Thirty-Five-Year Feud of Oregon Schools Renewed—Undeclared Bears Meet Losing, But Determined Husky.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The thunder of decisive battles destined to either make or break leaders of far western football, will echo over half a dozen Pacific coast gridirons today, as six conference teams fight it out, and a like number team in each other for non-conference football honors.

Undeclared and unrivalled thus far in their most difficult conquests, the Golden Bears of California will come to grips at Berkeley with an old rival from the north, Coach Enoch Bagshaw's Washington Huskies, who thus far have failed to win a game this season, but still are rated a formidable foe.

Two rivals, who for 35 years have been struggling for gridiron supremacy in Oregon will clash at Eugene, where University of Oregon meets Oregon State, the University of Oregon eleven has won a majority of the games in the past, but today the Oregon Staters were ready to give battle with a vengeance, still smarting under their defeat of last year. Oregon has lost but one conference game this season.

Wash. State favored. Washington State and the Montana Grizzlies were staging a party at Missoula, with prospects bright for the invaders of returning home with the lion's share of the honors. It will be the last home game of the season for the Grizzlies.

Looking forward to the contest of next week against California, Stanford's Cardinals today were pitted against the Bronchos of Santa Clara university in a non-conference affair. Coach Glenn Warner planned to use his second and third stringers, with possibly Bill Stimpkins, fullback, in the line-up.

The powerful St. Mary's eleven, undefeated and tied only by California, will meet the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins. St. Mary's was the favored team, holding a record among the best eleven of the season.

Idaho's Vandals and the Bulldogs of Gonzaga will battle it out in Moscow in another non-conference joust.

White is in Medford and will work out again at 5 o'clock this evening at the Armory, where the public is invited to watch him.

COVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—In a wild and thrilling football game here yesterday University of Oregon freshmen evened up their 7 to 6 defeat at Medford last week by coming from behind in the last half to defeat Oregon State Rooks, 31 to 19. The Rooks led at the half by 17 to 12.

The "break" came in the third quarter when Frank Lillie, Oregon State fullback got rough and was sent to the bench. The Rooks at the same time suffered a penalty half the distance to their own goal. The Frosh taking the ball on an Oregon State 33-yard line. A 19-yard pass, Hushlow to Sheehey, advanced the ball to the 23-yard marker. DEFECTIVE AIR CRAFT SOLD IN STATE IS CLAIM

Dealer Who Sold Five Planes Will Be Called On Carpet By Board, Is Plan—Regulation of Plane Sales Seen As Need.

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—To arrive at a policy designed to prevent the flying or the sale of unworthy airplanes in Oregon, the state board of aeronautics will meet in Salem some day next week with state officials and the manufacturers of aircraft.

In a conference with Governor Patterson and Attorney General Van Winkle, members of the board yesterday declared that the situation in Oregon is critical, and that unless something is done young fliers are going to lose their lives during the next year. It has been found that the Oregon law gives the board ample authority relative to licensing pilots, but that it is almost worthless as far as regulating the quality of planes is concerned. When the meeting is called next week it is probable that an unnamed airship dealer, who is said to have sold five defective planes in Oregon, will be summoned before the board. These ships are brought into Oregon from California, Washington, Idaho and other states where they are no longer permitted to fly.

OUT OF KEELER'S GOLF BAG

By O. B. Keeler. I see by the papers that Walter Hagen has about decided to quit that exhibition game and devote his time to business, the business being a very well organized and, I think, profitable distribution of golf equipment under his name and designed with his approval.

Following his greatest victory—the British open at Muirfield this year—the old Hag showed disappointingly at the United States open and in some other tournaments, while retaining apparently all his old box-office value for exhibitions, paired with Horton Smith under the clever management of Bob Harlow.

I don't know about this report. I do know that at Muirfield last spring the old Hag said to me, with a hint of sadness under his always casual and happy air: "I'm nearing the end of the road in golf. I've lost my keenness for the game. I can't get keyed up any more, except for some special event, say the British open. I'm coasting right now, if you want to know. And I'm having a pretty good time. I can still get out there and give the fans a show. But the zest for the old game is gone. I don't mind admitting I'm sort of looking around for a way out."
