

SPAIN TO NURSE MOVIE INDUSTRY

MADRID.—(AP)—Creation of a central office to rear and protect the Spanish film industry is contemplated by the ministry of national economy. The department has explained that foreign film chiefs, American and others, were being shown here so extensively that it was practically impossible for the country to sustain its film production.

Funds for the board will come from taxes upon foreign films and from taxes upon foreign films and from contributions from Spanish movie interests. Key office receipts for foreign films will be taxed and import duties will be established. In addition there is to be an annual levy upon the capitalized value of domestic companies.

The ministry has suggested that the importation tax be determined according to the number of times that the film has been shown in other countries. At present importation costs amount to about $100,000 annually.

FLASH TAIL LIGHTS TO PROTECT LONDON COPS

LONDON.—(AP)—London's traffic policemen are to carry rear lights for safety, the measure being a companion to a recent order which mandated street cleaners with a broad white stripe on their bodies.

The lights, which will be strapped to the small of the back, are electric lamps capable of giving flash signals or of sending out a steady beam.

In spite of the white uniforms that the traffic police already wear, motorists complain that the men on point duty are almost invisible at night, especially where heavy shadows are cast across the road.

Experiments with rear lights that have been carried out at Hammersmith and Barnes have proved so successful that the system will be used throughout the metropolitan area.

BARNS ARE NUMEROUS OLD TURKISH CAPITAL

CONSTANTINOPLE.—(AP) Under the new regime in Turkey, the number of bars and other drinking establishments in Constantinople has increased 3000 per cent. When the prohibitive taboo against alcohol was lifted, their number was 2000, and there are 2000 more.

There are also twenty-five distilleries run by the government alcohol monopoly which produce three brands of raki, the potent Turkish equivalent of Russian vodka and Alabama corn.

The monopoly is about to create bigger and better distilleries at Adana, Antalya, Erzurum and Samsun, the latter to be Turkey's largest, with a productive capacity of 100,000 gallons per day.

November in the Skies

By Robert H. Baker
(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—In the north-west early in the evening in November there is a conspicuous configuration of five stars resembling an inverted muffin.

That is the constellation Auriga, the Charioteer.

The star farthest to the right really belongs to the neighboring constellation Taurus. It is at the tip of the upper horn of the Celestial Bull, whose head, still farthest to the right, is marked by the V-shaped group of the Hyades.

Between this star and the Hyades the planet Jupiter attracts the attention, for it is by far the brightest star-like object in the evening sky. Only Venus, now the morning star, surpasses it in brightness.

Capella, at the upper left corner of the inverted muffin, is the brightest star of Auriga and one of the brightest stars in the heavens. It shines with a yellow light, like the color of sunlight, and is likely to be twinkling, while Jupiter always shines with a steady light.

What appears to be a single bright star in Auriga, both with and without the telescope, turns out to be two stars nearly as far apart as the earth's distance from the sun and of nearly the same color and brightness.

This pair of yellow stars is in revolution, once around in 101 days, in a nearly circular orbit. We refer now to the brighter star of the pair.

This star contains four times as much material as there is in the sun; expressed in tone it is one followed by 28 eights. This material is entirely gaseous. It can and stronger and in better shape every way than I have been in years. I am 65 years old, but now I feel a whole lot more like I was forty.

I tried nearly every medicine I ever heard of without any real benefit, and then I turned to Sargon. Ten bottles of this medicine overcame every sign of stomach trouble, my kidneys don't bother me any more, I sleep fine, get up alert and energetic and feel like a different man. Sargon Pills regulated me without nausea or upsetting of any kind and it is a pleasure to recommend this splendid Sargon Treatment." William Haffer, retired capitalist, 649 Oregon St., Portland.
