PIONEERS RECALL

GRANTS PASS. Ore.-OF Acceptance of plans by the Josephine county commissioners of a new $49,000 bridge which soon will span the Rogue river here brings back to the minds of Scores of pioneers the early days when wagons were floated across the turbutent stream

The new steel and cement bridge is a long cry from the first nar-row, creaky span that first carried miners to and from what is now Grants Pass

In the early days, back in the 50's, many a newcomer stood on the banks of the Rogue and watched his earthly belongings dash to pieces on the rapids after efforts to float his wagon bed across the stream had failed. The new bridge which will soon replace the present one will eliminate dangerous curves on the ap-
