LOCAL POPULATION FIGURE IS 11,028
Medford has a population of 11,028, according to information secured today from a highly authentic source. These figures will be officially confirmed within the week, it is expected.

The preliminary census report placed the local population at 10,847, an increase of 88 per cent over the 1920 census.

An extension of time for a recheck was granted by District Supervisor J. H. Koke of Eugene, which ended a week ago.

The new figures show an increase of 181 new names. The Chamber of Commerce mailed in over 200 names, but in the official recheck it was revealed that a few names were already listed.

RICHFIELD TANKER NEAR TOTAL LOSS
SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—(AP)—With but little hope of success, salvage vessels today awaited an opportunity to refloat the Richfield oil company's tanker, Richfield, which ran aground yesterday in Drake's bay, 35 miles north of here.

Two attempts by the salvage tug, Manager, to pull the tanker free last night, resulted in the breaking of the tow line both times.

Captain Henry Lee and the 27 members of his crew were removed from the Richfield by the coast guard patrol boat, Smith.

ROBINSON CRITICISM 'STRICTLY POLITICAL'
WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP)—Secretary Davis said in a statement today that the criticisms of employment statistics made yesterday by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, had been "strictly political" in purpose.

The new figures show an increase of 181 new names. The Chamber of Commerce mailed in over 200 names, but in the official recheck it was revealed that a few names were already listed.

PRESIDENT PLANNING PARKS VISIT IN FALL

which are so easy to make before election and often so difficult—often impossible—to carry out later. I will have none of them, and ask no votes on the basis of them.

"As I say, managing Oregon is managing a big business. What may seem wise today may prove unwise a year or two years from today. I don't believe a candidate should be given votes simply because he makes this vote-getting promise or that. You all know the value of campaign promises. I think the decision of the people should rest on past performances rather than future promises, upon qualities of character that can be depended upon to take Oregon safely through whatever conditions may be confronted, rather than upon rosy pictures of a new millennium, if only this man or that is elected."

Mr. Corbett made no attempt at oratory, indulging in none of the usual political platitudes and platitudes, just talked in a simple, conversational way, but there was no doubt that what he said, and the speaker himself, made a most favorable impression upon everyone present.

There was a large attendance—over 200 men and women from all parts of Jackson county—probably the largest and most enthusiastic crowd ever to attend a midday political luncheon of this kind in southern Oregon. Seeley Hall, former commandery of the American Legion, presided, and E. V. Carter of Ashland, veteran banker and former speaker of the house at Salem, gave a graceful introductory speech.

The majority of the morning session was devoted to transactions of business with reports by the secretary, Mr. Weider and treasurer, W. H. Hodges of Eugene.

S. W. Lawrence of Portland, who was scheduled to give the main address, did not arrive until noon, so his speech was postponed until the afternoon session.

REEVES TO OPEN FIGHT ON WEEVIL
Through the efforts of A. C. Allen, horticultural commissioner, George L. Reeves, senior extension agent of the department of agriculture, has been obtained to begin operations on control of the alfalfa weevil in Jackson, Josephine and Klamath counties.

Mr. Reeves, who is already in this city, comes here from Lake City headquarters. He is a specialist on the alfalfa weevil and will start work on the survey of these counties immediately.

ROSEBURG SQUATTER GIVEN TERMINAL JAIL
PORTLAND, Ore., May 9.—(AP)—Finney Post, under arrest for the fourth time for persisting in maintaining his squatter-farm on the Fish Creek desert, 65 miles east of Roseburg in the Umpqua National forest reserve, was today sentenced to six months in the county jail, and fined $500. He was given a stay of 60 days in which to move his family and arrange his affairs.

Post pleaded guilty to a charge of contempt of court, which accused him of continuing to live on his squatter's claim after being ordered off by the court in 1926.

to tell those persons to whom the trade is newer, a few things about the business. The formation of such an organization as the Oregon Laundry Owners Benefit and Protective association was cited by Mr. Trevis as a great thing for young men.
