The Golden Rule

Our spirit is the God within,
A conscience for defining sin,
It's ever present day and night,
To decide between wrong and right.

Our conscience will prompt us what to do,
In place of sorrow will bring joy to you.
If we but follow this grand urge,
Our daily life with peace will merge.

The Golden Rule covers all that's good,
By the simplest mind is understood.
It should be taught in every school
To practice and live the Golden Rule.

D. T. GERDES.

Table-garden in Favor

Little gardens for the dining room table are more and more popular. These tend toward the oriental in both container and garden. Flat, Chinese or Japanese pottery bowls, with some foliage water plants, are sufficient, or a decorative porcelain or bronze bird, arbor, or little temple may stand in the dish, the figure perforated with holes for cut flowers.
