

THREE DIE IN EUGENE AIR CRASH

Two Army Reserve Fliers and Girl Crash Into Tree—Plane in Flames After Explosion—Heat Prevents Rescue Work—Machine Flying Low Before Disaster.

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Killed when their single-motored monoplane crashed near Water, eight miles from here late yesterday, the bodies of three persons, one a young woman, were to be taken to Portland today. Full military funerals were planned for Lieutenant W. H. "Bev" Clark, pilot of the plane, and Captain P. O. Mercer, both of whom were officers of the United States army air corps reserve, while a private funeral had been arranged for Edyth Rose, co-pilot of the plane.

Conflicting reports were heard here today as to the cause of the fatal crash. A. P. Wolford, farmer on whose property the huge cabin monoplane crashed, said he thought he heard the motor fall. Employees of the Walker Lumber company, eye-witnesses of the accident, differed in their versions of the mishap. Some told stories similar to that of Wolford, while others said the plane, flying unusually low, side-slipped as it was banking above a ridge, and struck a tall fir tree while the motor was still running.

Burst Into Flames.

All agreed, however, that the plane burst into flames as it hit the tree. An explosion followed, the witnesses declared.

By the time mill employees reached the scene of the accident, the plane was an inferno. The intense heat from the flames prevented rescue work and witnesses were unable to remove the bodies for some time after the crash.

The body of Miss Rose was not discovered until the remains of Mercer and Clark had been placed in the Walker Lumber company ambulance.

Miss Rose began her aeronautical training about six months ago under the supervision of Les Meadows, instructor for the Shields-Clark Flying service of which Mercer and Clark were officers. Meadows said she was an excellent pupil. She made her first solo flight a week ago today. Meadows said, making five trips aloft in a training biplane. She had made one solo flight each day since then.

First Long Flight.

Meadows said the fatal flight was to have been her first long airplane journey. She was to have used the flying time gained through the flight toward earning a pilot's license.

Miss Rose was 22 years old and until she took up flying had been a dancing instructor at Portland. Previous to that she had been a student of Commerce high school there.

She is survived by her parents and a sister, Dorothy, all of Portland.

Mercer and Clark both saw service overseas during the World war. Clark in the air service and Mercer as an aerial photographer. Mercer received personal citations from the king of Belgium and General John J. Pershing for his work in aerial mapping and photography. His home originally was in Seattle, but he had been established at Portland for about six years.

Mercer is survived by his widow and stepdaughter.

Clark was unmarried. He is survived by his parents, a brother and sister of Portland and a brother in Los Angeles.

WHERE DRY ARMY MOVED AGAINST GIANT BOOTLEGGING SYNDICATE

The house (lower right), at Highlands, N. J., is alleged to have been the "fortress" headquarters of a bootlegging syndicate which is said to have made $2,000,000 profit in six months. It is shown as it appeared the day after federal dry raiders swept the Jersey coast, October 16. Viewing the tank, on the estate, is a government agent. Whether it was meant for liquor or oil had not been determined. Also on the estate is the uncompleted garage (lower left), with 12-foot doors that would admit large trucks. The Albion hotel (above), on the Shrewsbury river at Highlands, housed 40 of the syndicate's alleged workers.

Heart of Robert the Bruce Gone From Resting Place in Edinburgh

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The heart of Robert the Bruce, the great Scottish chieftain, is missing.

Eight years ago the casket believed to contain Bruce's heart was taken from excavations at Melrose Abbey and given over for safekeeping to the public works department at Edinburgh.

It was intended eventually to comply with the chieftain's dying request that it be conveyed to the Holy Land.

Robert the Bruce died just 600 years ago at Cardross after winning Scottish independence from England in the battle of Bannockburn on June 24, 1314, and confirming his own right to the title of Scottish king.

He was unable personally to fulfill a vow to visit the holy sepulchre and requested his faithful follower, Sir James Douglas, to carry his heart there.

Sir James perished on the way to battles against the Moors in Spain. Sir William Keith recovered the heart of Bruce and found it at its resting place at Melrose, where it remained through the centuries.

Catts, apparently a tired old man, sat through the hours of waiting on the jury yesterday and last night.

LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON, SHE SAYS

"I was so nervous for five years that I seldom got a good night's sleep. Then I started the Sargon treatment and it restored me to splendid health."

MRS. WM. N. REDDAWAY

"I don't know what made me grow weaker all the time, but my strength and energy gradually left me and many a time I felt like I could hardly drag one foot after the other. My liver seemed to be out of order and headaches nearly kept me distracted."

"It's wonderful how Sargon brought back my health and strength. My nervous condition is so much improved that I sleep fine and get up mornings just full of energy. I hardly know myself now for the same person. Sargon Pills seemed to have cleared my system of poisons and I know my liver is working right because I never have headaches any more. I feel like it's my duty to tell about this wonderful Sargon treatment."

EXTENSION OF FILM SERVICE IS FOX AIM

Coincident with the celebration of his silver anniversary in the motion picture business, William Fox announces that he plans to expand the influence of the screen into humanitarian fields.

The first step towards increase of educational films will be the development of news reels to present the news of the world in pictures as fast as it develops.

Relative to the use of films in surgery, a sound picture of an operation with a radium knife, made in Chicago, is being shown at the convention of the American College of Surgeons in that city. Fox stated that there were many important operations which a surgeon performed but once in a lifetime, and that it was reasonable to suppose that if these operations were recorded on movie-tone film, instruction would come by the eye as well as by the ear.

Mr. Fox said in his first 25 years in the motion picture business he has seen the screen expand to become the universal medium of entertainment and that for his next 25 years his ambitions would be centered on further widening that influence to embrace the health, education and material happiness of the people of the world.
