GRID FAVORITES OF CONFERENCE IN EASY GAMES

Trojans and Cardinals Expected to Win Under Wraps Today — Cougar-Bear Tilt Will Be Hard Fought, Is Expectation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Football hopes of five teams, neither defeated nor tied in coast conference play will be carried into conference battles today.

Southern California,s Trojans and Stanford's Cardinals, whose winning performances thus far have stamped them as the conference "Bigwigs," were strong favorites to continue on their tour of triumph. Southern California had Washington as its opponent, while Stanford was to take on the University of California at Los Angeles team. Last week Washington was held to a 6-6 tie by Montana. U. C. L. A. already has been beaten by U. S. C., 76-9.

California's Bears and Washington State's Cougars, making first conference starts, were slated for the annual tussle at Berkeley, with indications of a bitter struggle.

The fourth conference tilt will match Idaho with Montana on the former's home field at Moscow. It is Idaho's opening conference test. Montana is reported to have its strongest team in years.

In games of non-conference standing, Oregon State will meet Columbia (Ore.) and Oregon plays Willamette.

BOXING COMMISSION LEAVES FATE TO MAYOR

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 12.—(AP) Frank J. Lonergan, chairman of the municipal boxing commission; Fred N. Bay and Robert A. Sawyer, members who remained on the commission after two others resigned, awaited the action of Mayor George Baker today before determining whether they would relinquish their posts.

Thomas A. Sweeney and Dr. C. G. Sabin resigned when the American Legion posts started an investigation of the boxing commission, aided by Mayor Baker.

Lonergan said he had no intention of resigning while Bay admitted his fate was in the hands of the mayor.

PORTLAND FIRM GETS STATE ADVERTISING JOB

Kirkpatrick advertising service of Portland had been awarded the contract to handle the $25,000 state advertising fund appropriated by the 1929 legislature. The fund is to be used for land settlement and development work.

Strangler Lewis Pinions Kruse With Headlocks in Tacoma Ring

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, defeated Bob Kruse of Portland in the main event of a mat show here last night. Kruse was knocked out when he was the victim of the "Strangler's" deadly headlock and was unable to return for the second fall.

O'Grady's Showing Against Hill Restores Popularity With Fans

Gene O'Grady is probably the most popular and most talked of individual in Ashland today. When O'Grady showed Benney Hill of San Francisco how boys from small towns slug, it appealed to the fight fans, and O'Grady by his sensational K. O. literally beat his way back into popularity with Medford fans. Gene has fought spasmodically—sometimes good and sometimes bad—always good enough to get a decision at least and has pleaded with matchmakers to bring him in boys that make him fight—and O'Grady is right—he needs a tough boy if he is going to give the best he has. The odds were all against the Ashland fighter—that is, Hill was an old-timer in the ring and has fought main events in all the coast cities—he even had a try at Tommy Lenhart who has his eyes on the light heavyweight crown, to say nothing of Madison Square Garden engagements, and he stayed with Tommy three rounds. He lasted such a short time with Gene he is still wondering just how it all happened—but he does know that Gene can punch.

There was something else about the fight Tuesday night that is certainly worthy of comment. There was a record crowd present. The galleries were packed and the ringsides were filled. The fight was promoted by a man who seems to know his fight game from start to finish—first, he knows what fans want in the way of a good fight card, slugging and boxing—and he knows his fighters and matches his men well; secondly, he knows how to get his crowds. He sees southern Oregon as his trade territory and eight newspapers carried advertisements on the card. And he broke all records in drawing a crowd. The fight at Medford Tuesday night presages a season of real entertainment for those who enjoy professional fighting. Joe Bickerstaff will see to that.—Ashland Tidings.

BUSH HAILED AS SERIES HERO BY CUB PARTISONS

Place in National Championship Picture Saved By Sallow Son of Ole' Mississippi—Must Win Again to Return Home.

By Bryan Bell.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The bayous of Mississippi today claimed a place in the world series picture for Guy T. Bush, native and resident of "Ole Miss," sent Chicago back into the series with a brilliant offensive and defensive performance.

Additional returns yesterday labelled the early forecast a sweeping triumph for the Athletics over the Cubs, at least premature. Before the verdict can now be made official, results of games today and Monday must be tabulated.

The National league victory, after three weary years of waiting, was hailed with joy by its partisans. "Uncle Wilbert" Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, spoke for his fellows as he slapped Captain Charlie Grimm of the Cubs on the back. "That hash'll taste better tonight, eh, Charlie?" said the portly veteran, with the enthusiasm of a juvenile.

Bush, who is called Joe by his team-mates, after another Bush, who made his presence felt in world's series pitching, reached heroic stature in leading the Cubs to a 3 to 1 success over the White Elephants, in the third game.

Had Dance Step.

The tall, sallow youth who acted yesterday as though he had had early training as a contortionist, and then decided to take up solo dancing, pitched a courageous game. He permitted the men of Mack to nick him for nine hits, but while safeties were fairly plentiful in the early innings, runs were scarce. He was 'bearing down" at the close and in the final four innings one "blow" was registered by the losers.

The Cubs now are talking about events to transpire when the battlefield is shifted back to Chicago. They must win one of the remaining games here to call for a western trek, but they say they have no fear of their ability to do so.

One of the few thrills in the third game, which was well played but not spectacular, was furnished by Jimmy Dykes, who made a fruitless steal of home. The robust Dykes was safe, but the umpire called a third strike on Earnshaw, the batsman, to nullify his brilliant effort.

Break in Sixth.

The "break" of the game came in the sixth inning. The A's were leading 1 to 0. Bush was the first batsman. The crowd laughed as the thin, dark fellow with prominent sideburns, went into a fantastic dance at the plate. He jumped into the air and squatted low on the ground, waving his bat all the time in an apparently aimless way. Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the baseball comedians, threatened to go out and warn him against infringement of their copyright.

The pitcher had fanned the first time up and later was twice again to see third strikes sail past. This time, however, he had a mission. He had no idea of swinging at a ball and as he said later "was just trying to get on."

Earnshaw seemed puzzled by the behavior of his opponent and the count reached three balls and two strikes, with Bush still acting as a flying Dervish. Finally the long expected fourth ball was registered and Bush with a wild yell of triumph dashed for first base in long, swinging strides. Having led the defensive stand of his team, he now proposed to put on an offensive single-handed. He danced up and down on the base line, but cautiously close to the bag.

Bush's bid for a run was the spark to fire the Cub flame. McMillan went out, but English gave Dykes a chance to fumble and two were on when the great third sacker tried to throw the ball before he picked it up. The tying run was in scoring position and Bush brought it chuckling home when Hornsby, after two strikeouts, singled.

GLASSES BY MAIL

Advertising Mail Order "Fitting" of Glasses Is Menace to Eyesight of Thousands, Better Business Bureau Warns

"The offers of a certain questionable class of unreliable mail order concerns to fit glasses by mail is fakery pure and simple and yet thousands are being imposed upon, and in many instances are doing irreparable damage to their eyes."

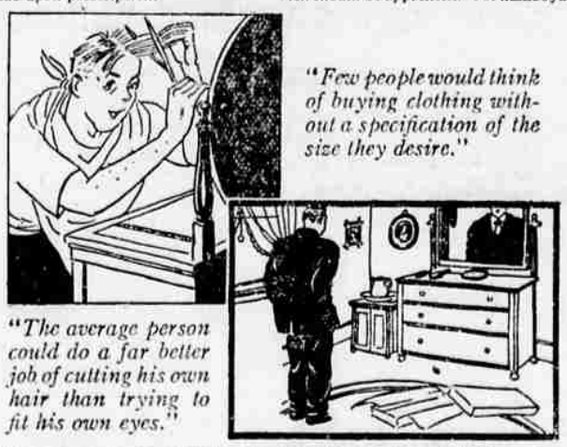
The quotation above is from a recent bulletin issued to periodical publishers throughout the United States by the National Better Business Bureau, Inc., following a report submitted by a number of eyesight conservation associations.

Warning of the menace contained in such a dangerous situation, the Bulletin continues:

"An offer to fit glasses by mail is a dishonest offer because it purports to do that which is impossible. To measure the amount of error in the refraction of the human eye requires in the first place the services of one skilled in such work and with a knowledge of the science of refraction and such a person must see the patient and examine the eyes by scientific methods. It is absolutely impossible to render a service of this kind by mail, telephone or in any way save by the direct service in person of one skilled in the work. Furthermore, no mechanical device has ever been invented which will enable the unskilled correctly to fit themselves to glasses.

"Investigation has shown that the glasses are simply a fair grade of magnifying glasses mounted in an extremely poor grade of frame. These are advertised as scientifically ground and curved lenses. The glasses do nothing that the exploiters claim for them—they do not relieve eyestrain, they do not fit any eyes, except by mere chance. They simply make the print look larger, as a consequence of which many persons receiving them, particularly old people, with failing sight, will worry along with them, occasionally feeling satisfied because of their own ignorance of the harm that may be done their eyes, and lack of knowledge of what proper fitting of glasses requires.

"Badly fitted glasses are often worse than no glasses at all. Few people would think of buying clothing without a specification of the size they would get. But fitting the lenses in spectacles to human eyes requires much more delicate adjustment than does the fitting of a man's hat to his head or a woman's glove to her hand. And a misfit in clothing would have no serious effects, whereas a misfit in glasses ordered by mail can do nothing but harm to the eyesight. It has become a well-established fact that fitting of glasses where needed requires an eye test and special glasses for each case made upon prescription.



"Few people would think of buying clothing without a specification of the size they desire."

"The average person could do a far better job of cutting his own hair than trying to fit his own eyes."

"The average person could do a far better job of cutting his own hair than trying to fit his own eyes. If, by chance, one with a simple error due to failing vision resulting from advanced years, were to select suitable lenses for reading, the probability of the frame fitting would be remote indeed. Correct lenses improperly positioned before the eyes at once become incorrect lenses. The stronger the lenses the more important becomes the relative position of the two lenses in respect to the two eyes, otherwise a strain is placed upon the eye muscles.

"Where one's eyes are concerned it certainly is safer to be governed by methods which have the endorsement of those skilled in ophthalmic science rather than to experiment with new and unproved methods.

"Furthermore, eye defects are not static—they change with the natural growth of the minor and are influenced by age and the matter of determining proper treatment and correction at any given time is not an easy matter and calls for skill and training and the personal service of a professional man. Any claim which purports any such thing as diagnosis or prescribing or treatment by mail is on the face of it preposterous.

"The human eye is most delicately adjusted and the most marvelous of any organ in the human system in its workings. The measuring of its refractive power requires skill and judgment not possessed by clerks in mail order concerns or behind the counters of stores offering ready made glasses for the self-fitting of customers.

"Generally, there cannot be emphasized too strongly the desirability of consulting only reputable specialists of recognized standing in the community. All should be apprehensive of flamboyant advertisers and especially those who employ propaganda under the guise of a professional atmosphere and gain publicity through sensational claims. In all instances the public are cautioned against the feasibility of any attempt to diagnose or treat the eyes by mail or to prescribe for them in any way other than by the direct service in person of one competent in a professional way to care for the eyes.

"While the columns of the better class of newspapers and magazines are closed to advertisements offering to 'fit glasses by mail,' these concerns still are able to get their advertisements into a certain class of publication even though the efforts of the Better Business Clubs of the country have been instrumental in calling to the attention of editors the questionable nature of such advertisements. Some of these concerns also carry on quite extensive advertising campaigns by mailing circular matter direct and in some instances by employing canvassers and agents.

"At present there is apparently no way of successfully prosecuting and convicting these quacks by legal process, because of the technicalities behind which they can shield themselves.

"A practical way of combatting them is by educating people who need glasses to beware of the dangers to their eyes if they obtain them from such mail order houses."

PITCHING DUEL LOOMS IN 5TH COAST PLAYOFF

Mound Winners Expected to Get Call in Crucial Game—Series Now Tied at Two All—Stars Confident On Home Lot.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A pitcher's battle between winners was forecast today for the fifth game between Hollywood and the Missions in the Coast league split season playoff, tied at two games all yesterday by a 10th inning home run off the bat of Frank Shellenback, pinch hitting twirler.

Shellenback, who won Thursday's game for the Stars on the mound after he contributed a home run to the scoring, or Hank Hulvey, who was credited with yesterday's win because he pitched two innings in one of which Shellenback knocked the shell off the ball, were likely choices of Oscar Vitt. Bert Cole and Dutch Reuther, each credited with a win for the Missions, were mentioned by Red Killefer as possible starters with the emphasis placed on Cole.

George Hollerson, who took a shellacking at the hands of the Reds in San Francisco, also was a possible starter for Hollywood.

The tars are confident that their home lot is their stronghold and in higher spirits than when they retreated from San Francisco, the underdogs. As a result of yesterday's game, underbreath predictions that the series might end in Hollywood's favor in two more days were becoming audible.

Bill Rumler, Hollywood right fielder, who took a nasty crack on the head in the eighth inning yesterday, the frame in which Herb McQuaid went wild and was sent to the showers, probably will be out of uniform during the remaining games. He regained consciousness last night at a hospital, where attendants said his condition was not serious.

The Missions won the first game 7-2, the second 8-6, and lost the third and fourth, 5-11 and 3-4.

Only the Faithful of Soviet Granted Rooms in Moscow

MOSCOW—(AP) Rooms are so scarce in Moscow that they are assigned to only two classes.

One comprises the families of needy workers who live with two or three persons to the square yard. The other consists of brainy persons who have proved themselves faithful to the soviet regime.

Some time ago the Moscow city council rewarded Professor Langov for 50 years of scientific work by decreeing that he should have for the rest of his life the use of the room in which he resides. The professor was not relieved of rent, but he will not be molested by authorities hunting space for some great personage of needy worker.

EXPLOSION KILLS OWNER OF STILL

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 12.—(AP) Lyle Lemon, 27, Portland was in a morgue and Carl Reverman, 40, Portland, was in a hospital today following the explosion of a still in Reverman's pretentious two-story dwelling last night.

Lemon was struck by steel fragments of the still and killed instantly, while Reverman suffered serious burns from boiling hot mash and being struck by flying portions of the still.

The home was destroyed partially from fire which followed the explosion. Firemen found Lemon's body in the ruins. The interior of the home was a wreck, police said, who intimated they would arrest Reverman if he recovered.
