OREGON APPLES EVENLY DIVIDED

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis—(Special)—Out of every three marketable apples produced in Oregon, one is consumed on the Pacific coast, one goes to some distant market in the United States and one is shipped to a foreign market.

Studies by Ralph S. Besse, associate in farm management at the Oregon agricultural experiment station, and M. R. Cooper, agricultural economist of the United States department of agriculture, published in a recent bulletin of the Oregon station, show that 31.7 per cent of Oregon apples are marketed on the Pacific coast, 29.3 per cent are marketed in other sections of the United States and 29 per cent are exported. Oregon apples shipped to other states are mostly to the Atlantic coast.

The leading varieties exported were Yellow Newtowns, comprising 70 per cent of the total. Esopus Spitzenburg, Ortley, Jonathan, Arkansas Black and Delicious. All important varieties were in demand to some extent in practically every section of the United States.
