A Great German. Ramsay MacDonald Defied. To Jail Respectability. Vanishing Legends.

(Copyright by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The burial of Stresemann, Germany's great statesman, emphasizes the enduring power and common sense of the German republic.

There was no military display of any kind. Von Hindenburg, aged president of the republic, walked behind the coffin, followed by the entire diplomatic corps on foot.

The funeral procession passed under the Arch of the Emperors, built to the glory of the German imperial family, and until the war reserved exclusively for Hohenzollerns.

Stresemann was the first commoner whose body ever passed under that arch excepting Friedrich Ebert, the Socialist harness maker, first president of the German republic.

Germany belongs now to the thinking Germans, and to the people of Germany, and is managed for their glory and profit.

The difference between Ramsay MacDonald and some other important men, that talk about peace, is well expressed by W. R. Hearst in an article welcoming the labor prime minister. Mr. Hearst says of Mr. MacDonald:

"He does not come from the CLASSES that send people to war. He comes from the MASSES who are sent to war."

Those that buy whiskey from bootleggers were horrified at the decision of a federal judge holding the bootlegger's customer guilty of conspiring to transport liquor in defiance of law.

A higher court reversed that decision and bootleg customers, including 75 per cent of our "better element," were comforted.

Now Senator Sheppard of Texas, as dry as the deepest spot in Death Valley, suggests amending the Volstead act to make purchasers of liquor as guilty and criminal as bootlegging sellers.

Such an amendment of course, would strengthen prohibition enormously. Respectable prosperity would refuse to buy, fearing jail, and blackmail after buying.

But Senator Sheppard's amendment probably will not pass. Many legislators are

BOSCS FINDING BRISK DEMAND DETROIT MART

The first car of four peats from the Rogue River valley, under the direction of the Winter Pear Committee, Inc., David E. Wood, were sold in Detroit yesterday at an average of $3.54 per bush.

The Winter Pear Committee views this as a good opening price, and thinks that as the Detroit consumer becomes acquainted with the Bosc, the demand and the price will increase.

Telegram received last yesterday and last night said that the trade in Detroit were buying the Bosc freely, and that a demand was noticeable.

Special opening rooms have been secured in Detroit for use during the Bosc campaign. The rooms are steam-heated, and the peats scientifically ripened as they are supplied to the market, in first class eating condition, with an old gold color, and highly attractive to the eye.

Prof. Henry Hartman, Oregon state pomologist, before the sale of the Bosc Monday, was allotted 10 minutes in which to describe to the fruit wholesale buyers of Detroit the glories and grandeur of the Bosc. Prof. Hartman also addressed the Detroit fruit buyers last week and discussed deeply in the care of ripening of the Bosc.

The Bosc committee expects to receive daily reports on the progress of the Bosc campaign in Detroit.

THREE MILLIONS IS FOREST FIRE SEASON DAMAGE DENY INDEPENDENCE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Damage estimated at more than $2,000,000 has resulted from fire that swept over 542,000 acres of forest lands this season.

The forestry service said this does not take into account damage to young tree growth, water wood protection, and game and recreation values, nor the expenditure of $3,000,000 from the fire suppression fund. The total number of fires started was reported at 5475 up to and including Oct. 1.

The normal season of fire hazards, it added, had not closed to the far west.

PEEPING POLICEMAN OF PORTLAND FIRED. PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 8.—(AP)—R. A. Butler, who was accused of peeping Tom activities in the Portland city jail and with annoying girls in the detention ward, was discharged by Mayor Baker yesterday after witnesses told of how Butler made improper advances to a 15-year-old girl in the ward.

Conscience Dawn for Early Human Traced by Savant

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Dr. James Breasted, noted Egyptologist and director of the Oriental Institute, has traced the birth of conscience to a period about 2000 years before Christ.

It was then, Dr. Breasted said in an address last night, that man first indicated a knowledge of the difference between right and wrong.

Texts found inscribed on the stone walls of tombs dating back to 2000 B. C., he said, showed the dawn of conscience and character among the earth's inhabitants.

CONVERSATIONS WITH PREMIER AID TO AMITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson today said the conversations with Prime Minister MacDonald "have been most successful and have met with all our anticipations."

He said as a result both the British and American governments would be greatly benefited by the removal of friction.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said today in accepting the honorary degree of doctor of laws from George Washington university that one could never acquire anything in this world without purchasing it by "one's own effort, own skill, and own sacrifice."

The degree was conferred and the premier's words uttered in Continental Memorial hall where seven years ago the five great naval powers of the world signed the first agreement for limitation of naval armaments.

The furtherance of that agreement as well as other steps for world peace is the purpose of the visit of the premier to this nation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The senate today rejected an amendment to the tariff bill to grant independence to the Philippines.

FALL'S ILLNESS NECESSITATES HALT IN TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A recess in the trial of Albert B. Fall until tomorrow was announced today by Justice William H. Taft, who said he would have a physician examine Fall before deciding on his course in the case halted by the defendant's illness.

Fall, charged with bribery, was taken ill in the courtroom yesterday and Frank Hogan, his chief counsel, announced this morning that his client was unable to appear.

Dr. Sterling Ruffin, one of the physicians who attended former President Wilson, was named by Justice Hays to examine the former secretary of the interior. He will confer with Fall's physician, Dr. T. Safford, before making the examination.

Fall, charged with accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Cramer, oil magnate, in connection with the lease of the Elk Hill, Calif., naval oil reserve lease, appeared in court Monday against the advice of his physician and over the protest of his family. He remained barely able to get to his seat, and yesterday afternoon was compelled to leave when his temperature went up, his pulse increased and he began coughing blood.

Plastic Surgeon Dies. SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Twenty-four hours after he was shot by a dementia patient, Dr. Mitchell Langworthy, nationally known orthopedic and plastic surgeon, succumbed yesterday to the wounds. He attacked John Selma, a laborer, fired a shot into his own brain after wounding Miss Gabe Rogers, Langworthy's secretary. He died an hour later.

No Drinks, No Flag, Is Dictum of Chicago Structural Iron Workers. CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The reason the American flag fluttered from the steel skeleton of the board of trade building today was the 18th amendment to the constitution.

The flag was to have been hoisted yesterday, marking the place of the last button in the structure. Henry A. Ramsey, broker, clubman and chairman of the building committee, watched for hours yesterday for the flag to rise.

ADDICT ADMITS ENACTED ROLE TO GET DRUGS

Prosecution Witness Was Once An Actor, Is Testimony in Trial of Klamath Doctor On Narcotics Charge U. S. Court.

Admitting with a smile that he had once been an actor by profession, and that he had probably impersonated the role of a man whose system was wracked with pain, upon one of his visits to the office of Dr. A. A. Soule in Klamath Falls, F. A. McDonald, chief government witness in the federal case against the physician, charging a violation of the Harrison narcotics act, occupied the witness stand in rebuttal testimony this morning.

McDonald, who smiled frequently out of the corners of his eyes, during his testimony, told the jury that a man would stoop to any ruse to get the narcotic for which he had a craving. He admitted having taken the key from one physician's office and obtained a quantity of the drug for himself.

This was part of the rebuttal testimony introduced by the state to prove that a physician should not depend upon an addict's accusations for the dispensing of the drugs, but should make a thorough examination of his condition before administering it. Mrs. McDonald, wife of the witness, was next called to the stand and repeated her testimony that she had pleaded with Dr. Soule as well as with Dr. Swendenburg of Ashland and Dr. Carstairs of Klamath Falls not to give her husband drugs to take out of the office.

She described her husband's condition as extra talkative and nervous when he was under the influence of the narcotic, and only a little nauseated after meals, when he was "off them." She said she had never seen him in the condition of agony described by Dr. Soule, as having been the case in his office upon different occasions.

Dr. G. S. Newson of Klamath Falls, health physician of Klamath county, was called, and told that he had examined the patient on May 21, 1929 and found him in "not a bad" condition. Judge Bean expressed obvious irritability over the physician's vague testimony. Upon cross-examination, the health official said that he had merely examined his heart with the stethoscope, and he did not know whether at that time he had a quantity of drugs in his system or none at all.

Other witnesses recalled to the stand in this testimony were R. F. Davis and E. M. Miller, government officials, who testified to having taken the patient to the office of Dr. Soule and to that of the county health physician respectively.

Two motions, one for dismissal and one for a directed verdict, were denied the defense by Judge Bean this morning. The motions were submitted directly following the rebuttal testimony introduced by the government throughout this morning's session, and preceded the closing arguments.

That Dr. Soule had upon two occasions attempted to get F. A. McDonald, self-confessed drug addict, confined to a hospital for treatment, only to have him desert the institution and refuse the treatment, was brought out in the opening defense argument by Attorney G. M. Roberts. The Klamath Falls physician then, he said, appealed to the federal officers to come and assist him to handle the case. Instead of coming, they sent him vague letters and liberality covering the Harrison narcotics act, he said.

Mr. Roberts charged that at the same time, two government men came into the vicinity and "saw" the defendant, but that the physician violated the law in order to carry on their prosecution, instead of giving him the aid he had asked. He further declared that the officers, who only searched the patient after he had been to the physician's office, could have been just as easily deceived as to the methods by which he obtained the drugs, as was the doctor by the outward demeanor of his patient.

Francis G. Marsh, deputy district attorney who is assisting George Nourse in the prosecution of the case, confined his opening argument to a definition of the Harrison narcotics act. He asked the jury to decide the case upon the testimony presented, that the physician did not administer the narcotic during the pursuance of his medical practice, or to meet the medical needs of the patient. The case will go to the jury late this afternoon.

Picturing Dr. Soule as an "incurable" practitioner with an itching palm, George Nourse argued to prove in his closing argument that the defendant had not acted in good faith in his relations with McDonald. That in spite of the pleadings of the addict's wife

SPORTSMEN OF ROGUE IRKED BY FISH POACHING

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Declaring that the summer fish run in Rogue river was lighter than usual because of illegal fishing in that stream, several southern Oregon sportsmen lodged a complaint with Governor Patterson yesterday.

Harold Clifford, state game warden, joined with the governor in the assertion that illegal fishing is not the game of the light run of fish. Some sportsmen who have fished the stream say it is due to depletion of water by irrigation.

Clifford said, however, that he was aware of illegal fishing in the stream last winter and that he had recently detailed five deputy wardens with a fast boat to patrol the river. Ben Dorr of Eugene, member of the state game commission, also attended the conference.

PORTLAND SEES POWER RATE CUT

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 8.—(AP)—From out of a series of conferences between the public service commission, power companies and city rate experts, Portland today saw renewed reductions in industrial power rates coming within the next future.

New schedules have been submitted in the power companies by the commission, but although not adopted, it was intimated that the three groups which have discussed rates are not far apart.

F. T. Griffith, president of the Portland Electric Power company said the concern was in possession of the new schedules and company engineers were examining them.

"It is too early to say we will accept them in the whole, but we might say that some definite reduction will be made," Griffith said.

SEARCH COAST HILLS FOR MISSING HUNTER. PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The hills near Waldport, Ore., were being searched today for William Miller, 75, deer hunter, who became separated from his brother, Albert Miller, of Portland while on a hunting trip.

Word of the search was received by H. J. Kniskern, Portland co. foreman. The hunters separated and Alfred returned but his brother failed to arrive at the appointed place.

PANTAGES SOUGHT A PERJURER

Surprise Witness Says Theater Magnate Asked for False Testimony—Statement Wanted That Friend in Conference Room at Time of Alleged Attack On Dancer.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The trial of Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire theatre man, on a statutory charge, was thrown into a sensation today by a surprise state witness, Jay Sheridan, who related an alleged attempt of the defendant to produce false testimony.

With its move veiled in mystery the state brought the man, a San Diego, Cal., lodge owner, to the court room after a special recess and placed him on the stand as the trial reopened.

Sheridan testified he had known Pantages for about 15 years and formerly was in the theatrical business.

Last September 22, more than a month after the alleged attack of the vaudeville magnate on 17-year-old Eunice Pringle in his private office, Sheridan said Pantages came to see him at San Diego.

"I was asked," he testified, "if I would testify that I was in the little conference room the day of August 9. I said I would and would be glad to help in any way possible."

Under gloomy skies, reminiscent of her greatest starring vehicle, "Rain," the body of Jeanne Eagels, stage and movie picture actress, was carried by friends to its final resting place.

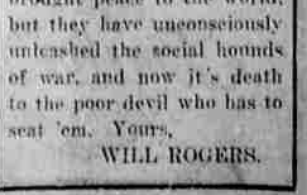

Admirers from all walks of life filled the south side chapel from where the body was taken to St. Vincent De Paul Catholic church, where services were held. Another large crowd, including many representatives of the stage, was present at the services.

Burial was in Calvary cemetery.

PORTLAND WOMAN TO TOUR INSTITUTIONS

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Arrangements have been made by the state board of control for a group of women from the Portland stork club to make a tour of inspection thru all state institutions. A letter from Mrs. H. E. Bopduran, secretary of the club, requested the arrangement and October 17 has been named as the tentative date. It is understood by the board of control that the tour is not in the nature of an investigation. On the way to return the women expect to stop at Woodburn to visit the state training school.

Will Rogers Says: HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 8.—It looks like we are going to get disarmament but I want to tell you we are paying dearly for it, for after all it's a question if it's not better to have a big navy, lots of taxes, a big yet so-called peace in Washington than no navy, no taxes, yet not enough seats at the right of the president to go round. So Premier MacDonald and his charming, no smoking, no rousing daughter have brought peace to the world, but they have unconsciously unleashed the social hounds of war, and now it's death to the poor devil who has to seat 'em. Yours, WILL ROGERS.
