did at the National Air Races at Cleveland, you might look that way, too.

A FISHING HOLE OF BEAUTY, where big trout play in the turbulent waters, is this spot beneath Cameron Falls in the Canadian Rockies.
