News From the Lower Grades
 The 2-B room had 100 per cent in health for the first time this year.
 Evelyn Holliman, Dick Morgan and Dale Bradley have been absent all week because of illness. (Coal bags moved to California.)
News From the Upper Grades
 Wallace Laddwig is with us again after an absence of a week or more due to a broken collar bone.
 The Nakano children found they will not sail for Japan for about ten days. Wednesday morning they presented the teachers a large basket of lovely fruit.
 Two new girls entered the 6-B this week. Their names are Dorothy, Betty and Delores Squire.
 We are sorry to have Robert Doy from the 3-A.
 Floyd Leith of the 6-B class was excused Wednesday afternoon to take a ride in the air.
 It is not everywhere that boys and girls can have a Thanksgiving assembly out-of-doors. We had one Wednesday afternoon. Most of us were warm enough without our wraps too. The pupils from Miss Abbott's room sang a Thanksgiving song. From Mrs. Hazlet's first grade room came a little girl dressed as a turkey and three boys dressed as ducks. Miss Tucker's girls and boys sang a short Thanksgiving song. Mrs. Newbury's pupils read us some poems they had made up themselves in language class. Some of them were very good. We had two more musical numbers. Mrs. Shangle's room sang and the Glee club from the upper grades gave us two numbers.
 Mrs. Childers' history class presented a play, "The First Thanksgiving." Governor Bradford, Miles Standish, Massasoit, Samoset and Squanto were all represented.
Banking
 The banking average was 98.4 per cent. The following six rooms banked more than 100 per cent each: Miss Tucker's 2-B, Mrs. Newbury's 2-A, 3-B, Mrs. Shangle's 2-A, 3-A, Miss Webber's 4-A, Mrs. Harrison's 6-B, and Mrs. Turner's 5-A, 6-A.
Spelling
 The spelling average was 97.7 per cent. The 6-A average was 99.2 per cent and the 2-A, 99 per cent.
Health Inspection
 The building average was 98.3 per cent.
Absent and Tardy
 Quite a number of children are absent because of colds. There are altogether too many tardy children because the clocks are slow. Those who come from 7:30 to 8:30 in the morning must come from homes where the clocks are too fast.
Thanksgiving Poems
 The boys and girls in Mrs. Newbury's 2-B class wrote original poems for Thanksgiving. These are some of the best ones:
 I'm thankful for my mother and my father too.
 I'm thankful for my meals I eat, aren't you?
 We're going to have a turkey too big and so fat.
 Don't you wish that you could have a piece of that?
 —Betty Hare, 3-B.
 I'm thankful for my mother and my father dear;
 I'm thankful for my sister and my brother all year.
 I'm thankful for my meals that I eat each day.
 And for my little friends with whom I play.
 —Leona Rowe, 3-B.
 I'm thankful for my mother and father too.
 They give me food all the year through.
 When Thanksgiving comes I get some turkey pie.
 Would you like to come to our house on that day to dine?
 —George Hopkins, 3-B.
 I'm thankful because mother and daddy are good.
 I'd like to help them as much as I could.
 —Emma Clement, 3-B.
 I am thankful for my mother, I am thankful for my father, And a turkey that goes wobble, gobble, gobble!
 —Leo Wagner, 3-B.
 I am thankful for the food I eat, I wish I could give the poor people some too.
 And that is what, if I were rich I'd be most sure to do.
 —Robert Peck.
 I love my mother and daddy too, I carry the wood and the dishes do, And that's the way they know it's true.
 —Mary Woodridge.

Butte Falls School

The following Thanksgiving program was given at the grade school Wednesday, November 27 at 8 o'clock.
Spelling
 "Story of the Pilgrims, first and second grades."
 Play, "The Pilgrim's Plan For a First Thanksgiving," seventh and eighth grades.
 Song, "The Flag Is Passing By," fifth and sixth grade boys.
 Play, "Then and Now," fifth and sixth grades. The characters were: Stage manager, David Cleveland; 1629 mother, Geneva Coffman; 1629, mother, La Yvonne

Jackson School

The reporters for this week are as follows: Spelling, Thomas Harvey; playground news, William Milhoun; banking, John Pallare; health, Margaret Rhodes; primary news, Donald Price; departmental news, John Barker; new pupils, Mary Yoss.
 News was scarce for the school week only three days long. Then too it was unusually busy with examinations.
Departmental
 The Sixth A's were making Indian blankets out of paper and then coloring them. The Sixth

Mrs. Taylor was out several days this week because of illness. Mrs. Russell took her place. We were glad to have Mrs. Taylor back.
Primary News
 Mrs. Murray's room is making posters about Holland with Dutch children playing in the foreground.
 Dick Finch of the third grade, recited a Thanksgiving poem in Mrs. Murray's room. They enjoyed it very much.
Spelling
 This week is exam week in spelling so there are no spelling averages to report.
Health
 There were two rooms that had 100 per cent. They were Mrs. Taylor's and Mrs. Laidley's rooms. The second highest was Miss MacNiven's room, with an average of 99.75. The school average was 99.24 per cent.
Playground News
 This week the boys didn't have a football to play with for a couple of days so they kept the playground cleaner than last week. The lawn has not been cleaned yet and is covered with more leaves. There aren't many leaves left to fall.
Banking
 The banking average for this week was 88.9 per cent. One hundred per cent rooms were: Mrs. Taylor's, Mrs. Reid's, Miss Briggs' and Smith's.
Spelling
 This week was examination week in spelling so there were no averages to report on.
New Pupils and Those Who Left
 The following pupils came to the Jackson school last week: Frances Gower, in the 6B, Margaret Laidley in the 1A; and Kenneth Travin, in the 2B.
 Billy Goodwin in the 1B has gone to Roseburg; Ray Moses in the 2B has gone to the Oak Grove school; John Utling in the 2B has gone to California. We are very sorry these people went away but glad the new ones have come.

Roosevelt School

Reporters
 The following pupils have well earned their Thanksgiving dinners. It's not easy to collect a week's news in three days:
 Virginia Lindley, Amy Elliott, Doris Barrett, Mary Powell.
Health
 On account of Thanksgiving, we will not have our weekly checkup in health until Monday. We ought to have plenty of time to be getting ready to bank 100 per cent, don't you think so? We will have had our Thanksgiving dinner finished and settled by then, so we can do our health chores.
Banking
 We went over our goal in banking this week.
 There were nine rooms with 100 per cent or over. They were 5B, 11A, 12; 2B, 11A, 19A, 2B, 5A, 10A, 11, 19A, 4 B, 19B, 6B, 10A, 5A-6A, 19A, 4A, 19A.
 Average for the building, 102.9 per cent.
Tests
 Most of us enjoyed taking the Stanford achievement tests after we learned that we were not expected to know everything they tested on, until we reached high school.
Spelling
 Spelling average for the building was 92.1 per cent, with Miss Webb's 2B holding high at 99.5 per cent.
Thanksgiving Program
 By grades 4, 5, 6.
 We had a very interesting Thanksgiving program on Wednesday, during our assembly period. The program was as follows: Piano solo, La Yvonne McCulloch of the 6B; song by 4th grade, poem, entitled "The Landing of the Pilgrims," by five boys of the 6B; song by Betty Vili; poem by Delores Sloper; Thanksgiving dialogue by 4B; poem by John Sloper. The program was planned by Delores Sloper of the 6B class.
Primary Assembly
 The primary grades held a very interesting assembly in the lower hall on Wednesday afternoon as follows:
 An original play, "The Story of the Pilgrims," by Mrs. Maxwell's 1B-1A classes.
 Song, "Thanksgiving Day," Mrs. Russell's, 2B.
 Dramatization, "The Pumpkin's Thanksgiving," by Miss Webb's 2B.
 Song, "Upon Thanksgiving Day," by 2A-1B girls.
Thanksgiving Holidays
 Roosevelt boys and girls have been looking forward for a week to the four days' vacation which started on Wednesday at 4:00 o'clock. They think that will give them plenty of time to get over the effects of their Thanksgiving dinners.
 Among those teachers leaving town for the week-end, are Miss Waddington to her home at Salem, and Miss Schneider to Northern California.

Portland Cadets Must Face Trial
 PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Jerry McGuire, arrested with Nick Dieis following the sensational exposé of Portland vice conditions by a 15-year-old orphan girl of Corvallis, Ore., was indicted today on a serious morals charge.
 The girl charged McGuire and Dieis held her prisoner in a cheap hotel and that the landlady removed her clothing and flung a flaming garment into the room.
 Dieis is held by immigration authorities, while McGuire was remanded to jail under $1500 bail.

Valley Folks on Holy Land Visit Tell of Temples

Mr. and Mrs. John E. McDonald of Medford and formerly of Regue Elk who left here several months ago to spend a year or more abroad and who have been spending some time with their son Harold and family at his business headquarters at Constantinople date of Nov. 19, writes from Constantinople the following description of the famed Dolma palace in that city.

 Through a courtesy extended us by the American embassy, we had the very rare privilege, today, of visiting the Dolma Bagtche palace in this city, built in 1853. It lies for blocks, gleaming white, along the Bosphorus, and stands on a site in a part where the Turkish sultans held during a reign of the city. The whole site was filled in by the labor of 16,000 Christian prisoners, in 1525. The architect was given freedom of expenditure, and expression, the only stipulation being that it must surpass, and even today, it stands unsurpassed, by only the palace of the Shah of Persia.
 This palace is the summer residence of Mustafa Kemal Pasha, the conqueror, who is now the president of Turkey; a man of ability and keen vision. He is unmarried, but has adopted many boys and girls and is giving them a college education.
 Incidentally, Turkey is forging ahead, and making history under his leadership. We presented our passports at the outer gate of the guards and were presently admitted to the spacious grounds, which were abloom with many flowers; the fountains and statues all adding to the general effect of beauty. Our guide, an intelligent looking young Turk, Hamdi Bey, and his assistant, now conducted us to the outer door of the palace.
 Here the Kapouddi, after salaaming, dusted our shoes, and took our hats. As we entered, our steps made an echo on the rich carpets, spread everywhere.
 The whole palace is a bewildering, dazzling array of pure crystal, and gold. The crystal stairway, winding, and glittering, is so magnificent, it is beyond my poor pen to describe. Time and space forbid a description of the seemingly endless succession of rooms, each with their distinctive furnishings, and brocades. These brocades were hung seventy-five years ago, and are apparently in as good condition as ever. Many of the rugs and paintings are almost priceless.
 I was especially interested in the American room, furnished in gold and soft green velvet. A large gold eagle added to the impressiveness of the room. The throne room, with its Corinthian colonnades is one hundred and thirty feet long, one hundred and fifty feet high, and eighty feet wide, furnished in gold and red. The grating windows at the end of the room permit of the sun to be seen and to watch, without themselves being seen. There are nearly eight thousand electric lights in this room, beside the crystal chandeliers with their myriads of three-hundred and thirty-three silver sockets, each containing candles.
 One of the most impressive rooms was the Turkish bath, of cream Alabaster, beautifully carved, where one sits in the center of the floor, with attendants on each side pouring water on the person, until sufficiently clean to finish the bath in the tub. The largest mirror in the world hangs in this palace. All the table service was of pure gold. Our guide informed us that many chests of gold were stored away, which had not been opened for years. We were introduced to one of the palace attendants who had been on duty, constantly, for thirty-five years, and he seemed very happy.
 The stoves in some of the rooms were about eight and ten feet high, of white enamel, and in other rooms they were huge bowls of silver. The huge vases, and many clocks, some of which were studded with diamonds, were worth a king's ransom, and one of the pianos, over two hundred years old, was inlaid with gold.
 As one passes from room to room, lost in admiration, the guide presses a button, and the heavy brocade curtains swing noiselessly back, revealing the Bosphorus with its hundred and one ships coming and going, and across on the other side, the sun gleams on the mosques and minarets of Asia Minor.
 We slipped coins in the hand of our guide, and bidding them all "Guedgeteler hayur" we drove home to sit down and write this little description for our Medford friends. We are well, and expect to leave for Palestine, and Egypt this week.

Did Mark Twain's Jumping Frog Really Jump?

A Butte, Montana, man—interested in the literary background of the west—recently visited Angels Camp in his Chevrolet coach. There the Butte man found evidence that perhaps the famed jumping frog story of Mark Twain was but a yarn told around the camp-fires.

Short And Expressive Words Gain Usage Through Newspapers, View

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The king's English is not what it used to be, but the man in the street needn't feel culpable. Instead, he may indulge in a slight expansion about the upper vest buttons and fairly adopt a heightened air of erudition.
 At least a score of widely known teachers of English here to open the annual convention of their national council, expressed themselves as convinced that evolution of the language has been to its improvement and credited the oft-maligned "newspaper" English with a goodly share in the beneficial alteration.
 Dr. E. M. Hopkins, professor of English at the University of Kansas, thought teachers were duty-bound to take a stand against innovations in the language, but he was alone in that opinion.
 "It changes fast enough anyway," said Dr. Hopkins, "and teachers must act as a restraining influence. In theory that is our stand, but it does us little good to take any stand. We might as well quit and let the language go its way."
 Arthur, Gullerston of New York, writer of humorous verse, applauded the influence of newspapers in popular speech.
 "Headlines inform the people that an agreement is a 'pact,'" he said, "that a tennis match is a 'net tiff,' that an explosion is a 'blast.' Along with the headlines go news stories couched in strong, simple language."
 teens which participated in the work, the making of the tumbler, solving, etc. A vote of thanks was also given to the Jones Cash Grocery, which donated the coffee; to the city officials who donated the building and to all the townspeople who by their patronage helped to make the sale a success.

Mt. Pitt School

Absences
 There were two absences this week. They are Doris Hoxie and Wesley Driskell. Wesley was absent Friday. These absences are very unusual for the Mt. Pitt school. We have had a very good attendance so far this year.
 —Hazel McCabe, 7th Grade.
Pictures Taken
 The pupils of the Mt. Pitt school had their pictures taken Wednesday at noon by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, grandparents of Doris Hoxie. It took Mrs. Stanley quite a while to get the children together and looking their best. We hope no one disgraced the picture.
 —Irene Anderson, Grade 5.
New Pupils
 On November 27 we had two new pupils come to the Mt. Pitt school. They are Otis and David Garrison. Otis is 10 years old and in the fourth grade. David is nine years old and in the third grade. We were very glad they came as it makes more in our school, and there is another player for each side in our ball game. Otis is on the Swampers' side and David is on the Clippers' side. We have been playing baseball for a long time and will continue while the weather is so nice, as the game never ceases to be interesting.
 —Beulah Heryford, 5th Grade.
