SPECTACULAR HOLDUP
BRINGS BANDIT DEATH

CHAMPAIGN, Illa., Nov. 11.—(P) C. W. Katchman, of Mattoon, one of four robbers who staged a spectacular holdup of 60 guests, which netted $54,000 at the home of Henry H. Harris late Saturday night at a dance in celebration of Illinois' football victory over Army, died today of a bullet wound below the heart. He was shot by police who were called by one of the guests who slipped out of the room unobserved by the robbers.

A second robber, Harold Smith, of Tuscola, was arrested as he went to the aid of Katchman, while the others escaped in a waiting automobile with the loot. One policeman, Clyde Davis, was wounded in the hand during an exchange of shots.

Ye Poet's Corner

To END WAR
Benton Hart.

The guns of war no more resound
on fields
Than once were strewn with human dead.
And peace reigns o'er that hallowed ground
Where youth once fought and bled.
But there's memory within the hearts
Of thousands who were there amid that hell.
And faced the rain of shot and poison gas.
Or horrors which no mortal tongue
can tell.

And they have pledged their word
of truth
That war forevermore shall cease,
That man may change the dirge of hateful strife Unto the song of brother-love and peace.

But these are not the only voices raised
In protest 'gainst this futile human strife.'

For many a youth in splendid nobleness
Left his home and loves to give his life.

And these, a great funeral pyre
is raised,
An offering to the wounded goddess Peace.

Demand, in sacrificial eloquence,
That war, the monstrous crime,
shall cease.

Now can we 'scape the challenge
of their deeds.
For they gave all, less they despised as nought.

Can we do less than strive with might to gain if you do—that how dull they are?
The Little Black Clock said.

"They're pretty dull," the Little Black Clock said.

"Let's call them the dull dinosaurs," John suggested.

"And they won't even mind if you do—that how dull they are?"

The Little Black Clock said.

"Not We have caught the challenge
of their deeds."

And we in answer to their death
reply.

That we, like them, shall fight for
peace.

And if there's need we, too, like them, shall die.

That peace might reign in splendor o'er the earth.
Where that grim tyrant war has ruled so long;

Thenceforth history's tragic
fainting note,

Be changed to joyful ecstasy of song.

Williamette vs. Linfield.

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 11.—(P)
The top and the bottom of the northwest football conference will meet here this afternoon when Williamette University and Linfield colleges stage their annual struggle on Sweetland Field. The Bears have a decided edge.

"Hello, all you dinosaurs," called John, who decided the would be very bold.

But the dinosaurs paid no attention.

They swung their large tails
about and looked very, very foot-ish.

It was funny such big creatures
could look so silly.
