

REIGELS AT TOP AS ALL-COAST STAR

California Captain Gets 23 Votes Out of 25 for Mythical Lineup—Colbert of Oregon Only Player to Place From State—Bay Area Places Five on Ghost Team.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—(AP) Out of the huddle, eleven young stalwarts stepped to the line of scrimmage today as the outstanding football players on the Pacific coast in 1929, a consensus compiled by the Associated Press revealed yesterday. More than 29 officials, coaches and sports writers of the west aided in the selections. Out of a speedy, fighting aggregation of linemen and fleet backfield men winning berths on the mythical all-coast team, Roy Riegels, California captain and center, loomed above them all. After committing one of football's biggest "boners" last New Year's day in Pasadena, Riegels came back this season as reflected in the votes of the experts. Twenty-three out of 25 placed him at center.

Three University of Southern California football players and a similar number from California with one each from St. Mary's, Stanford, Oregon, Washington and Washington State are represented on the 1929 All-Coast football team, the pick of an Associated Press consensus. More than 29 sports writers, coaches and officials from all parts of the far west aided in the selections.

End—Muller, Stanford. Tackle—Ackerman, St. Mary's. Tackle—Colbert, Oregon. Guard—Schwarz, California. Guard—Barrager, Southern California. Center—Riegels, California. Quarterback—Duffield, Southern California. Halfback—Lom, California. Fullback—Schwartz, Washington State. Second Team End—Norton, California. End—Ebling, St. Mary's. Tackle—Schwegler, Washington. Tackle—Christensen, Oregon. Guard—Shields, Oregon. Guard—Hansen, Washington State. Center—Heinecke, Stanford. Quarterback—Saunders, Southern California. Halfback—Stennett, St. Mary's. Halfback—Moffatt, Stanford. Fullback—Smalling, Stanford. LA GRANDE, Ore. — Arnold Hallmark, 10, was injured seriously when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Harold Johnson.

CORBETT SCORES TECHNICAL KAYO SEVENTH FRAME

Kid Dennis, the Denver colored boy, managed to stay with Tom Corbett, the two-headed Sacramento Irishman, until the seventh round in last night's 10-round main event at the Armory before a good sized crowd. Dennis fought every minute of the fight, but was unable to land his famous left which brought Gene Grady down for the count of eight in his last fight in Medford. The colored boy opened the fight cautiously and the first round ended evenly, but the second round brought blood to Dennis' mouth. Dennis went down for the count of nine in the third round and was down again in the fourth and sixth. A blow over a kidney floored the colored boy at the end of the seventh and he would have been out for the count had not the bell saved him. When the bell rang for the eighth, Dennis was unable to return. Corbett fought a cool, even fight, but at times displayed a burst of action, catching his opponent in the face and sending him down. Dennis seemed afflicted with a glass jaw. It did not appear to take much of a blow to knock him down. During the entire fight, the colored boy landed only one or two blows that jarred Corbett, but he was always looking for an opening to send in his left, but the opening never came. Dennis failed to live up to his string of victories, 19 of which he claimed by the knockout route. It was his second defeat here in a month, the first coming a short time ago when Gene O'Grady knocked him out in the first round. With last night's victory to his credit, Corbett is anxious for another match with O'Grady and it is possible that it may come on the next Medford card.

As long as it lasted, the semi-windup between Joe Martinez of Sacramento and Teddy Miske of Klamath Falls, was a fast affair. A blow in the stomach during the second round made it unnecessary for Miske to continue further. Blows were exchanged freely but the ring generalship belonged to dark-skinned California fighter, who has been winning most of his battles. A four round special event presented Hippo Melride, who lived up to his name, against Harold Wright, Chilouqui Indian. Hippo, whose home address was not given, possibly had good intentions upon entering the ring, but he was unable to carry them out, either because he had taken on too much weight or because Wright would not stand still long enough. Hippo fell to the mat in the third round for the count of nine, regained his feet and continued the match with his copper-skinned opponent, who he regarded as the best on the reservation around Chilouqui. When he had the fight coming his way, Tex Porter, Medford boy of 140 pounds, apparently ran out for the third round and the decision went to Ralph Burke, pride of the Nash hotel. It was Porter's first appearance for some time. A curtain raiser ended in victory for Harry Janus, 137, Indian of Klamath county, when Snipe Campbell of Ashland refused to come back into the ring after he had knocked Janus to the mat. Referee Fred Erickson counted Janus out, but the bell rang on the ninth count. Campbell thought he had won the fight and left the ring in a hurry. When the mistake was rectified, and another round was to begin, Janus was ready and Campbell was not. Earle Davis was official announcer for the evening, while Oscar Dunford tolled the bell. VANCOUVER, SEATTLE IN TIE HOCKEY GAME VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 3.—(AP) Although Seattle failed to conquer the Vancouver Lions in last night's Pacific coast hockey league feature here, the Eskimos kept their season's record clean of defeat when the teams emerged from the battle with one goal each after overtime. OPPONENTS CLAMOR TO BOX ART SHIRES CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP) Charles Arthur (the Great) Shires will encounter no difficulty in obtaining opponents when he makes his debut as a professional boxer. In fact, Charles Arthur would hardly have time to look after his baseball duties, if he agreed to meet all who have applied to promoter Jim Mullen, for the assignment of fighting him. Don Murray, captain and tackle of the Chicago Bears pro football team, and Merle Hogue, Chicago Cardinal tackle, have put in earnest bids for bouts with Charles Arthur. In addition, a great number of policemen, firemen and day laborers have placed challenges with Mullen.

PITTSBURG AND YALE PLACE 3 EACH ALL-EAST

Cagle Only Holdover From Last Year's Mythical All-Star Lineup—Booth, Uansa, Marsters Complete Backfield.

By Ted Voshburgh Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP) Pittsburg and Yale, with three representatives apiece, win the lion's share of the honors on the all-eastern football eleven for 1929 named by a consensus of sports writers polled by the Associated Press. In the first team lineup is only one survivor of last year's all-star array—Koener Cagle of the Army. The West Point redhead who played football all season on a losing team to hold his halfback post against as brilliant a bevy of backs as ever trod the eastern gridirons. Little Albie Booth of Yale, the only sophomore selected, is named quarterback and Toby Uansa, with more votes than any other back, becomes Cagle's running mate. Completing the backfield Al Marsters, Dartmouth, is designated as the player at fullback, a position for which he is made to order, although his regular post was at half. Joe Donchess of Pittsburg is a top-heavy choice for one end position and the other goes to Jim Douglas of Harvard despite hot competition from such valuable wingmen as Nemecok of New York university and Booma of Dartmouth, placed on the second team. Sam Wakeman, Cornell leader, and Fay Vincent, Yale captain-elect, win the first team tackle assignments. Captain "Firpo" Greene of Yale and Ray Montgomery, Pittsburg, get the call at guard and Ben Ticknor, Harvard captain-elect, beat out Tom Siano of Fordham for first string center selection. Colgate's well balanced strength and team play is reflected in the fact that while Coach Andy Kerr's formidable eleven had no outstanding star to win first team recognition Gilson, guard; and Hart, halfback, were placed on the second team and several other players were among the best in the section, receiving honorable mention. The selections: First team: Donchess, Pittsburg, left end; Wakeman, Cornell, left

...in a gown it's STYLE!

... in a cigarette it's TASTE!

STYLES vanish with the seasons—but good taste in cigarettes, once achieved, never changes. The wholesome goodness of fine tobaccos is not to be improved on. True today, true a hundred years from now—taste is what smokers want; taste is what they judge by. And taste is what Chesterfield offers—the superlatively good taste of tobaccos chosen for their mild richness, fragrance, and satisfying character—
