O. E. G. Greet Grand Matron
Over 280 members of the Central Point, Jacksonville, Ashland and Medford chapters of O. E. G. met at the Masonic temple last night to participate in exemplification of the lodge work and greet Mrs. Elizabeth Tipton of Portland, widow grand matron, on her official visit.

The lodge rooms were beautifully decorated in ferns, climbing roses, azaleas and dogwood with lamps shedding soft light over the spring blossoms. The decorating was done by Mrs. Marie Schoepen and Mrs. Edna Isaac. Sheoepen also arranged the tables in the dining room for the 11:30 supper. Spices, snowballs and candy with occasional mixed bouquets of colored flowers were used on the tables.

The program for the evening was completed under the leadership of Mrs. Grace Boyle, chairman of the committee. The lodge work was divided between the four chapters, each one putting on an impressive ceremony.

A silver bowl was presented Mrs. Tipton by the chapter. A lovely bouquet of flowers given by W. H. McGowan of this city, past grand matron.

The program was opened by a song of welcome sung by Mrs. Isaac, well known local soloist. Proceeding the meeting at the Masonic temple a 6:30 dinner was served at Hotel Medford, honoring Mrs. Tipton. Courses were presented the guest of honor, patrons, patrons and all past grand officers.

Local Productions
Social groups of Medford are more concerned with dramatics than any other district this week, judging from productions at various affairs. Little folks as well as adults are interested in "stage" and have a part to play in the productions announced for the coming week.

Tomorrow the children of the Valley school will present "The Crystal Heart," an appropriate little spring fantasy for May day, written and directed by Thomas Swann. The curtain will rise at 2 p.m.

Friday evening the Greater Medford club musical comedy, "Hello There," will be presented in the armory.

Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week "Mrs. Bumpstead Leigh" will be staged by the St. Mark's guild with several well known local artists in the cast.

Garden Club
Meets Thursday.
Members of the Medford Garden club and other residents interested in the growing of bulbs are anticipating the meeting of the club on Thursday evening, which will have as main speaker, Ben Bones of Grants Pass. Mr. Bones will bring with him an exhibit of tulips and give an enlightening talk on culture of bulbous plants.

Guest Returns Home
Mrs. Harry Wortman, Jr., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wortman of this city for the past week, leaves today for her home, Weed, Cal.

Guild Announces Card Party
Both progressive and pivot bridge will be in play and prizes awarded at the card party announced for Friday afternoon, May 2, by a committee of St. Mark's Guild ladies. Playing will start at 2:15 p.m.

New cards have been purchased for the occasion and several novel features will be introduced.

VALLEY SCHOOL PRESENTS PLAY 'CRYSTAL HEART'

Thursday, May 1, at 2 p.m. the curtain will rise in the new studio auditorium of the Valley school for the play, "The Crystal Heart," written and directed by Tom Swann.

Every child in the school will be on the stage, which is being prepared for the occasion and a record crowd is anticipated. Natalie Tengvold will be the dainty girl heroine, "Lee," with Mrs. Scherer as her mother. Miss Tompkins and Jimmie Teasley are the grandparents, while Bobby Conroy is the father of "Lee."

Young "Robin" is Billy Vawter, and Anne Dean appears in the role of Madame Rouge-Gorge (Red Breast). A little white rabbit, "Peter," has a great deal to say through the mouth of Douglas Janney. The "Kitty" is "Kitty Willow," fresh from the fields.

A big wind, Cranmer Kenly, is followed by six little breezes, Billy Salada, David and Mickey Johnson, Bobby Tuttle, Frank Mosher and David Rosenberg, Jr.

A gay weather vane is Shelby Tuttle with a cape that is gray on the outside and sky-blue within. Barbara Jeanne Schuler is a stray sunbeam dancing on the stage. Other sunbeams, Polly Scherer, Polly Dean, Anne Drysdale and Gertrude Shepard.

They are followed by their father the Sun, Jimmie Henry. A cloud threatens to hide the sunbeam. The cloud, Phoebe Dean, is in black and white. But she prefers her white, which she is tinted with light-pink which she sheds later.

Among the flowers that bloom are four hyacinths, Patricia Farrell, Harris James, Nanette Rosenberg and David Williams. An especially sleepy hyacinth is little Susan Vilas who finally wakes up with enthusiasm. Carol Tengvold is a daisy. The daffodils are Nancy Clark, Jeanne Sala, Emily Scherer and Deborah Tully. There are two tulips, Nancy Day and Martha Scherer. Four gardeners who help the flowers to grow are Buddy Dodge, Jerry Vawter, Weldon Hilde and Spencer Wells.

"Spring" herself is Helene Salada. And the part of the poet who appears at the last is taken by Ruth Mosher. It is to the sad poet that the mischievous breeze has given the crystal heart belonging to the little girl, Lee.

What can persuade the poet to give back the heart? Something must out-weigh it in the scales. What can it be? The third, and last, act will tell this story. For the purpose of paying for the stage curtain, a small admission will be charged.

LOCAL RADIO PLAYERS IN STAGE APPEARANCE
Included in the cast of the delightful comedy, "Mrs. Bumpstead Leigh" which is to be presented at St. Mark's Hall in Medford next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, are several artists well known to radio listeners. Jo Murray Rostel, Harold Brown, Fletcher Fish and Gene Wright have been heard in many of the dramas presented by the Copco players over KMGD and Roberta Lebb has also been present in song recitals through the local station.

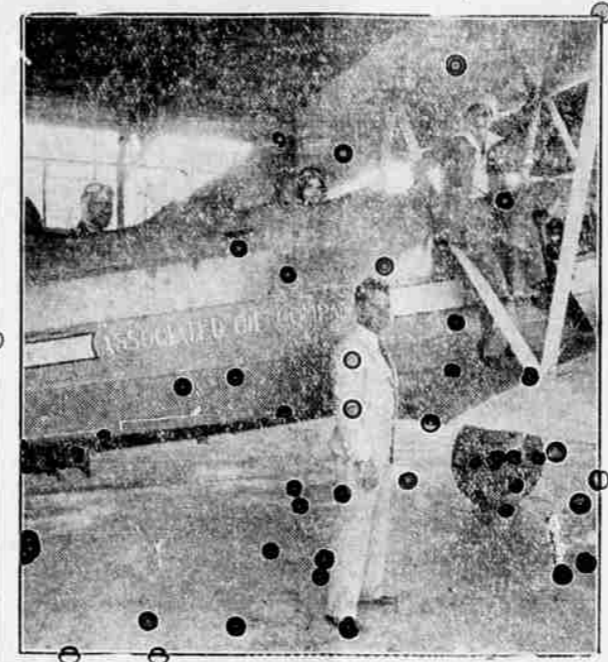

The presence of these favorites in the cast will doubtless be of interest to the host of radio listeners and many who are acquainted only with the radio presentations, will have an opportunity to see them performing "in person."

PIONEER NURSERYMAN WITS G. P. CLAIRMAN
The report from Grants Pass that a nurseryman there had grown a blossoming lavender moss rose on a stalk of a black locust tree, claimed as something new in the flower and nursery world, has drawn a protest from N. S. Bennett of the Eden Valley Nursery.

He said today, discussing the matter: "The grafting of the Rose Anacia (Robinia hispida) into the black locust is a common practice with any of the nurserymen all over the coast country, and top worked trees grafted in this manner are listed in the catalogues of nearly all the large nurseries. These grafts are placed at about six feet on a thrifty growing black locust and the dwarf growing Rose Anacia produces a bushy growth that is very attractive when in full bloom."

Fashions in Aerial Apparel

Air week in Seattle proved an innovation in many ways. Designed to show the late aeronautical development, it has shown feminine visitors something more, that fashions change in aerial apparel. Only a short time ago when women in the air were few they wore, on the whole, their own pilots and wore overalls and helmet. Emory Bronte, remembered as the first civilian to make the trip to Hawaii, set a good example for the modern woman in costumes for the modern woman who travels by plane as habitually as by boat or rail. "Clothes for air travel," said Bronte, who heads the aviation department of the Associated Oil Company, "should be strictly above for comfort and, of course, with frills have no place in the air."

A contrast between the feminine air costumes of yesterday was offered visitors at the municipal airport when Miss Pearl Harris, garment designer and helmet, and Miss Letitia Philpott, in a tailored costume especially designed for air travel, visited Emory Bronte and George Olson in their Associated Oil company plane, "Motor States."

Following the parade, crowds will gather at the city park for the official program and presentation of the health inspection cup by Mrs. Josephine Jones, school nurse. The festival program, arranged by Mrs. Maudie Jones of the physical education department, will follow the health program. A prize will be given to the school which presents the prettiest Maypole event.

NO DAMAGE DONE BY LIGHT FROST
No pears were damaged by the slight frost which bit the Rogue River valley last night, according to reports received today. Floyd D. Young, frost expert, announced this afternoon. The clouds which hung over the city this morning were a combination of smudge, smoke and fog. Light firing was done in the majority of orchards in the colder region north and south of Medford.

Indications for tonight, Mr. Young announces, point to a slightly heavier frost, but nothing severe. The temperature went down to 29 in Medford and as low as 29 in the coldest orchards last night. A dense fog set in about 4 a.m., slowly warming up the atmosphere to such an extent that many orchards where smudging was not done suffered no damage.

UNUSUAL MUSICAL PROGRAM TONIGHT SENIOR HI SCHOOL

One of the most unusual programs to be presented at the senior high school will be given this evening under auspices of the Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs, directed by Miss Margaret Arnold, music instructor of the Medford schools.
