

LEADERSHIP IS NEED IN STATE SAYS DR. HALL

Technical Training Not Sole Essential Is Word to Oregon Alumni At Banquet—Organize Parents to Aid Students.

What we need most in Oregon is not merely technically trained students, but those who have vision, courage, human compassion and the ability to lead. Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon, declared in speaking to 50 Oregon alumni at the annual banquet held Monday evening at the Hotel Medford.

The problem of the university faculty is to devise some means of developing and organizing the spiritual values of life for students, along with technical training. Each year this task becomes more difficult due to the increased liberty thrust upon boys and girls, Dr. Hall said.

By organizing troops of mothers and dads of university students in various cities it is believed that much may be accomplished through acquainting the parents with problems which their children meet at school. Instead of feebly answering the questions asked them, the mothers and dads should be able to give helpful advice, the speaker pointed out.

Dad's Day Is Aid
It is for this purpose that certain days each year have been officially set aside to entertain the older generation at the University of Oregon. Dr. Hall spoke enthusiastically of the experiment and its results so far.

Although the first function of a university is to train the state's youth, extension activities and research are equally important, according to the speaker, who is particularly interested in research. Eventually, Dr. Hall hopes to bring a group of distinguished nationally known professors to the Oregon campus. The gift campaign has been started as a means of providing additional departments of various types, such as one for the study and diagnosis of children's diseases and abnormal cases.

Dean Powers Speaker
Another speaker at last night's meeting was Dean Alfred Powers of the university extension division, who explained the rapid growth of that department, which now has 5500 students enrolled. This is the largest college student body in the state of Oregon. Thirteen extension centers have been organized in the state. "The State's University" is the slogan adopted by Dean Powers and his faculty, who deal with students from practically every section of Oregon.

"There's one of our students who hears sheep and in order to be sure his lessons will reach him we send out three sets, one to each of the places where he and his sheep may be," Dr. Powers said.

About 500 mothers are included in the enrollment and there are at least three grandmothers, so that age, as well as geography and expense has been conquered.

Other special guests at the banquet were Mrs. Walter M. Cook of Portland, state president of the Oregon Mothers' association; Miss J. F. Hill, president of the group in Portland; Miss Marian Phyllis, Dr. Hall's executive secretary, and Albert Burch, member of the state board of education. C. T. Baker presided at the meeting.

CENTRAL POINT, Ore., Oct. 29.—(Special)—The Central Point grange will meet Friday night, November 1, and be honored by the presence of six old maids who are not tempted by the present mode of style, and neither have they changed in the line of gossip.

There will be degree work and a program. All grangers are welcome.

HERSHEY JOINS GIANT MERGER FOOD PRODUCTS

National City Bank Arranging New Holding Company to Have Capital 150 Millions—Kraft, Colgate Are Included.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP) The third large merger of food and household products companies to be put together within the past year is being arranged by the National City bank interests, and will be grouped under a new holding company to be called the International Quality Products corporation. It was learned today.

Through this company will be accomplished the long rumored merger of the Hershey Chocolate company, the Kraft Plank Cheese corporation, and the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company. It is expected that other units will be added from time to time. The new company is expected to have capital and surplus of more than $150,000,000.

Formation of this organization follows closely the organization of Standard Brands, Inc., under Morgan sponsorship. The Morgan concern has acquired control of the Fleischmann company, Royal Baking Powder company, E. W. Gillette company and Chase & Sanborn. It has recently arranged to acquire the Widdler Food Products company.

The other large company which has been recently expanding in this field is the General Food corporation, sponsored by E. F. Burton & Company. This concern built up a long line of products over a period of years under the Postum company, which was changed to General Foods company this year. This year's acquisitions include Certo corporation, Diamond Crystal Salt company and North Atlantic Oyster Farms, Inc.

Insurance Co. Has Problem in Lost Atlantic Flier

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29.—(AP)—disappearance of Uplien F. Diteman, Jr., on his attempted trans-Atlantic flight has presented a difficult problem to officials of the Kansas City Life Insurance company, with which the flier carried $40,000 life insurance.

The officials said today they had not heard from the beneficiaries of Diteman, who is believed to have lost his life and that no decision had been reached as to payment of the insurance. It was said there was no precedent to guide the company in the case.

The insurance was written before Diteman learned to fly.

Commission Ponders Diamond Lake Road

ROSEBURG, Ore., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Oregon state highway commission has taken under advisement the matter of establishing boundaries for the proposed North Umpqua highway improvement district following a hearing yesterday.

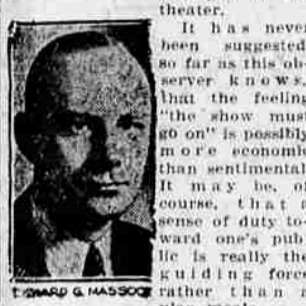

The meeting failed to develop the expected heated arguments as the commission ruled out statements regarding the merits of the road and required all testimony to pertain to the actual location of boundaries.

Readjust Workmen's Compensation, View

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A general readjustment of the workmen's compensation act, affecting more than 100,000 workers and 16,000 contributors, was recommended today by the legislative interim committee meeting here.

About New York

By Richard Massock.
NEW YORK.—Back-stage dramas of recent vogue in flesh and film would indicate that once a person stepped under a baby-spotlight he, or she, forever after belonged to the theater.

It has never been suggested, so far as this observer knows, that the feeling "the show must go on" is possibly more economic than sentimental. It may be, of course, that a sense of duty toward one's public is really the guiding force rather than aular meals.

Stage to Home.
Displayed there are pictures of the comely Fay Templeton in the tights of burlesque, Viola Allen in the vestments of Shakespearean heroines, Louise Drew in a modish costume of 1914 and a hundred other excerpts from the album of a theatrical curio collector, Johnson Briscoe.

But there now are Fay Templeton, Louise Drew, Viola Allen, Miss Templeton, as Mrs. William Patterson, lives in Pittsburgh. The daughter of John Drew and cousin of the Harrymores, who played in "It Pays to Advertise," likewise is living a private life, as Mrs. John Devereaux. And Miss Allen, who left the stage in 1916, is the widow of the widely known sportsman, Peter Duryea.

Marrriage has claimed many others of the old Criterion favorites. Eleanor Robinson 29 years ago married the late August Belmont and retired from the stage. Clark Lipman left comic opera to become Mrs. Louis Mann. Their "washing up," however, was not so final as that of others, for both actresses since have become playwrights.

Those who retired completely include: Mary Mannering, who acted in "The Garden of Allah" and who, after her divorce from James K. Hackett, married Frederick E. Wadsworth of Detroit.

Ida Conquest, John Drew's leading woman, now the wife of Riccardo Bertelli, New York artist.

Margaret Greene, who played opposite William Gillette before she married Albert Parker, movie director.

Margery Maude, daughter of Cyril Maude, who married Joseph Warren Burden.

Mine, who now spends much of her time abroad as the wife of Waldo Pierce, the artist.

And Carlotta Monterey, who after her divorce from Artist Ralph Barton became the third wife of Eugene O'Neill.

Resting Stars.
Probably most famous of the American actresses now in retirement are Julia Marlowe, Maude Adams and Mrs. Thomas Whiffen.

The first intends to divide the coming winter between Italy and Egypt. Miss Adams continues to be the recluse of New York and Mrs. Whiffen is living on her Virginia farm. Each left the stage only after long and faithful service.

Nor was matrimony the cause of two other desertions from the drama. Norah Lamisoff, once a juvenile in Marlowe companies and Elaine de Wolf, a satellite of John Drew days, became converts to business. Miss Lamisoff deals in real estate. Miss de Wolf, who recently was married to an English baronet, Sir Charles Mandl, since 1904 has been one of the town's leading interior decorators.

A display of photographs in the lobby of the Criterion theater, first Broadway playhouse to go over to the movies, contains evidence, however, that drama's hold on body and soul is sometimes tenuous and that matrimony may often break the bonds, especially for the actresses.
