ESTHETIC—Ruth St. Denis, famous dancer, is shown here as she demonstrated a movement before a group of society girls of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art who recently presented a play called "The Italian Fantasy." It was the first time Miss St. Denis has ever coached an amateur group.

PRETTY GRIM BUSINESS FOR COLLEGIANS, but they're all fighting for the glory of their Alma Mater. This striking group of photos was taken at the Pennsylvania Relay carnival held recently at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. The statuesque athlete at the left is L. H. Levy, of Cornell, who won the 16-pound shot put event with a hurl of 47 feet. Topping the timbers in the upper picture are four Yale athletes who provided one of the most thrilling races in their 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay. R. L. Todd, of the University of Indiana, is shown at the lower left as he was clearing the bar in the high jump at 5 feet 5 1/2 inches. And to the right is the hair-raising finish of the second heat of the 400-meter run in which George Spanding, right, of Morgan College, nosed out L. Parlette of Georgetown.

THEY ARE NOT BOOKKEEPERS, but they know how to keep their balance. These cyclists, stars at the Hippodrome in Berlin, startled the Sunday crowds in the German capital recently when they went in the streets in this fashion to take their afternoon drive.

PUFFING UP WITH PRIDE is the Leviathan as it steams into New York harbor with the distinguished members of the American delegation to the London naval conference on board. The navy dirigible Los Angeles is shown above, paying its respects to the returning statesmen.

TO THE POINT was John Riebel, above, of Columbus, O., when he competed in the intercollegiate fencing tourney at New York as a member of the Ohio State University Epee team.

CHECK YOUR HAT, PLEASE?—If you have a secret, you can confide in pretty Merna Kennedy, above, because she'll be sure to keep it under her hat. Wouldn't you like to carry the hatbox containing this cute little sombrero?

A HOWLING SUCCESS IN THE TALKIES is seven-months-old Thelma Kingwell, above, who, as a player in a new British film, has the distinction of being the youngest film actress in the world. There is no mistake that Thelma is registering happiness here.

TOE DANCER—Pretty Esther Whalen, daughter of Police Commissioner Whalen of New York, is pictured here in the costume she wore recently at a dance recital in the Hotel Astor.

SHAKY BUT NOT NERVOUS—Kanani, above, three-year-old Hawaiian, who is shown here making a garland of carnations on the sands of Honolulu, is said to be the youngest garland weaver on the islands. Besides, she can play the ukulele and shake a mean shimmy.

IN TALKING ABOUT ANIMAL ACTS, a good word must be said for Prince, pet lion of Clyde Beatty, trainer for the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus. When a tiger attacked Beatty at Kokomo, Ind., recently and overpowered him, Prince entered the fray, repelled the invader and thus saved his master's life. Beatty is shown above with Prince.
