

Chiropractic for Epilepsy

The disease itself rarely destroys life. In the rare cases where it does, death from exhaustion follows the condition wherein the fits succeed each other so rapidly that the patient does not regain consciousness during the interval.

The patient may or may not experience the epileptic aura. This aura, when present, consists in most cases, of an apparent vapor arising from the trunk and passing upward towards the head. When it reaches the head, the patient may or may not utter a cry, and, if he is standing, falls.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

There are other premonitory indications or warnings which are of varied character.

The clonic spasm lasts but a few moments, and the patient falls into a profound slumber, which varies in length, and awakens with a severe headache and with no idea as to what transpired during the seizure. Epilepsy can be differentiated from hysteria from the fact that the epileptic has not time to find a soft spot to fall on.

The attacks often come with apparent regularity, but in most cases the frequency varies.

The disease usually makes its appearance between the ninth and twentieth years. When the attacks occur with great frequency, giving the patient no time for recuperation, there is a marked mental dullness, poor memory, defective reasoning, and lack of power of concentration.

There is a third manifestation known as Jacksonian epilepsy, or partial epilepsy, marked by the fact that the patient is conscious throughout and is able to watch the process of the spasm. This is ascribed to pressure from depression of the skull.

Epilepsy was very well known in ancient times, and was looked upon as an evil omen, and also as a special infliction of the gods, and at the time, if any member of the Roman forum was seized by an attack, the assembly was broken up. The ancients also thought that an epileptic was under the influence of his Satanic majesty, and while that belief is not prevalent in present day life, the disease is still looked upon as a disgrace and something to be hidden from the world at large, and the patient, instead of being permitted to continue his educational or business pursuits, is at once surrounded by a bodyguard of loving relatives, who, through misguided devotion, try to make easy the patient's hours of affliction, and at the same time keep the dark secret hidden from their friends.

Epilepsy does not seem to exert an injurious effect upon the general health, and even in an aggravated form a great degree of bodily vigor may be maintained by the patient.

Many cases of epilepsy have been adjusted, and the facts positively prove that Chiropractic removes the cause and eliminates the trouble.

Murder at High Tide

BY CHARLES G. BOOTH

CHAPTER 17
"BUT WE SHALL KNOW"

I STARED at the broken phoenix, then turned to Fliques, who was enjoying my astonishment.

"When did you find it?"

"But an hour ago. A curiosity brought me to the birds." He twirled his mustache. "The curiosity of Anatole Fliques is the greatest of Anatole Fliques, my friend."

"Well," I said, "this explains my adventure in the billiard room."

"Oh, but do you perceive the significance of what you see?"

"That the phoenix is broken?"

"Precisely! That remarkable bird was M. Parados' goddess of luck—his sacred tallman. Mrs.

Samuels had a word to say. "What about that rose you dropped into the waste paper basket last night, Grainger?"

"I don't know what you are talking about," Grainger answered again.

"All right," Grainger went on. "You certainly got under his skin with that riding quilt," Samuels admitted. "Where'd you find it?"

"It was on top of that safe."

"How do you know Parados used it on him?"

Fliques chuckled. "I did not know. But I did not think it was the branch of a eucalyptus tree. Then I found this whip, and I remembered Grainger's eyes."

"His eyes—what do you mean?"

"Ah, monsieur, that is my little idea."

Miss Jabries appeared at that instant. "Miss Jabries," Samuels began abruptly, "you were seen coming out of Mr. Annersley's room around 2:30 this morning. What were you doing there?"

"Who saw me?" she inquired.

"That doesn't matter," Samuels answered sharply. "Answer my question!"

"I haven't anything to say," Miss Jabries replied.

She then informed us that breakfast was ready and took her departure.

"You are sure, my good Grainger, it was not... this?"

Parados has said so. It is stolen. He is killed. It is returned—broken. You see? The one who stole it has the simple mind. Perhaps he hated monsieur. Monsieur is killed—his primitive mind is satisfied, and he returns the goddess—broken.

"You mean that he returned it broken to symbolize Parados' broken life?"

"Ah, that is it!"

"Doesn't it suggest that le Balafre and Bee did this?"

"You assume too much. We do not know who killed him. But we shall know—I assure you of that!"

I was on the point of picking the phoenix up when Fliques stopped me.

"No, no!" he exclaimed. "M. Samuel will desire to inspect it for the fingerprints."

Samuels came in then and Fliques introduced him to the discovery.

"And so, monsieur, we have another little mystery," Fliques finished. "M. Hunt has an adventure for you, also."

Samuels inspected the halves of the phoenix with the lens.

"Don't see any fingerprints," he said disgustedly. "All right, Hunt. I described again how I had stumbled on Celia and Annersley in the pergola, my experience in the billiard room, and Miss Jabries' departure from Annersley's room."

"Annersley—Jabries," Samuels muttered. "Yet they alibied each other. We'll have Miss Jabries in." He pulled the bell rope and Grainger appeared.

"Tell Miss Jabries to come," Samuels said abruptly.

Fliques stopped him as he reached the door.

"How is your face this morning?"

"Some better, thank you," Grainger answered.

"Good. But are you sure that it was the branch of a eucalyptus tree?"

"Yes, sir."

"You are sure—it was not this?" Fliques' hand snapped out with a riding quilt. He cracked it. Fury blasted the graven dignity of Grainger's face.

"I don't know what you are talking about, sir," he said.

There were seven of us at the table: Mrs. Parados, Celia and Caroline, Fliques, Samuels, Annersley and myself. John, it appeared, had breakfast at the tower. Fliques and his wit made the meal bearable.

"Lum We is the brightest jewel in the crown of madame," he announced.

"He's well paid," Mrs. Parados said dryly.

"His reward is not of this earth, madame," Fliques chuckled through a mouthful of pancake.

"Yes, Annersley cut in, "I heard Mr. Parados tell him he'd break every bone in his body if he brought any more 'stuff' into the house. Perhaps he referred to Lum We's income."

All of us were glad to break away from the table. Caroline and I had a word together.

"We might look over the island as soon as I'm free," I suggested.

Samuels would be having something to say to Annersley about Miss Jabries and I did not want to miss anything.

"Oh, I'd love to!" Caroline exclaimed. "I do so want to get out of this dreadful house."

"You've stood it pretty well," I said stoutly.

I should have said something foolish if Samuels' voice had not interrupted.

"Will you come into the library, Mr. Annersley?"

"All right," Annersley answered. "Afterwards" I whispered to Caroline.

"Of course, I'll be up on the slope somewhere."

(Copyright, 1930, William Morrow and Company)

Annersley again! Unexpected evidence develops when he is quizzed tomorrow.

JAVA VILLAGE IN PATH VOLCANO MUD STREAM

SAMARANG, Java, May 20.—(AP)—A stream of mud flowing from the side of Mount Telemoko has wiped out the entire native village of Likasan in the center of Java. Forty-five inhabitants were killed, only five escaping from the avalanche.

The road near the mountain village of Slatika was destroyed over a distance of seven miles and many bridges collapsed.

Maupin.—Construction of new service practically completed.

FORMER ARCHBISHOP WAITS CALL TO REST

LONDON, May 20.—(AP)—Serious illness of Archbishop Lord Davidson, recently Archbishop of Canterbury, is causing some anxiety. The present Archbishop of Canterbury, preaching at Southwark cathedral yesterday, referred to the aged prelate as lying "in bed not so much of sickness as of weakness, where with quiet fortitude and patience he is awaiting the call to rest."

Highway being graded from Oak Springs to Maupin.

About New York

By Richard Massock.
NEW YORK—Introducing Ruth Draper: Miss Draper is New York's one-woman show.

On man has seen her performances 149 times. Another attends once a week. He has seen her 10 times this season.

Actresses go to her matinees to study her style and pupils in dramatic school impersonate her in their classes.

Since Christmas she has given seven full-length performances in her character sketches weekly. Last year she gave eight performances a week for four and one-half months. Before that she gave one-night recitals.

"Not the Type"

Granddaughter of Charles A. Dana, the famed editor, Miss Draper is born in New York. She began impersonating types of people for the amusement of her friends at home, in schools and at polite charity bazaars. Then she met Paderewski, who urged her to give it up as a pastime and seek professional standing.

She tried to get parts in Broadway plays, but was in only one cast and that briefly. She was turned away by the producers because she was "not the type."

Embarking on social tours just before the war, she soon became a favorite in Paris and Berlin. She was said in print to have been the highest paid American artist to visit Spain.

London two years ago kept her six weeks, which was her first long run.

Stage hands abandon their dice games to stand in the wings and watch her. She considers this the highest tribute, although she is a Doctor of Letters (Hamilton college), was granted an audience by the pope and has been presented at the Court of St. James.

Critics compare her art with that of Raquel Meller. She writes all her material, once rejecting a monolog written especially for her by Henry James.

Some of her monologs are comic, some pathetic. A favorite is her impersonation of a Dalmanian peasant in a New York hospital, hunting her injured husband, who is not there.

Her repertoire includes 36 sketches and 50 characters. She is, for instance, in one sketch, successively a man's secretary, his wife and his mistress.

EAGLE PT. SCHOOL TO CLOSE END OF WEEK

EAGLE POINT, Ore., May 20.—(Spl.)—Last week of school will be taken up with many activities and examinations even to the primary pupils. Each teacher will take her pupils for an all-day picnic and lecture will be provided by the Parent-Teachers' association.

With the close of school the teachers will depart for the summer to various places. Principal Davies will remain in Eagle Point; Miss Brent will leave for her home in Santa Monica; Miss Miller will return to her home in Seattle.

Mr. Haan will go to his home in Ashland for the present and Miss Aitken and Miss Danielle will return to Medford.

ONE-THIRD VOTE CAST IN EAGLE PT. PRECINCT

EAGLE POINT, Ore., May 20.—(Spl.)—About one-third of the voters of Eagle Point precinct cast their ballots at the primary election.

Election officers on the first board were: Chairman, Fred Pettigrew; Judge, George H. Holmes; first clerk, Edith Weidman; second clerk, Gertrude Haak; third clerk, Lottie Van Scoy.

On the second board, which started to count at 10 o'clock, were: Chairman, Lester Throckmorton; Judge, R. T. Seaman; first clerk, Henry Owens; second clerk, Hazel Kinkaid; third clerk, Charles Humphrey.

Coal production in Chile increased 125,000 tons in 1929, partly attributable to subsidies granted to coastwise vessels carrying coal by increasing duty on petroleum.

RURAL AND SUBURBAN NEWS

EAGLE POINT

EAGLE POINT, Ore., May 20.—(Spl.)—Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock a. m., Friday morning, from the Catholic church, with commitment at Medford cemetery, for Benjamin F. Spalding, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Clements, at Eagle Point on Wednesday morning, after a brief illness. Pallbearers were: Jack Merkle, Joe Arens, William Coy, H. D. Devaney, Henry Myers and Frank Brown.

Mrs. Lewis Robertson and Mrs. Orla Davidson and daughter Frances visited relatives in Central Point Tuesday.

In the absence of the pastor, Mr. Johnson, who was holding a special meeting at Reese Creek, John Skille of Shady Cove filled the pulpit at the Community church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Dollie Love and daughter Fay and Mrs. Carr and son visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hoagland Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kingery spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Kingery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson at Central Point.

Mrs. Mary E. Cincade and Mr. and Mrs. Charley Cincade attended the funeral of Obe Pankey at Central Point.

Lawrence Luy of the Antelope district was in Eagle Point Monday night taking the census.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster McClelland left Tuesday by auto for Long Beach, Cal., where they expect to remain all summer.

Mr. Woolrich of Central Point was in Eagle Point Monday attending to the business of the proposed cheese factory.

Christine Morton of near Medford arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laster Throckmorton Monday, and will remain for a few days' visit.

Leonard Gahn from Prospect delivered a load of shakes to the lumber yard Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. Gove and son of Medford and Mrs. Gove's mother of Portland were guests at the Sunnyside hotel Thursday.

Mrs. Royal Brown and Mrs. Jesse Mittelstaedt called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther K. Haak Thursday.

J. W. Yeager of the Ringwood orchard was in Eagle Point Thursday on business.

Charley Cincade, one of the leading sheepsman of this district was in Eagle Point Wednesday attending to business.

Robert Cowden, Mary Hannaford and Rudy Weidman went to Medford Tuesday evening and attended the play given by the students of Medford high school.

Fred Winebaker was an all night visitor in Eagle Point Wednesday.

Lola Hildreth left Thursday afternoon for Jacksonville for a few weeks' visit.

Mrs. Theron Jones of Grant's Pass, formerly of Eagle Point, left Friday evening for Fish Lake and will spend a few days' visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Smith before leaving for San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Landers have moved into the cottage belonging to George Holmes.

Mr. Horyford of Butte Falls was a pleasant caller on Lola Hildreth Tuesday, en route to Eugene.

Commencement exercises for the 1930 graduates will be held in the Presbyterian church, May 22, at 8 p. m. Those graduating are Elsie Wilbite, valedictorian, and Mary Hannaford, salutarian; Sybil Caster, Truth Piele, Kirch Piele and Isobel Brown.

Clarence Greb, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Greb, who has been suffering from flu, bordering on pneumonia, is now much improved but still weak.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Caster entertained May 16 with a chicken dinner in honor of the seniors and high school teachers. Those enjoying the occasion were Truth Piele, Kirch Piele, Mary Hannaford, Sybil Caster, Miss Miller, Miss Hart and Principal and Mrs. Davies and little daughter Kathleen May.

Mrs. Cora Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Esch, Mr. and Mrs. Ousterhout and family of Thompson creek, Mrs. Ousterhout and niece, Miss Ousterhout, of Modesto, Cal., motored to Crescent City Saturday.

Mrs. Blanche Stanley and little son of Silver Lake, Ore., arrived at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Miller, last week.

Among the guests at the Sunnyside hotel Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thorndyke and party of nine; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. West and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tolter and party of six, Mr. and Mrs. Randall and party of four, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmoir, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Wall and party and Mr. and Mrs. Royal Brown.

TALENT

TALENT, Ore., May 20.—(Spl.)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Craig of Ellensburg, Wash., en route south, stopped over a day in Talent to look at real estate. They will return within a couple of weeks and hope to find a home in this part of the valley.

Hail storms of last week did considerable damage to fruit in the Talent district.

Joseph Shorner of Olympia, Wn., visited over the week-end with friends in Talent.

Mr. Minnie Joechel entertained the 7th and 8th grades with a theater party at the Idaho theater in Medford Friday afternoon. After the show they proceeded to the park and enjoyed a feast of ice cream and wafers.

Arlet Smith and wife and two daughters, Lela and Margaret of Glendale, Ore., spent the week-end with Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Archie Estes.

John Masters of Medford was a week-end visitor at the N. R. Lamb home.

Mrs. Ardley Brown has returned from a two months' visit with friends in Los Angeles.

Miss Luella Wickman of Phoenix is settling with the house work at the Allison Ward home.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Heimer returned home from Bandon putting in electric light poles the length of his property as a new electric line is being built up Wagner creek to the Reames summer home. They will return to Bandon soon to spend the summer.

Mrs. Twogood of Idaho is visiting relatives and friends in the Talent vicinity.

Miss Luella Holdridge returned to her home in Talent during the week from Kirk, Ore., where she was employed as teacher in one of the camp schools. She will be employed by the Toledo school as home economics teacher next year.

One of the lower store rooms of the Ames building has been leased by the Boy Scouts and will be furnished to suit the needs of the scout work.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallatin of Valley View were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Estes Sunday.

SHE SUFFERED WITH BAD CASE OF PILES

Doctored a Lot But She Gained No Relief—Simple Remedy Finally Found

HEALS AND ALSO RELIEVES PAIN

"I suffered so with bleeding piles I could hardly lie down or sit down at times. The doctor seemed unable to help me, and I was afraid would have to be operated on. I already had suffered more or less this way for several years, and tried salves, and lots of other things. Then I saw a Colac Pile Pill advertisement in the St. Louis Times. The first bottle was nearly gone before I could see results, but after that they proved as good as can be. They are healing to the bowels, and relieve that dreadful pain, and knowing how many women suffer, I gladly write to say you can refer to me as one who praises Colac Pile Pills, always," writes Mrs. W. H. Copeland, Sudheimer, Mo.

Thousands of grateful men and women have found these little pills, taken with a swallow of water at meal times, go deep down inside to the roots of the trouble, and healing, soothing and banishing the cause work almost as if by magic. No salves, suppositories or ugly operations anymore for them. If the reader suffers with piles in any form, obtain at your druggist or direct, and use on positive guarantee that treatment will banish pain, and symptoms to complete satisfaction or money back. If out druggist can obtain his jobber for you or send 75c for regular bottle of 45 pills, postage paid, to Colac Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

CORNS CURED FOR 10 CENTS

Why Suffer With Corns—Pay Dime—Pain Stops And Out Comes Corn.

RESULTS GUARANTEED NEWEST, BEST REMEDY

No bulky doughnut pads or burning acids—get an envelope of O-Joy Corn Wafers for a dime. Thin as paper, press one on the corn with finger, and it sticks there. Shoes don't hurt. Pain is gone immediately. Dance if you wish, no bother, fuss or danger. Later, in the bath, out comes corn, callous, roots and all. Like magic. Everyone is going wild over O-Joy's. Broadway was overjoyed; you will be, too. Six O-Joy Wafers for a dime at druggists.

SMART EXQUISITE MOUNTINGS

Platinum and white gold creations of distinction and originality—have us reset your jewels in these magnificent artistic conceptions.

Larry Schade

Your Favorite Jeweler Since 1918

Phone 105 30 N. Central Medford, Oregon

A Tower of Hospitality!

WHETHER you're in San Francisco for a day, a week, or a year, make the new EL CORTEZ HOTEL your home—you'll never want to leave.

THIS 15-story hostelry is more than a hotel... it's a home to all who live beneath its hospitable roof. Beautifully furnished suites and single rooms, each with completely equipped kitchenettes, multiple radio and every other conceivable convenience. Located in the very center of San Francisco's busy social and business whirl... close to the theatres, smart shops and great department stores. Palatial dining room and coffee shop, or if you wish, prepare your meals in your own convenient kitchenette. Daily hotel service and garage in connection.

THE EL CORTEZ HOTEL

GBARY NEAR TAYLOR STREET SAN FRANCISCO

MORTIMER A. SAMUEL, Managing Owner

Women's Ho

Insurance

First Insurance Agency

$1.00 pair

Silk from top to toe French Heel

The Oggerly

WOMEN'S HO

Insurance

First Insurance Agency

$1.00 pair

Silk from top to toe French Heel

The Oggerly