

INDIAN MOUND RELICS TO BE SHOWN PUBLIC

A glance into the famous Indian mound on Rogue River near Gold Hill, discovered just one year ago by Bill Hittle, farmer of that locality, will be allowed the public, Sunday, June 8th, when the first step will be taken in the preliminary program for establishing a museum in this city for housing the many relics buried for centuries in the eastern Oregon soil. Alex E. Woolverton of Wold and Weid, real estate firm, owners of the property, announced this afternoon.

An admission charge will be collected for entrance into the grounds, where great men of the Indian or perhaps the Chinese race, scientists have as yet been unable to determine which, buried their treasures or allowed nature to do the same for them. The grounds will be open each day following Sunday and the money realized from admission collected from crowds expected, who have anxiously awaited the opening date, will be used to pay for the excavations and finance the museum.

Letters have been received by Mr. Woolverton from various universities of the coast, who are interested in the project. Actual excavation work to unearth the many formations and relics, which have as yet been untouched, will start about June 10. Thursday and Friday of this week, preliminary excavating will be done, however in order that interesting displays may be seen by the people who visit the grounds on the opening day, Sunday.

Several scientists are expected to be here for the first excavating. The public will not be al-

Lonely Fish Does Double Duty in Making Sport for Local Anglers

Fishermen (commercial and otherwise), do strange things it is admitted, even by themselves, to get their quota of fish before returning home. But few of them catch the same fish twice without knowing it. At least after he has been securely located in the boat. But John Orth, well known local angler, wants practice in dragging them in, dead or alive, according to the story traveling about the city today.

Sunday he went out in a boat at Fish Lake with John Wilkinson and Verne Brophy. They fished diligently for hours but only one fish was brought from the water. They continued to fish, and Wilkinson, who was rowing the "three men in a boat," grew tired. When he wasn't rowing he was dodging the hook on the end of Orth's line, which flirted with his face and knees alternately, he said this morning.

The absence of fish and the flitting hook got on his nerves. The next time it passed his way he placed the fish in the boat on the end of it and let the line into the water.

"Woop! Got a fish," Orth soon called.

leaved within the grounds prior to Sunday, a committee will then be prepared to receive the people.

CONGRESS OVERRIDES HOOVER ON PENSIONS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—Congress today enacted the Spanish war pensions measure over President Hoover's veto. Joining with the senate in opposition to the president, the house voted to enact the legislation in the face of his disapproval. The vote was 293 to 14.

"Give it more line," Wilkinson advised, without smiling. He was tired of rowing.

"Reel it in," Brophy added and began to assist with the work. They pulled in the fish and took it from the hook.

"Dead," Orth announced. "Must have drowned it spending so much time reeling it in," Brophy answered and threw it into the boat.

Wilkinson headed the boat toward the shore.

"Hey they're just beginning to bite now," his companions objected, still without giving the fish further examination.

Wilkinson continued toward the bank.

When they got to the landing, Orth and Brophy informed the onlookers that they had caught "only two fish" during the whole afternoon, and proceeded to clean them. But they couldn't find but one to clean. An argument arose over the whereabouts of the second catch and then Wilkinson laughed for the first time during the afternoon. He was still laughing when seen on the streets this morning.

The Mexican tipped the beam at 152 1/2 while Jones set the bar at 149. Both men are in the pink of condition and a hard match is predicted.

AERIAL SCHEDULE ON COAST IS CUT IN NORTHERN HOP

With the inauguration yesterday of a new schedule along the coastwise airmail, passenger and express line of the Pacific Air Transport, one more hour is cut from the company's flying time north bound, making it one of the fastest schedules of the kind in the land. Cruising speed of planes is being stepped up to 108 miles an hour to make the change possible, it is said.

By this new northbound schedule air mail is received at the Medford airport one-half hour earlier than before, with no change in arriving time of the southbound planes. The new schedule, which is three hours earlier than the one put into effect when the coast line was started three years ago, is the third cut in time made since the Boeing system took over the service.

Under the change the planes leave United Airport, Burbank, Cal., at 11:45 p. m., arrive at Bakerfield at 12:40 a. m.; Fresno, 1:45 a. m.; Oakland-San Francisco, 3:30 a. m.; Medford, 6:45 a. m.; Portland, 9:05 a. m.; Tacoma, 10:25 p. m., and Seattle, 11 a. m. Southbound planes leave Portland at 7:15 a. m., reach Oakland at 1:15 p. m., and Los Angeles at 4:45 p. m., with the regular intermediate stops.

CHINESE TABLET RECORDS WISDOM

PEIPING.—(AP)—A stone tablet, carved deep with classics of Confucius more than 1700 years ago, has been placed in the national library here. It was found by Chinese scientists who have been excavating the ancient Han capital near Loyang.

The tablet, one of the many outstanding discoveries made by the archaeologists within a year, is 12 by 24 inches and contains about 130 characters. It records that the original manuscript, penned by a sage, became so worn from use that the emperor, Liu Ti, in A. D. 175 commissioned a scholar to cut the words of wisdom in enduring stone.

The tablet has aided in clearing up several of the ideas of Confucius and is said to be the most important bit of his work brought to light in many years.

districts, and the state board of horticulture, for the purpose of formulating cannerly pear standards and specifications, to be approved by the state horticultural body, and thus be enforceable as a state law—the method used in Washington and California.

The meeting was called as a result of the establishment by the Northwest Cannery's association of cannerly pear standards, which growers and shippers of the northwest generally regard as too stringent.

The proposed Oregon standards would be more lenient and favorable to growers and not permit a wide latitude.

The specifications for No. 1 grade pears, as set forth in the Northwest Cannery's association, is as follows:

No. 1 shall consist of pears of the Bartlett variety which are firm, well formed, of good color, quality and at the state of maturity the buyer may require free from scale, worms, decay, punctures, windfalls and damage caused by broken skins, limbruks, spraysburn, scabs, bruises, sunburn, hail marks, drouth spots, russeting, disease, insects, mechanical or other means of imperfections.

The diameter of the smallest pear permitted in this grade shall be not less than 2 1/4 inches.

Growers and shippers state the pear that meets with all the requirements above set forth, is seldom, if ever grown, and would be a super-perfect fruit.

Reports received locally from Washington, indicate there is dissatisfaction in the Wenatchee and Yakima districts, over the association specifications.

ARTICLE ERRS IN GIVING CONNOR'S FRUIT CONNECTION

Ralph H. Headley is the local representative of Simon, Shuttleworth & French.

Mr. Connor is now associated with the Medford Fruit company.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Trading was weakly resumed in the stock market today. Price trends were unconvincing and transactions light. The three-day holiday apparently failed to restore either the courage or the vigor of professional traders and the public held aloof. Business surveys and analysis were reassuring, but with little general improvement in view until summer or early fall, speculators remained unenthusiastic.

The sharing of the Kennecott Copper annual dividend rate from $5 to $3 had been expected. The rails continued to sag.

The closing tone was steady. Total sales aggregated 3,730,000

Graphic Outlines of History

By H. W. CONGER

Statue of Sakakawea, Portland, Oregon

This Indian woman, better known as the Bird Woman, assisted Lewis and Clark on their great expedition, at the same time trying to find her own people, the Shoshones, from whom she had been stolen five years before. After many days' search, she reached her tribe, and guides and horses were secured for Lewis and Clark. In an efficient and unobtrusive manner, we desire to be of real assistance and to officiate in a way that will dignify the ceremony.
