

Old Stone Is Suitable For Cottage

This little cottage may be built as a summer camp at a reasonable cost, particularly if there is stone readily available that may be used in construction.

The front porch is of wood, which should be painted white. All other woodwork likewise should be in white.

If the builder is ambitious and desires to superintend the building or do it himself, the house may be constructed for $3000 or $4000 if the stone is available on the property.

The beauty of the design, however, lies in its simplicity and taste in detailing. This should be similar to that found on old homes in Pennsylvania or New Jersey.

If stone is not to be found nearby at a nominal cost, it is recommended that the house be built of frame construction. To buy stone from some distant point, of course, would mean a vast difference in expense. The actual cost of such a house naturally will vary considerably, depending on the material used and the cost of stone.

erably, depending on the material used and the cost of stone. If stone is used, any estimate should take these factors into consideration.

ARTICLE ERRS IN STATING CONNOR'S FRUIT CONNECTION

In a news article published in its columns, Friday last, The Mail Tribune inadvertently stated that Guy W. Connor was still connected with the fruit firm of Simon, Shuttleworth and French for the past several months, due announcement of which was made at the time.

In this rollicking tale of a sailor ashore. Assisting him are Otis Harlan and Eddie Gibbon, all three being women-haters from the drop of the anchor. How Tryon sticks his head in the noose of matrimony in order to free his old pal Otis from a similar predicament furnishes material for a picture that is one burst of merriment from beginning to end.

Most of the scenes of "Dames Ahoy" are laid at a beach resort. The adventures of Tryon and his sailor friends in looking for a blonde with a strawberry hair, mark on her leg are hilarious to the extreme. How Tryon cunningly wins a dancing contest, carrying the prizes of $500, a bungalow and a bride, is another subject for uncontrollable laughter.

Pioneer Woman of Phoenix Given Pension By Special Act Congress

President Hoover, on May 19, signed a bill granting to Mrs. Jennima Colver Rose of Phoenix, Ore., a pension in the sum of $30 a month.

The bill, introduced in the senate and sponsored through the law-making channels by Senator C. L. McNary, grants the pension because of the service during the period of the Civil War of Lewellyn Colver, member of Company I, 1st Oregon Infantry.

Mrs. Rose was the widow of Lewellyn Colver before her marriage to the late Lewis Albert Rose.

Necessary facts and data for the pension application were gathered and forwarded to Washington, D. C., by Mrs. Wilbur Jones of Klamath Falls, under the direction of Captain O. C. Applegate, also of that city.

Mrs. Jones is the stepdaughter and niece by marriage of Mrs. Rose. Captain O. C. Applegate was a friend and associate of Lewellyn Colver in the Indian War service during the years around the 1870's.

Others who assisted were Mrs. O. A. Stearns, Ashland, who secured an affidavit from Alonzo Williams of California, only living member of Company I, 1st Oregon Infantry, and Attorney Don B. Newbery, Medford, who copied the required court records from the Jackson county files.

Because of certain rules governing the pension bureau, the application could not be favorably considered by that department. A petition to congress, asking for a special act, was prepared by Mrs. Jones and circulated by Mrs. Donna Furry Graffias.

The following well-known citizens of southern Oregon signed the petition: Lloyd Low, sheriff, Klamath Falls; C. C. Low, ex-sheriff, Klamath Falls; Alex Sparrow, county judge; Deilah Stevens, county clerk; J. B. Coleman, county assessor; A. E. Reimes, attorney; C. M. Thomas, ex-circuit

Judge, and W. H. Gove, banker, Medford; A. H. Fisher and Andrew Hearn, Phoenix, and Mrs. Donna Furry Graffias.

Mrs. Rose, whose maiden name was Jennima Dollard, was married to Lewellyn Colver in December, 1874, and came to the old Colver home, now the Blue Flower lodge, as a bride, and this was her home during the greater part of the next 50 years.

In 1884 Lewellyn Colver was accidentally killed. In 1886 Mrs. Rose married the late Lewis Albert Rose, who was the widower of Isabelle Colver, sister of Lewellyn Colver.

Lewellyn Colver and Isabelle Colver are the only children of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Colver, pioneers of Rogue River valley, on whose donation land claim the town of Phoenix was laid out.

Mrs. Rose, who is nearly 77 years of age, left Sunday for Fullerton, California, on an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Claud Cate. She was accompanied by another daughter, Mrs. Lita Colver Furry.

RECOVER BODY OF LAD LOST FROM GANGPLANK

PORTLAND, Ore., May 31.—(Sp.)—The body of a boy who was drowned Thursday night when he fell into the Willamette river from the gangplank of the steamer Dayenport, was identified yesterday as that of Wilder Munson, 12.

The youth was boarding the boat to sell magazines when he fell from the plank.

New Drama for Sax Rohmer Fans

Readers of Sax Rohmer's famous mystery stories—and indeed, persons who have never read him (if there are any such persons) will be pleased with Paramount's second reproduction of one of his thrilling tales, "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu," which comes to the Fox Craterian theatre tomorrow.

For here are Rohmer's famous pen characters, living and breathing in the medium of the all-talking screen. The Warner Oland thrilling glamor that permeates all his stories is faithfully reproduced by a great cast of competent artists.

Warner Oland, who played the title role in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," again performs as the insidious peril of the East in "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu." He is engaged in a renewed battle of wits with O. P. Hoggis as Nayland Smith, Scotland Yard detective, Jean Arthur is again seen and heard as the winsome Ida Eltham, ward of the Oriental doctor, and Nell Hamilton repeats in the role of Dr. Jack Petrie, the young Britisher, who has been marked for vengeance at the hands of Dr. Fu.
