Traffic officers must have the cooperation of the motoring public more and more each year, it was declared by Lieutenant O. A. Nichols of the Oregon traffic force, speaking on the subject of safety in observance of National Safety week.

Today there are 20 officers in the state and more than 4,000 Oregon cars per officer, the speaker, a member of the Medford Lions club, declared. With the addition of 90,000 registered out of the state cars, and possibly that many more not registered, there are from 8,000 to 10,000 automobiles for every traffic officer, he asserted.
