

ENDEAVORERS LOCAL RESIDENTS NAME OFFICERS WRITE OF TRIP HOLD BANQUET TO DISTANT LAND

Ashland Named For Next Convention—Miss Caster Of Phoenix Re-Elected President—Program For Today—Budget Exceeds Quota.

The banquet hall at the Presbyterian church was well filled last night at the Christian Endeavor banquet of the members of Crater Lake Union.

Following the dinner, the endeavorers adjourned to the main auditorium, where the song service was conducted by Rev. C. B. Porter, convention song leader.

Officers were elected, with the following chosen to carry on the work for the coming year: Miss Elva Caster of Phoenix, re-elected president; Thelma Parrish of Klamath Falls, first vice-president; Miss Lila Martin of Grants Pass, second vice-president; Bob Merritt of Central Point, third vice-president; Irene Stanley of Phoenix, re-elected secretary; and Opal Rush of Ashland, treasurer.

The superintendents appointed were: D. M. Spencer of Ashland, prayer meeting; Minola Gosnell of Ashland, social; Mrs. Geo. Davis of Central Point, missionary; J. B. Moomaw of Ashland, life work report; Emma Alberts of Grants Pass, Tenth Legion; Joe Hartle of Phoenix, quiet hour; Marie Prescott of Ashland, efficiency; Irva Fewell of Medford, publicity and library; Bert Wright of Ashland, C. E. World; Mrs. Wm. V. Barney of Ashland, alumni and adults; Ruth Severance of Jacksonville, Intermediate; Mrs. Chas. D. Gaffney of Ashland, junior, assisted by Mrs. Geo. Martin of Rogue River.

The pastor advisors will be Rev. Claude B. Porter and Rev. Carman E. Mell, both of this city. Convention boosters will be Wayne Carter of Ashland, Merle Redding of Grants Pass, and Maynard Putney of Medford.

The budget raising session was conducted by Ross Guiley, state field secretary, who arrived in Medford today. The amount of money pledged was over the amount that was asked to be raised. Fifty per cent of the money taken into the Union is used for state work, and the other fifty per cent for correspondence, deputations, and other necessities.

A missionary dramatization was put on by the Juniors of the Medford and Ashland churches, "To Whom Shall We Go?" Miss Yera Landing of Ashland took the part of the church. The play brought out the fact that the children should be trained in their work before they are grown, so they will be able to carry it out more fully.

Tomorrow's program is as follows: Sunday morning—9:00, Quiet Hour Rev. Carman E. Mell; Sunday school and Church of Choice; 12:15, executive committee luncheon; (joint meeting of old and new officers), Phoenix Presbyterian church.

Sunday afternoon—2:15, song service, Rev. C. B. Porter; "On to Coos Bay, 1930," Ross Guiley; announcements; awards; installation of officers, Rev. W. P. Barney; special number, Grants Pass; address, "Our Covenant" W. Will See "This Thing Through"; (Phil. 4:13), Ross Guiley; decision service, Ross Guiley; benediction.

Sunday evening—7:30, pre-prayer service, Elva Caster; 8:15, Christian Endeavor prayer meeting, topic, "How Can My Society Carry On?" Marie Prescott; 7:30, song service, Rev. C. B. Porter; 7:45, devotions; special number, Rev. Carman E. Mell; 8:00, address, "Our Leaders' Covenant," "Carry On," Rev. I. W. Wilson; closing of convention.

Our ships "coaled" here, and that was another sight. There is no modern oil, or coal docks here, so as soon as we landed, barges about one hundred "blacks" were lined only a very old "sacked" sack, tied around the front of their waist, began a sing-song chant, and the coaling started. They worked all night, all the next day, the next night, until two o'clock, then rested until one the next day, and worked again until five. All for eighty cents apiece, so you can see labor is cheap.

It is a great sight to see the many ocean liners come in to port, and watch the unloading, and the joyful re-union of immigrants and friends, with thousands on the dock, and officers, and soldiers of all kinds lending color to the scene.

We sailed at five, skirting along the north shore of Africa, passing the very place where the French vessel was killed last year. Yesterday we passed through the very waters where Paul was shipwrecked, and landed on the Isle of Malta, and Sicily on the other side. Sicily is a very large island, two hundred and seventy-five miles in length; also saw Mt. Etna in eruption. At night it is thrilling, the flame shooting up high in the air, and can be seen for miles.

Tomorrow we land at Athens, and Wednesday at Constantinople.

Radio Talks Tell Detroit of Merits and Glories of Bosc

Below is printed the fourth radio talk in Detroit of the Winter Pear committee:

"The Bosc pear, 'Old Gold Outside, Sugared Sunshine Inside.' As a fruit it has no rival. Try one today. You will eat another tomorrow. That old saying, 'Eat an apple a day and keep the doctor away,' had some merit until the Bosc pear, raised in the Medford district, made its appearance. It is easily identified by its long tapering bell-like shape. A true king always stands out from his fellow men. The Bosc is supreme in the world of pears. To know this fruit well you need to try it just once. It needs no further recommendation, a connoisseur will unhesitatingly declare the Bosc to be the finest, most luscious pear in the world. However, we are not selling Bosc pears to connoisseurs. Our program in this city has for its chief end the education of the average every-day American citizen. The dime of the poor man looks just as good in the cash register as that of the millionaire. We cannot sell Bosc pears in any considerable quantity unless we can interest the man on the street.

Every box of Bosc pears that leaves Medford, Oregon, contains a leaflet describing how to ripen Bosc pears. Many of the wrappers around the pear have printed thereon recipes telling you how to use the Bosc pear to advantage. Your fruit dealer will see that you secure a wrap telling you how to handle this delicious food. If the pear has no wrap, ask your dealer to give you one, as you will be amazed to find out how many wonderful dishes you can place on the table by using Bosc pears.

Need for Education in the Use of Pears. A pear is without doubt a tricky article of food to handle. The common everyday Bartlett variety is well known and is perhaps the most popular. Its popularity is deserved because it ripens itself naturally on the stands and is the first pear on the market each year. The Bosc and other later varieties of pears are not so popular because the average citizen does not understand that it is sometimes placed on the stands before being ready to eat.

The Bosc pear, when ready to eat, has a beautiful golden yellow color and is quite mellow. It should not be eaten when hard, firm and slightly green. Keep it a few days in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees and you will be surprised at its wonderful flavor. Pears are not intended to be eaten when green. Salads in which pears are used freely are often unpleasant because the housewife did not ripen her pears before use.

Almost all fruits require to be conditioned. The best and highest quality of the pear cannot be developed unless it is allowed to come to maturity. Give the pear a chance to reach its maximum quality before eating. You will have made a new friend. Remember to try a Bosc pear, 'Old Gold Outside, Sugared Sunshine Inside.'

The history of the Bosc pear, its origin and development, may prove interesting. We take this opportunity of making a condensed statement.

The Bosc pear originated in Belgium early in the nineteenth century. It is the finest variety produced by Van Mons—probably the greatest of all European pear breeders. Van Mons produced hundreds of other varieties of pears, but none of these is equal to the Bosc in quality. The Bosc was produced by planting thousands of seeds of the best varieties of pears known at that time; seeds of the best resultant seedlings were selected and planted.

The Bosc is the result of several generations of such rigid selection. The Bosc was brought to America nearly a hundred years ago. While its fine quality was early recognized and it has been planted
