Back from Cater Lake

On the average of 2[illegible] cars daily pass through Anna Springs on the Crater Lake highway, according to William Godfrey, chief ranger of the Crater Lake national park, who returned yesterday from several days at the lake. Quite a number of cars arrived yesterday at Government camp and passengers hiked over the snow to the rim of the lake, affording a beautiful view in its covering of white. Motor travel to the rim will probably not be possible until that latter part of next month.

Confined to His Home

Tom Merriman was reported severly ill at his home on Crater Lake avenue, suffering from an attack of influenza.

Tengwald in Portland

Carl Y. Tengwald of Medford, registered at the New Heathman, says that advices have been received to the effect that tourist travel from the south into Oregon will be larger this year than it was a year ago. There is a consistent campaign being carried on in all towns along the Pacific highway to paint up and clean up, in order to make the most favorable impression upon the tourists.—Morning Oregonian.

Visited Klamath Yesterday

Sergeant Grover Owen, local United States army recruiting sergeant, spent yesterday in Klamath Falls attending to business matters. He reported the Greensprings highway to afford poor traveling in several stretches, due to construction and improvement work. Portions of the road are particularly rough and require caution in driving over them. The bad road is this side of Pinehurst, he said. Work so far has resulted in the elimination of several bad turns.
