HULA HULA girls in Honolulu better look to their laurels since Dorothy MacKail, Hollywood cinema actress, has taken up the shivery art.

EVOLUTION OF THE DIRIGIBLE from the pony blimp to the ZRS-4, the world's largest dirigible, now under construction in Akron, O., is pictured above. The new air monster, being built for the U. S. navy, will be 785 feet long and 146 feet high and of far greater capacity than the Graf Zeppelin. The new airship has been drawn to scale in this picture.

NEW STYLE in college clothes was set by Virginia Rugh, above, the first Smith College girl to wear a Labrador wind breaker.

STRIKING is this character study of an Indian woman at Glacier National Park. She is hanging venison to sun-dry.

REFLECTIVELY SPEAKING, Alice White, movie star, strikes an intriguing pose and gives a double portion of her roguish self by means of a mirror.

CANDIDATE for honor of being the youngest lone traveler is LaBria Catalina Cortez, above, 20-month-old baby, who sailed alone from San Francisco to Honolulu to make her home with her father.

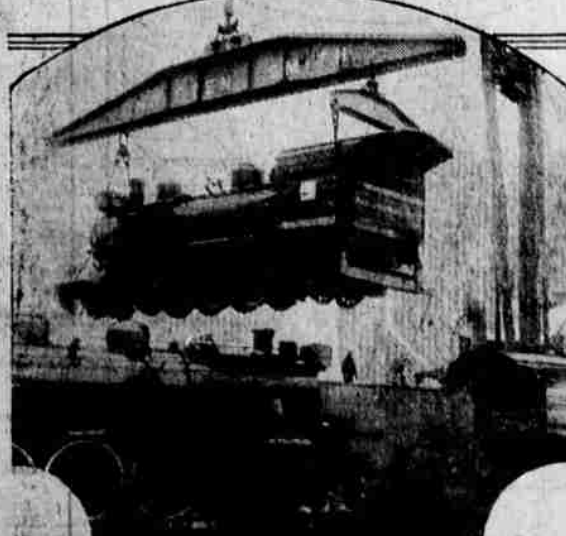

HAPPY is Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, pictured above, leaving the White House after conferring with President Hoover on increasing the exemption of single persons under the federal income tax law.

TWO STRIKING PICTURES showing the Capitol building, above, and the White House, were taken after the first heavy snowfall of the winter had blanketed Washington.

THE MYTHOLOGICAL UNICORN will be companion to the lion on the stone coat-of-arms which will adorn the new British embassy building at Washington. These unique figures were carved in the limestone mills at Bedford, Ind., from models made in Belgium. The lion, emblem of Great Britain, is familiar to everyone, but the unicorn is a creation of the sculptor's imagination.

SIXTY-TON LOCOMOTIVES are handled like toys by this huge hoisting crane. The picture shows an engine being hoisted aboard a steamer for shipment to Chili from the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Eddyville, Pa.

WHEN KNUTE ROCKNE isn't guiding the destinies of those famous "fighting Irish" grid stars at Notre Dame, he's spending his leisure hours with his children. Here you see him with his two youngest, Jack and Jean.
