PRODUCE MARKET SEES DWINDLING VEGETABLE SALE

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 24.—(P) The tang of autumn is in the air and the passing of summer is further attested by the dwindling supply of many fruits and vegetables. Trading at the East Side market was not as brisk as it was a few days ago, nor was the volume of produce offered quite so wide.

Cantaloupes were disappearing and peaches will soon bid farewell. Tomatoes, which were glutting the market not long ago, were still cheap and plentiful, but not as much so as formerly. Many of the tenderer things which grew above and below the ground are getting scarce, while cabbage, lettuce and potatoes are again coming into their own. Pears and apples are in season.

Reviewing the market, the Portland News Service of the United States Department of Agriculture says:

Heavy supplies of home grown produce, rather tight volume of trading, and a generally steady market, characterized today's wholesale fruit and vegetable market.

Supplies of apples and pears, ungraded homegrown stock, and fancy wrapped and packed stock from more distant Oregon and Washington points, were noticeably heavier.

Pear prices were about steady, but apples showed a weaker under tone. The potato market continues unsettled, both among Portland car lot buyers, and at shipping point. Sales to retailers were a shade lower, at 2.75 per cwt., of No. 1 Yakima Gems.

Offerings of peaches are confined mainly to a few Hales, and small lots of miscellaneous varieties.

Cranberries from Ilwaco, Wash., are appearing in larger quantities, attractively packed in 1-3 barrel boxes, at $6.00.

Prices for the most part remain unchanged.

OREGON PIONEER DIES IN ASHLAND

Mrs. Jacob Wagner, one of southern Oregon's most widely known pioneers, died today in Ashland at the age of 88 years. She had been a resident of Ashland for 60 years and came to Oregon in 1869. She leaves four children: Mrs. T. W. Miles of Medford, Fred Wagner, Mrs. A. E. Kinney and J. M. Wagner of Ashland. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Wagner was a charter member of the Ashland Alpha chapter of the Eastern Star, the first chapter to be established in Oregon. Only three other charter members are now living and only one in Ashland, Mrs. Eugene Atkinson. Mr. Wagner, who was a member of the Oregon legislature during the civil war period, died in 1909.

Brisbane's Today

one to see if the borers had climbed up. Stalks at the root as thick as a man's arm.

From the writer's alfalfa ranch on the California Mojave desert, comes this news: "The yellow butterflies have been busy in the alfalfa. The butterfly mates when two days old, lays eggs the following day, worms hatch in three to seven days, feed on the tender leaves of the alfalfa plant. To discourage the butterflies we cut hay before the bloom appears, and to kill the worms the hay is cut close to the ground, and the checks are given excessive moisture."

Farming is not a dull occupation, especially when valuable young colts get caught in the wire fence, and fire speeds through the pines. If the President's farm commission will tell this farmer how to fight corn borers, and yellow butterflies, this petitioner will ever pray.

Human beings are gradually approaching an escape from this small earth, to which we once thought ourselves tied "until death do us part."

As serious scientists were discussing flying 25 years ago, so scientists in Germany are now discussing trips to the moon by rocket.

It is necessary to start with power enough to escape the earth's gravitation and then arrange for a safe landing, taking sufficient air for a short stay on our satellite without atmosphere, plus arrangements for a return trip.

Strangely constructed fish living two miles down in the ocean cannot live if brought to the surface. Man, built to live under this heavy atmosphere, with a body adapted to the earth's power of gravitation, could hardly hope to live removed from the bottom of his air ocean.

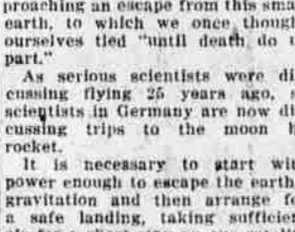

But thought can conquer many difficulties, and man has shown that whatever he can imagine he can do.

Others devoted attention to what they call "the good" beer of Munich, some went to see the Winslet Victory, what is left of her, and the Venus of Milo with the irreplaceable arms.

All learned something and left money in Europe. The 11,000 returning yesterday left at least $11,000,000. They got their money's worth, will talk about and send others.

A Britisher who sells women's clothes says Americans prefer French fashions, "because we Britishers admire women, and therefore cannot expose them. The French glorify sex artificially, therefore they emphasize that which they glorify."

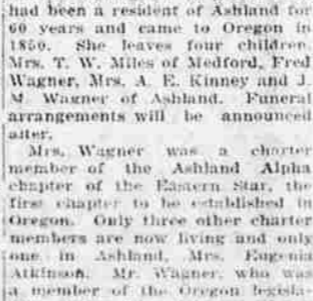

American women, it seems, pursue sex glorification. However, the British illustrated newspaper show British women "convinced" in a curious way, nothing on their backs, little on their legs.

As for British bathing suits, in them the ladies are enshrined to an extent that even fish would not notice.
